No question could be of more fundamental importance than the number of children of college women. Just here Professor Hewes's study of the seminary graduates of 1842-92 is very important, because she dealt with a group of women whose child bearing period was over in the great majority of instances, and the results may be taken as fairly final without reckoning on children yet to be born.

In the college graduates there was an average of 2.43 children a woman for the decade of mothers graduating 1890-99, and only .98 for the decade 1900-09. This latter percentage will, of course, rise in the next few years.

In these days much is said of the increasing divorce evil. The United States enjoys the unenviable distinction of leading the world in the number of divorces granted. Already the rate is one divorce for every twelve marriages ,and if the tendency continues in the future at the present rate Professor Wilcox declares that more than half the marriages will end in divorce before the century is over.

But in contrast to all this the marriages of college women exhibit a stability that is simply astounding and highly gratifying. Of 668 marriages from the graduates of 1842 to 1893 only three legal separations have been reported, and in the twenty years from 1890 to 1909, for which 443 marriages of college graduates are reported, not a single divorce!

Contrary to some impressions that the age at which college is finished is constantly advancing, the average age of the Mount Holyoke graduates at commencement time has been falling since 1890.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Are the Best Remedy In The World FOR BACKACHE.

Many people fail to understand the significance of a lame, weak, sore or aching back.

You overtax the kidneys—give them more work than they can possibly do—then they cry out in protest through the pain in the back.

Backache is simply kidneyache and the best remedy in the world for backache and all kidney troubles is Doan's Kidney Pills.

We have thousands of testimonials from all quarters of the globe to prove this. Here is one from a party who used them in England, but who is now a resident of Canada.

Mr. P. R. Gilseville, Wycliffe, B.C., writes:—"When living in the 'Old Country,' three years ago, I suffered severely from pains in the back, and had to give up work. The pain was so bad that when I stooped down to pick anything up, I felt my back must break. I tried all sorts of remedies and several doctors, but all to no purpose. One day I read of Doan's Kidney Pills, and thought I might as well try them, and to my surprise, before I was half through one box the backache had entirely disappeared, and it has not caused me any trouble since. I always keep "Doan's" in the house and shall always recommend them to all sufferers."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

COMPLETELY CURED OF DYSPEPSIA

By Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets

We are continually hearing from grateful people who have had experiences like that of Miss Alice M. Cooper, of Niagara Falls, Ont., who writes:

"I wish to express my gratitude to you for the benefit I received from your most wonderful Dyspepsia Tablets. Having taken other medicines without having received the slightest relief, I heard of your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets and thought I would give them a trial. I have been completely cured of dyspepsia. I will be only too pleased to advise any one troubled with dyspepsia to give them a fair trial."

Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets not only give the immediate relief from heartburn, flatulence, acidity of the stomach and biliousness, which is so much needed, but if taken regularly for a few days or weeks they completely cure the most aggravated cases of stomach trouble. When for sale, you can get a box from your druggist, why go on suffering? National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal. 144

Ill-Health And Success

Is ill-health in the way of your success? Do you lack the energy and vitality, the red blood which is necessary to good health and success in life? What have you done to overcome this condition? For it can be overcome by a little patient treatment.

There are combined in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food the elements which go to form new, rich blood. By using this food cure regularly you increase the quality and quantity of blood in the body. The wasted nerves feed on this rich blood and become revitalized. Mind and body regain snap, vim, energy ,and all that accompanies health and strength.

Nervous headache and indigestion, nervous prostration and exhaustion give way when this great restorative treatment is used to put new health and vigour into the blood.

A CAPTIVATING SPRING SCENE

Miller's Shoe Store Window Attracts Much Attention.

The electric fountain which has recently been installed in the window of Messrs. Miller's shoe store, is forming a great attraction. It was designed by Mr. E. S. Lorimer, E.E., inventor of the Lorimer Automatic System of Telephony. The fountain itself consists of four bowls, the lower bowl measuring 14 inches and the upper 4 inches. The continuous stream of water is run off the city main back to the sewer again. There are four occulting lights, namely, violet, green, white and red. This effect is produced by flasher mechanism which is of very intricate construction. The lights are in the form of thirty-six candlebra lamps and nine of each colour come into service consecutively. The construction as a whole presents a very pretty spring scene, with its birds, fish, frogs and surrounding moss, and it must have necessitated a great deal of mental work before its completion. Mr. Lorimer is to be congratulated on the design, which very few on seeing, pass by without remark. The cost of the article complete was $150.

Yale And Snobs

Mr. Owen Johnston's Story Stirs Up Graduates of "Old Eli"

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 6.—A repudiation by the Yale officials which will make it clear that conditions represented in the story of "Stover at Yale" in McClure's Magazine are not as depicted by the author, Owen Johnson, is demanded by James A. Hawes of New York City, a graduate of the class of '94. Mr. Hawes has written to the Alumni Weekly stating that he has heard in schools in many parts of the country that Yale had been revealed as an institution with an obnoxious secret society system. He thinks that the Faculty should issue a statement declaring that the conditions described by the author as existing when Mr. Johnson, who is a graduate of the class of 1909, was in college have now changed, and he calls upon Mr. Johnson to issue a statement to the same effect.

In the course of his letter to The Alumni Weekly, Mr. Hawes says:

"The story entitled 'Stover at Yale' appearing in McClure's Magazine, is having an effect which is probably not realized by many Yale graduates, and I believe is totally unknown to the gifted author. In several distant universities the men were impressed with the want of democracy and with what they call the evident snobbishness existing at Yale, as portrayed in this story. In fact, at several places they said that it was evident to them that Yale was now divided into cliques and that the opinion they had always had of Yale and Yale life had been altered by this story.

"This article is entirely misleading, however. To-day I certainly believe that the life is more democratic and the social system, in the academic department at least, much broader and fairer to the men."

DEBAUCHING KOREA

Japanese Rule is Having an Awful Effect

NAGASAKI, April 6.—The press of Nagasaki in commenting on the trial of several prominent Koreans at Seoul charged with gambling, declares that the persistency with which the Government is carrying out its campaign against gambling in Korea—even private gambling in family and club—would lead the visitor to believe that no other form of vice existed under Japanese rule.

"But a few months' or less residence would disabuse them of the idea Japan's occupation of Korea was followed by the introduction of the licensed house' business on a scale so great that foreign observers imagined that it was the deliberate intention of the Japanese to debauch the people they had promised to protect.

"When the Chinese Government sought to suppress opium smoking and closed the dens in Antung, the den keeprs were permitted to open places in the Japanese concession there to which the Chinese victims of the habit could resort.

"Japan's record in morals is so poor that we are surprised at the diligence with which Chinese and Korean gamblers are prosecuted by her administrators."

INVALUABLE TO EVERY FARMER

Its Wonderful Power in Curing Sick Cattle and Colicky Horses Makes "Nerviline" Worth Its Weight in Gold.

The stockman or farmer that doesn't know of the thousand and one uses of "Nerviline" around the stable has a great deal to learn. "Why, I wouldn't think of locking my stable door at night without knowing I had a supply of 'Nerviline' on hand. I always get a dozen bottles at a time from my druggist. To cure colic, indigestion, and bad stomach in a horse or cow there is no remedy on earth in the same class as 'Nerviline.' Last summer I had a $250 horse that got the scours, and I would have lost him if I hadn't been able to give him Nerviline. I poured a full bottle of Nerviline in a pint of water down his throat and saved his life. I know of neighbors who have saved many heads of valuable stock, stricken with colic, just by using Nerviline. It is equally good as a rub-on liniment, and I know from my experience that for man or beast, internally or externally, 'Nerviline' is worth a dollar a drop.—James E. McCullough, Stock Breeder, etc."

The Quest of Gentle Hazard

The Diamond Tiara.

(Copyright, 1911, by W. G. Chapman in the United States and Great Britain.)

Since the miscarriage of his matrimonial plans Lord Jocelyn had rather lost touch with his former associates. Self-abnegation is frequently misunderstood, and he found the role of jilted suitor to be both unsatisfactory and incongruous. His father had received the news with considerable disgust and urged him in frequent communications to look around for a wealthy bride. But Jocelyn withdrew from social life and spent the best part of his leisure at home in his apartment on Madison avenue, where he found the company of his valet Talbot sufficient for his requirements.

"Talbot," he said, "I am going to devote myself henceforward to the pursuit of adventure. I am convinced that New York city affords opportunities such as are uncommon in our staider London."

"Which you're right, sir," answered Talbot. "Why, sir, the women here has what I'd call a 'go' about 'em that—"

"I was not referring to the female element of the population, Talbot," replied Lord Jocelyn severely.

Yet it is undeniable that the premature termination of his engagement to Miss Squires had not rendered him permanently immune against feminine attractions. Otherwise, why should he have lingered in the vicinity of the girl in sables?

They were real sables, too, and Jocelyn was a connoisseur of furs. Nothing, he was wont to say, adds that finishing touch to a girl that handsome furs will. But in this case there was the element of curiosity that came to complete the spell. For why had this richly clad girl entered a pawn shop at the lower end of Sixth avenue at six o'clock in the evening and come out again without the sables? Was it a sudden need for money to pay her dressmaker?

Keeping a discreet distance, so that he might not be under suspicion of an ungentlemanly pursuit, he followed along the north side of Washington square. She paused at the entrance to a large, old-fashioned apartment house, one of those that had been constructed before the days of elevators, and opening the door, disappeared within. As she passed out of sight Jocelyn heard something chink upon the sidewalk. He hurried forward, stooped, and picked up a magnificent diamond tiara.

His first impulse was to hasten into the building and inform the girl of her loss. His second was to remain outside until she missed the ornament and came out in search of it. But, seeing several men upon the opposite corner of the square, looking, to his mind, suspiciously like detectives in plain clothes, pointing in his direction and evidently observing him, he decided to yield to the first impulse, and entered. He hurried through a dark hall and, up a number of flights, reaching the top story in time to hear a door close softly. Which door had she entered? He was sure it was the door upon the left. He looked and saw that it had not closed; the lock protruded against the framework. He knocked and, receiving no answer, entered.

Lord Jocelyn found himself in a large, sparsely furnished room, evidently both bedroom and sitting room, although the exceedingly dirty condition of the windows, which were half covered with a tattered shade, apparently indicated a condition of poverty wholly at variance with the attire which the unknown had worn. From this room a door led apparently into the second of the suite, but it was locked. Jocelyn retreated to the door by which he had entered, with the object of making further search for the owner of the tiara. But this was locked, too. In some way it had automatically fastened itself; he was a prisoner.

The position in which he now found himself was certainly an awkward one. Standing irresolutely in the center of the floor, holding the tiara, he felt the guilty consciousness of burglary imbue itself into his brain. If the girl entered and found him there—what would she do, what should he say?

As he revolved his predicament in his mind he heard the lock click, and a man came softly in. He was of about Jocelyn's age, though certain lines of dissipation that had stamped themselves upon his face, as well as a furtiveness in his eyes, revealed the fact that his life had not been wholly open to the inspection of his fellow men. Seeing Jocelyn there, he stood stock still, as though stunned by surprise, then suddenly whipped a revolver out of his inner breast pocket and leveled it at him.

"You'll break that mirror behind me if you fire," said Jocelyn, observing that the weapon trembled in his visitor's fingers. "Not that it's my mirror; I'm only advising you."

The man lowered the revolver and turned an intensely penetrating look upon Lord Jocelyn.

"What do you want? What are you doing here?" he demanded.

"It is a curious story," began Jocelyn easily. "To begin with—"

"Whom do you want?" interrupted the man again, with almost a shriek. "I don't live here; I'm merely calling on a friend—Walt Barrett. I was told he had this apartment."

Instinct told Jocelyn that this was Walt Barrett himself.

"I don't live here either, Mr. Barrett," answered Lord Jocelyn. "So perhaps I may reply to your question by repeating it."

"Are you a 'bull?'" Barrett demanded with an oath. "If you are—"

"Do you mean a member of the detective force?" Jocelyn inquired. "If so, I may say that at present I am not, although there is no knowing what I may come to."

"Then who and what are you?"

"That," answered Jocelyn, "seems irrelevant. It is plain, however, that you are an intruder upon these premises. It's sad, very sad," he continued.

"What's sad?"

"To see a young man of your age devote his life to such practices," answered Jocelyn, shaking his head mournfully. "My friend, if you had acquainted yourself with statistics before embarking upon your perilous occupation you would have learned that the average burglar spends between two-thirds and four-fifths of his active life within the walls of our various penal institutions. My friend, you cannot beat the state."

The man recoiled a step and looked at him in astonishment. Convinced that he was on the right track, Jocelyn proceeded:

"I myself am not disposed to wreck so promising a career as yours by calling in the police, for I see that you are, by education and training, capable of better things than this. Now, Mr. Barrett, if I let you go this time will you give me your word of honor to abandon this life of crime and to become an exemplary citizen?"

What answer would have been returned is unknown, for at that moment the door on the farther side of the room opened and there stood revealed the girl of the sables. And, in her indoor attire, she looked still more bewitching than before.

Seeing Lord Jocelyn, she recoiled in astonishment. Then, evidently agitated, she hurried toward him.

"What do you want? What do you want? There's nobody here!" she cried.

"My visit is, I assure you, entirely a business one," Lord Jocelyn answered.

These words seemed to produce extraordinary consternation in the young woman's breast.

Her eyes dilated in terror; suddenly she put forth her hands and clasped Jocelyn's arm in agitation.

"Don't take him, officer," she pleaded. "He was just going to leave. By morning he would have been over the Canadian border. It would break my heart and his old mother's. He did not mean to do anything really wrong; he hardly knew that it was a criminal act, for he would have replaced the money in the vaults of the bank tomorrow if they had not made the discovery.

"We have restored the money," she continued, dabbing at her eyes with a handkerchief of filmy lace. "I have pawned my sables and my diamonds. I will send the money to the president in your presence, if only you will go back and say that you couldn't find him."

"You're a fool, sis," interrupted the young man, harshly. "Here, officer, what'll you take to give me two hours' start? There's eight or nine hundred sister's raised upon her furs and jewels. Let's divvy up. Give me four hundred to start me on my way and you shall have the rest."

"No, no, Walter," the young woman cried. "You promised me that you'd be honest if I got the money for you. It must go to the president. Officer, you'll spare him, won't you?"

"I tell you you're on the wrong tack, sis," cried the young man in exasperation. "You've kept me sewed up in this empty apartment for a whole week while they were searching for me, and now that I've got a chance to beat it you want to spoil everything by your confounded scruples."

Both fixed their eyes upon Lord Jocelyn in intense eagerness, the one wholly selfish, bartering his sister's money for his own sake, the other tremulous with anxiety for her brother's safety.

"Indeed, you are both mistaken," said Lord Jocelyn. "I am not a member of the detective force. I came in merely to restore to this young lady this tiara, which she let fall at my feet outside the door of the house." And he held it out to the girl.

She eyed it askance, but made no effort to recover it.

"It's paste," she cried. "I had it made when I pawned the original, so that its absence should arouse no questions among my family. If that's what brought you in here you can go. Go!" she cried, pointing toward the door. "Leave us immediately."

"My dear young lady," said Jocelyn paternally, "I am afraid that my coming here has had very little effect upon your brother's safety, for the house is watched and may be raided at any moment. I saw the detectives across the street. It is certain that he cannot escape."

"Will you please go?" she cried again, pointing toward the door. "Don't you see that you aren't wanted here? If you are a gentleman you'll leave us."

The sight of distress, especially when the distressed one was of the fairer sex, always aroused intense pity in Lord Jocelyn's breast, and the girl was both distressed and fair. Instead of going, as he had been ordered, he stepped forward toward her.

"No, I will not go," he said impulsively. "I believe that your brother's act was but a thoughtless one, due to his youth and not done with criminal intent. Why should we not save him yet?"

Both listened gloomily, but neither seemed enkindled by his words.

"I will give myself up as the man they are seeking," said Jocelyn. "Let them arrest me. I will neither affirm nor deny their charges. And by the time that my own innocence has been established your brother can be far away from the scene. I only ask," continued Jocelyn earnestly, "that he will mend his life, and that he will build up his character again, taking warning by the remembrance of his past."

The young lady stepped up to Jocelyn impulsively and held out her hands.

"Your offer does you great honor," she answered earnestly. "But I cannot accept this sacrifice. No, if it is to be so, let my brother suffer for what he has done. After all it is not right that he should evade the justice of the law."

"Yes, let me pay the penalty," re-echoed Barrett in listless apathy.

Lord Jocelyn looked from the one to the other in bewilderment. "But just now you were moving heaven and earth to effect his escape," he cried.

The young woman wrung her hands in desperation. "Oh, will you go?" she cried. "Never mind my inconsistencies. Go, before it is too late!"

Lord Jocelyn turned toward the door. There seemed to be no alternative but to comply. He could not force this sacrifice on them in despite of that determination. But even as he laid his fingers on the handle of the door he heard the heavy tread of footsteps ascending the stairway. They reached the top stair and halted, and others succeeded them. Then all could hear voices of men, pitched in low tones, without.

The girl hesitated for an instant; then, without a word, she darted toward the door that led into the interior room. She flung it wide and flew through, beyond another door, and into a passage terminating in a stairway. Following, hastily, Jocelyn heard the girl hurrying down, and caught sight of her, three flights below, hurrying in hot haste toward the back egress. Some impulse that he made no effort to analyse turned his footsteps back into the room which he had vacated. Barrett stood there alone in gloomy meditation. Jocelyn went up to him and held out his hand.

"I do not know what part I have unwittingly played in this tragedy," he said. "But I repeat my former offer to you. Follow your sister. Though the house is watched, I will voluntarily give myself up in place of you. We are about the same build," he added, measuring himself beside Barrett, "and you can thus go free. And, once free, remember what I have urged upon you."

The young man stepped forward and seized Lord Jocelyn by the arm.

"Will you go, you meddler?" he hissed in his ear. "Many thanks for nothing. Leave me to myself. I don't want your sacrifice, I tell you. I want to suffer the penalty for my crime. What the dickens has it got to do with you, and why should you come here to torment me?"

Lord Jocelyn turned back toward the inner door. But before he could reach it there came a thundering rapping upon the door without.

"Open there," cried voices without. "In the name of the law, open, or—"

A violent crash succeeded. The door cracked ominously, and the panels split from top to bottom under the strain of several muscular shoulders. Lord Jocelyn darted forward.

"Stop!" he cried. "I am the man whom you are looking for, I will open the door."

"Open, then," they cried. "And be quick about it."

Jocelyn stepped forward and turned the handle. There came a rush, the frame of the door fell backward off its hinges under the impetus and two men hurled themselves upon him, holding his arms, while a third went briskly through his clothing.

"Hello There's two of 'em!" exclaimed a fourth man, pouncing on Barrett as he endeavored to make a belated retreat in the direction that his sister had taken. "And armed," he continued, whisking the revolver out of his pocket. "Here's our man, Jenks."

"I'm not so sure," Jenks answered, gripping Jocelyn more tightly. "See here!" And he held up the paste tiara.

"Which of 'em is it?" demanded the chief detective, scrutinizing the faces of their two captives. "Best take 'em both—what, Bristow?"

"Orders was to take one man," Brisow replied, scratching his head and looking at either captive in perplexity. "Which of you's Walt Barrett?" he continued.

"I'm not," said Barrett. "You'd best let me go."

"What're you doing here, then?"

"I'll answer when my counsel advises me."

"Ah, take him away, Jenks. And now for the other. What's your name? Have we your pedigree?"

"And where did you get this?" added the chief detective, dangling the tiara in front of Jocelyn's face.

"Let me speak," said Barrett. "I'll tell the truth. I don't know who this fellow is from Adam, but I'm the man you want. I've been hiding here for the past week and I'm mighty glad you've got me at last, for it's better to be behind the bars doing my time honest than to be in hiding. My God, captain, if you knew what I've suffered! I daren't go into the streets until after it was dark, and then I'd go slinking round corners and cringing past each cop as though I was a hunted animal. I'm mighty glad you've pulled me, and that's the truth. My conscience—"

"Aw, tell that to the judge! I guess you're Walt Barrett, right enough. But who's your pal? That's what we want to know. And where did you get these shiners?" he continued, again flashing the diamonds in Jocelyn's face.

"I found that tiara in the street," answered Lord Jocelyn nonchalantly. "And since this gentleman has confessed that he is the man you want perhaps you will allow me to withdraw."

"What shall we do?" asked Jenks.

"Phone for the van and take 'em both along to headquarters," Bristow replied.

"Best wait for Sergeant Evans," said the third of the party. "He'll be round by the back entrance in half a shake."

"Open, then," they cried.

The "shake" could not have included more than an appreciable fraction of a minute, for almost immediately a trampling sound overpowered through the interior corridor, the inner door opened, and a man attired in police sergeant's uniform appeared, and, at his side, defiant, stood the girl of the sables. Barrett looked toward her and smiled.

"I guess the game's up now," he said.

"I guess it is," she responded indifferently.

"I hope you're satisfied with what you've done by butting in," said Barrett, addressing Jocelyn with a scowl.

"Where's Walt Barrett?" asked Sergeant Evans, looking upon the gathering in astonishment.

"Ain't this him?" asked Bristow, indicating the captive who had just made his confession of guilt.

"Not by a jugful," answered Evans, and the girl laughed shrilly. "And that ain't neither," he added, indicating Jocelyn. "Barrett's about that build, but he's got sandy hair."

"Then who the devil are you?" shouted Bristow to Lord Jocelyn and Barrett, eyeing each darkly.

"I'll tell you," said the girl. "Walt Barrett's over the Canadian border now and you won't land him in a hurry. As for the gentleman you thought was Barrett, he's been taking Walt Barrett's place the last couple of days.

"You see," she continued, smiling confidently at the detectives, "Walt Barrett and I were married the week before he pulled off that trick on the Bank of New Holland. Twenty-five thousand he got out of it, and I hid him here while we were negotiating with the bank for immunity. But the president was foxy. He pretended to be willing to accept fifty per cent., and all the while you gentlemen were keeping watch on this apartment. You suspected Barrett was in hiding here, but you weren't sure, and the plan was to wait till he'd handed his share over to the president and then to pull him in.

"This gentleman here, who called himself Barrett, is an old admirer of mine, and when he saw I was in trouble he came forward, like the gentleman he is, and volunteered to take Walt Barrett's place. Walt got away two nights ago over the roofs while you were watching this gentleman behind this broken shade and flattering yourselves that you still had Walt Barrett under surveillance.

"You were pretty sure you had him watched, but you weren't quite sure, and Walt was still being watched for on the off chance that he had got away. It was necessary to convince you that this was Barrett, so that you should call off the search long enough to enable my husband to get into Canada. He's there now, for I got a message over the phone ten minutes ago, and you're not likely to lay hands on him.

"This afternoon I went out to raise some money on my furs to help my husband make his getaway in good order. On the way back I saw this other gentleman following me and, like a fool, I took him for a 'bull.' I thought it would be a good chance to bring him up here and have my friend arrested, so that you could be dead sure you had Barrett in your hands. I dropped that phony tiara to bring him in—I had to take chances he wouldn't pinch it and bolt—and the trick succeeded. But I guess we rather overplayed our part, for, instead of arresting this gentleman, he tried to pretend that he was Barrett as well. Three Barretts was more than I could stand for, so I thought it was time to beat it, and unfortunately, I was just a minute too late."

When Lord Jocelyn returned to his apartments later in the evening his first words were: "Fetch me a whisky and soda, Talbot—a stiff one."

"Gad," he muttered to himself, as he lighted a cigarette. "I'm a fair sleuth, I think—not! as the American idiom hath it."

TOO REMARKABLE TO FALL.

Ruined Old Barn Set Moss an Example and He Proceeded to Get Well.

In their first walk of the season at Wobrook-in-the-Hills the judge and his wife stopped at the Bartons' to inquire for Moss, who was reported to have been "more'n common ailin', 'long back." They found Mrs. Barton in the garden, weeding.

"Yes, he was awful bad all last winter," she said, gradually rising, and straightening up. "First he had grippe, an' that left his heart weak, an' 'long toward March his liver kind o' got out o' whack. Then Moss sent for doctor, an' he called it 'complication o' diseases.'"

"'You're a sick man,' says doctor.

"'I know that,' says Moss, 'thout you're tellin' me!' You know his way? But this complication, 'n you call it, is what stumps me. I guess I'd better get well'—an' he did!"

"'Suthin' in that, eh, squire?" said Moss, suddenly appearing from behind the house.

"Much!" asserted the judge.

"Didn't find my argyment in a book, same as you would, squire," Moss continued. "Got it up on the hills, from the old Collin's barn—member it?"

"I should say I did!" said the judge, smiling reminiscently; "roofless, practically and open on all sides!"

"But kep' a-standin' for nigh thutty year 'cause it was so ramshackle it didn't know which way to fall. My case exactly!" declared Moss Marton, with a twinkle.—Youth's Companion.

Beer Lured Snails.

That the common garden snail is not altogether a foe of the flowing bowl is the discovery of a dweller in the suburbs of Cologne. He was plagued by snails until the notion occurred to him, doubtless on his homeward journey from the Kneipe, to so if beer would not have the same attraction for them that it has for human beings.

To make the experiment he dug holes in different parts of the garden and after inserting in them his stock of old beer tumblers and broken bottles half filled them with beer and waited for results. During the evening he noted a pilgrimage of the snails to the half hidden bait and it was evident that the smell of the liquor was acting as an attraction. Closer observation showed that the snails were sucking up the beer and as it had its effect it caused the snails to lose their balance and fall into the glasses. In a few days the garden was clear of snails.

Busy.

"Biggins complains that he does several men's work."

Blue Devils.

When you find yourself in the possession of sundry blue devils, proceed to out-devil them. If they would have you go a mile go two miles. Put your will into it and see how blue you can be. "Pretend" you are a blue blooded aristocrat than any of those that have come to visit. Be polite to them and let them entertain you. Do anything they bid you do. Sit down and mourn and wail to their heart's content. Berate everything and everybody. Just try it. Blue devils are such contrary imps that they never stay long where they are well treated. Their good mission is to torment. A hearty welcome sends them flying.—Elizabeth Towne in Nautilus.

The Two Pursuits.

Josh—He's in New York.

Rube—Which side's he on by this time?

Rube—Is he stalkin' gold bricks or ready to buy 'em yet?

TOO MUCH FOR GRANTED

The late Sir Andrew Clarke was so ardent in his crusade against overeating and overdrinking, and so firm in his belief that in a large majority of cases diet would do far more than drugs, that he was a little too much inclined to take it for granted that his patients were self-indulgent to the ruin of their health. Among the many anecdotes to which his views gave rise the following is one of the most amusing:

A patient came to consult him, and was at once overwhelmed with directions on the subject of the life he should lead and the diet to which he should adhere. "Now, remember, only one glass of wine at each meal," the physician concluded, "and just one cigar after dinner won't hurt you. Good morning. Be sure you keep strictly to one cigar."

"One cigar!" said the patient. "But—"

"My dear sir," broke in Sir Andrew, somewhat testily, "I must insist. If I am to treat you, you must follow my directions. I know quite well you will find it hard, but it is absolutely necessary for your health."

The patient heaved a deep sigh. "All right, Sir Andrew. Since you insist, I will do my best. Good morning."

He went his way, but his health did not improve, and at the end of a few weeks he returned to the physician's consulting room.

"No better?" said the doctor, surprised. "But have you followed all my directions?"

"Absolutely," replied the visitor. "I must admit that the cigar was rather hard work at first, and in fact it made me feel ill, but I soon got used to it, and now I rather like it."

"Good heavens!" said Sir Andrew, on whom the truth dawned; "do you mean to tell me—"

"Yes, I had never smoked before."—London Telegraph.

Some Argument.

An ancient evil in St. Louis, corrected many years ago, was the system of street railway fare collection by which the passenger going over the long course of Broadway paid each side of Olive street.

The one-fare system went into effect when the Republicans were in power and was used as a campaign weapon. But a Kerry Patch orator, who had an affectionate constituency, took his opponents' club away from them and clouted them shrewdly over the ears with it, to the satisfaction of his hearers.

"When the Dimmycrats were in," he proclaimed, "ye wu-alked to yer wurruk an' paved a dime. Now that the Raypoblicans are in ye' wu'lk to yer wurruk and only pave a nickel."—Chicago Post.

THE COOL-HEADED FISHERMEN OF LABRADOR

In the conditions surrounding the industry of cod fishing there is a fascination for the islander that takes him back year after year. And most interesting of all is the fisherman himself. I am not certain, writes W. Lacey Amy in the Toronto Globe, but it really seems to be his supreme indifference to everything but the fish that makes him so attractive.

I have wandered in and out among them when they do not see a visitor in a month; I have seen them empty a boatload of shiny cod that equalled a fortnight's ordinary catch; I have watched them life a large horse into a tiny skiff where nothing save prayer appeared to offer any hope of its reaching its desination; I have helped them carry into the steamer's hospital men sick unto death, and have bade "good luck" to a patient returning from the hospital legless and helpless in life's fight; I have handed out food to the starving from the steamer's stores, and have heard them refuse to accept well paid work until the cod ran again. But I have never seen a cod fisherman excited.

The nature of the fisherman's life is strenuous enough to relieve him of the necessity of over-exertion to prevent falling asleep at inopportune moments. Although it requires but a small cloud and a tiny clap of thunder to keep him from the fishing grounds, scarcely a week passes that he is not forced to meet the terrible machination of storm and wave to compass his destruction. In his fizzily bobbing little boat he fights the sea, the most apathetic of men against the most relentless of nature's forces.

The fact that he cannot swim seems not to throw into his struggle any sign of fear; so long as a plank holds between him and water he can weather anything that blows. In the early spring long before the cod begin to run, he risks his life a thousand times across the treacherous ice floes in chase of the seal. In May while the winds are still icy, he makes a few extra cents in herring off the Magdalenes. A month later the Labrador fisherman may succeed in catching a few salmon if the ice is open. But when the cod run there is nothing but cod, except of late years when the Magdalenes have taken a liking for mackerel, however scarce they be.

Around the Magdalene Islands and at Gaspe there is an interval of lobster catching that means money, but along the Labrador coast there is nothing from July until the ice forms again in October but cod, or, as they call it, "fish." The Magdalener is a motley fisherman — herring, cod, mackerel, haddock—but the Labrador fisherman lives, sleeps, and smells of cod.

His home is in Newfoundland, the many quaint towns of the east coast sending out almost all their men to the north country just as soon as the ice opens a little in June. Early in that month the fishing schooners start on their long run down the coast, dodging through the ice fields, running into port in face of a storm or a threatening ice floe, and trusting to Providence more than to aught else for their safety.

It is a fearsome run, that first trek northward, staking wooden bottom against grinding, inexorable ice; and many a Newfoundland home is empty from a losing risk. But the seemingly indolent, passive fisherman is willing to take the chances to secure an early choice of fishing ground. All summer through he spends his days on the water, his evenings splitting the day's catch and his nights in the makeshift shacks that are deemed sufficient covering for the three or four months season in that northland.

As few women now venture north, the fishermen must perform all their own work in the treatment of the fish, They are unable to leave the fishing to attend to the drying, with the result that many tempt the fate of a winter sail along an inhospitable deserted coast by remaining north until the middle of November, spending the last few weeks in careful using every ray of sunshine to make the best sale for their wares, and then the fight back through the ever thickening ice and increasing storms is worse than the spring run.

A fishing village is the quaintest, raggedest spot on earth. City plan of the house or the road rights. In the ning does not even reach the location Magdalen Islands, where the land is more level and there is soil enough to make it a consideration, the fishhouses are placed with some common regard for a roadway. The bait and tackle and other odoriferous material are kept in the lower story, and the family sleeps, dines and sits in the single room above.

In Labrador there is no such thing as a road to consider. There has never been a horse nor an ox to use it, nor has a traveller attempted to make one settlement from another by any other method of transportation than a boat. There is practically no soil, the bare ,uneven, mountainous rock sinking abruptly into deep water. The fish houses are built wherever a ledge of rock offers a foothold and a staging of rough poles projects from the water side door, approached from the water by a rickety ladderwork of poles, perhaps ten, perhaps forty feet high.

In Newfoundland the fishing villages are clustered so closely to the water's edge that the village is built upward instead of horizontally. A fisherman could spend his whole life at his work without touching ground. Up the side of the cliff the stagings, fish houses, paths, cobblakes and the houses run, occupying as at the battery adjoining St. John's, not more than forty or fifty feet of horizontal surface for a large village. Land residence is an unfortunate necessity that is simplified to its limit.

There the fishermen live and die as their fathers did before them for generations. Their work, their homes, their lives, they themselves, will always be absorbing to the visitor with a love for the picturesque. Indifferent and phlegmatic they may appear, but they take chances that would mean certain death from heart failure or rashness to the most active. And through all their trials and perils they go on fishing, fully satisfied with the catch or conditions but thoughtless of any other occupation than the catching of the cod.

Unsightly Skin Diseases

Disfiguring skin diseases always seem to appear on the face and hands, so that they cause a feeling of shame, as well as pain and suffering.

Internal treatments have never proven very satisfactory in the treatment of eczema and similar skin troubles, but when Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied you can see for yourself and feel for yourself the benefits which are being obtained.

It soothes the inflamed, irritated skin so that itching ceases, and by its extraordinary healing power causes a new, smooth skin to form where the sores have been.

In every home there are many uses for Dr. Chase's Ointment, as for pimples and blackheads, barber's itch, chafing, erysipelas, chilblains and wherever there is itching skin or a sore or ulcer that refuses to heal. This ointment is pure, clean and pleasant to use and may be applied to the most delicate skin.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

The bright sunshine brings to view deposits of dust, cobwebs, etc., making the most thorough housekeeper wonder if dirt, like original sin, is not unavoidably omnipresent. Each room may have had its weekly sweeping and dusting, the closets, pantry, and cellar may have been subjected to the most careful supervision, and yet we find a stern necessity for the semi-annual recurrence of housecleaning, and visions of brooms, scrubbing brushes, and the various paraphernalia attendant flit before our mind.

It is better, in northern latitudes, not to begin this work too soon, for cold rainy days, with fireless rooms, are not conducive to the health, happiness ,or comfort of husband and children. Better wait until the middle of May, when the weather is sufficiently warm to allow the house to be thrown open without the added dread of neuralgia, coughs, rheumatism, etc. We shall still have abundance of time to complete our works, put in our screens, and have everything polished to the "pink of perfection" before the flies make their appearance.

Sweep the floors and wash them with hot water in which a liberal supply of borax has been dissolved. Pour naphtha freely about the casings and cracks in the floor, being careful never to use it with a lighted lamp or fire in the room—the odor will soon escape through the open windows. Persian insect powder may be blown into thecrevices, using a small pair of bellows furnished for the purpose. Insect powder combined with cayenne pepper is useful, when blown into the crevices about pantry shelves and floors, as a preventive of the ravages of mice and insects.

Mattresses should be thoroughly beaten if not sent away to be cleansed. Faded carpets may be brightened by sponging lightly with ammonia water, and those much soiled may be nicely cleaned with lukewarm soft water to which ox gall is aded in the proportion of one part gall to three of water, passing over the surface a cloth wrung nearly dry from this mixture and following with a dry one.

Before storing stoves for the summer, give them a coating of kerosene oil to prevent rusting. Furniture may be nicely polished by rubbing with sweet oil to which half its quantity of turpentine is added. Carpets which have not been used enough to justify taking up, may be freed from moths by spreading along the edges and seams a cloth wrung from hot water and passing a hot iron over it until dry.

* * * *

While Easter reminds us of the resurrection, it may benefit us to call fresh to memory a few facts regarding the burial of the Son of God. Joseph was that day mourner, sexton livery man. Had the entire charge of the whole occasion. Only four people atended the burial of the King of the Universe. Let this be consolatory to those who through small means or lack of large acquaintance, have but little demonstration of grief at the grave of their dead. It is not necessary. A long line of glittering equipages, two rows of silver handles, casket of costly wood, pall-bearers, scarfed and gloved, are not necessary.

Easter Plant Legends.

The Christian legends connected with plants generally explain their behaviour during Passion Week. The Athens still shivers with remorse, because when Christ passed, it had boldly faced the heavens instead of bowing its head in company with the other trees. The Saviour cast one look on it and the memory of that sorrowful glance is handed down even to this generation.

The willow was used for the scourges and ever since it has drooped its arms in misery. The elder is commonly supposed to be the tree upon which Judas hanged himself and it is not even to be touched as firewood. However, it affords a safe refuge in a storm, for not even lightning will deign so strike it. A fungus that grows on the elder and is now known as Jew's ears was originally called Judas' ears.

The wood sorrel was standing at the foot of the cross and received some drops of the precious blood. These she still carries. The Italians have the same legend and call this little blossom "alleluia," as if the very flowers rejoice in the great gift of the world. The scarlet anemone, too, is said to bear the stains of Christ's blood.

ABOUT THE HOUSE.

Many housekeepers are annoyed to find their silver tarnished, although they have carefully polished it before putting it away. Try putting in the silver chest or drawer a generous sized piece of camphor, and you will be delighted to find your "best" silver always ready for immediate use if it was free from tarnish when put away.

Grease on a wall can generally be eradicated by covering with a clean blotting paper and then passing a warm iron over it.

Mice object to camphor, which if put in places frequented by them, will drive them away completely.

Stains on flannels may be removed by applying equal quantities of yolk of egg and glycerine, and allowing it to soak for half an hour before the garment is washed.

To make the floors white use lime one part, three parts of sand, and two of soft soap. A little of this should be spread upon the boards with a scrubbing brush and rubbed thoroughly into the grain of the boards. Afterward the floor should be rinsed with clean water and dried. A few applications of this preparation, supplemented by a fair amount of elbow grease, will soon bring the boards up to a dazzling whiteness.

HOME.

A man can build a mansion
And furnish it throughout,
A man can build a palace
With lofty walls and stout;
A man can build a temple
With high and spacious dome,
But no man in the world can build
That precious thing called—Home.

No, 'tis our happy faculty,
O woman, far and wide,
To turn a cot or palace
Into something else beside—
Where brothers, sons and husbands, tired,
With willing footsteps come;
A place of rest, where love abounds—
A perfect kingdom—Home.

HOUSE-CLEANING NEGATIVES.

Don't follow the regulation plan of proceeding from attic to cellar when the work can be more conveniently accomplished by sundry departures from the established method of procedure.

Don't fail to remove all bric-a-brac from rooms and free it from dust before taking up the carpet. A whisk is useful in brushing out crevices.

Don't entertain the idea that the woodwork of furniture will be ruined by wiping it with a cloth wrung from tepid water.

Don't polish the parlour and give little attention to sleeping apartments. Disease germs lurk in apparently clean corners, for they are not of elephantine proportions.

Don't banish the fires. A low temperature in June causes more discomfort than in January and many times more ills.

FOLKS PAST FIFTY MUST USE CASCARETS

What glasses are to weak eyes, Cascarets are to weak bowels—a 10 cent box will truly amaze you.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural, It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

THREE TEA CAKES.

Ice Cream Cake with Coffee Filling

Whites of two eggs, butter or lard size of walnut, one cup sugar, one-half cup milk, one and one-half cups flour, two teaspons baking powder, a little salt and vanilla. Sift the sugar into the beaten whites of eggs. Make three layers. For top icing use confectioner's sugar wet with the clear coffee saved.

Coffee Filling.—Two teaspoons coffee, two-thirds cup cold water. Steep ten minutes and strain in coffee cup, saving one tablespoon in another dish and fill cup with milk. Mix yolks of two eggs, two tablespoons flour, one-half cup sugar, one tablespoon melted butter. Add to coffee and cook in double boiler as you would a boiled custard.

Marble Cake.

Light: One cupful of white sugar; half a cupful of butter; half a cupful of milk; two cupfuls of flour; whites of three eggs beaten very stiff; one teaspoonful of cream of tartar; half a teaspoonful of soda. Dark: Half a cupful of brown sugar; quarter of a cupful of butter; half a cupful of molasses; quarter of a cupful of milk; two cupfuls of flour; yolks of three eggs; half a nutmeg, grated; one teaspoonful of allspice; one teaspoonful of ammonia; one heaping teaspoonful baking powder.

White Mountain Cake.

Half a cupful of butter; two cupfuls of sugar; three and a quarter cupfuls of sifted flour; one cupful of milk; five eggs well beaten with the butter and sugar to a cream; three even teaspoonfuls of baking powder.

Bake in layers. For the filling take the whites of four eggs, beaten to a stiff froth, with one pound of fine sugar; flavour with essence of bitter almond; spread each layer of the cake thickly, place one on another, then ice all over again.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only preparation of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system.

THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.

THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it. Don't take a substitute of unknown composition for this medicine of known composition. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the druggist who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" is either misinformed or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most precious possession—your health—may be your life itself. See that you get what you ask for.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

Otherwise Backache May Get the Best of You

Nothing disturbs the human system more than pain whether it be in the form of headache, backache, neuralgia, stomachache or the pains peculiar to women. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are a standard remedy for pain, and are praised by a great army of men and women who have used them for years.

"A friend was down with LaGrippe and nearly crazed with awful backache. I gave her one Anti-Pain Pill and left another for her to take. They helped her right away, and she says she will never be without them again." Mrs. G. H. Webb, Auctionberg, O.

MAKE LAST PROTEST

Ulstermen Plan Another Huge Anti-Home Rule Rally at Which Mr. Bonar Law is to be Present

150,000 TO TAKE PART

London, April 8.—Belfast is to have another great anti-home rule demonstration on Easter Tuesday, two days before the date set for the introduction of the home rule bill by the House of Commons. This time there will be no necessity of moving troops into the city as was the case when Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, held his now historic meeting in the chief town of Ulster. An Irish member to make sure that Belfast would not again be put under practically what amounted to martial law, to enable a prominent politician to speak, asked the question in the House of Commons the other day. The reply of Augustine Birrell, the Irish Secretary, was that he thought the Nationalists could be depended upon not to interfere with free speech.

The head and centre of the demonstration is Andrew Bonar Law, the leader of the Unionist party. While he will be speaking before the bill is introduced in the Commons, the scope of the bill is now fairly well known. The bill itself will not be issued until after the Prime Minister has delivered his speech in introducing it.

The demonstration, in which 150,000 men will take part, will be held at the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society's grounds. Since the beginning of the year, meetings have been held all over Ulster to protest against home rule, and the meeting on April 9 will be a climax to the series. The men have been carefully drilled so that the parades and march past shall pass off without any hitch. The main portion of the participants will be drawn from the Unionist Clubs of Ireland and the Loyal Orange Order.

The men from the shipyards of Belfast, 5,000 in number, will also take part, although the head of the greatest of the shipbuilding concerns, Lord Pirie, a native of Quebec, is for home rule, his employes are against it.

In other parts of Ireland, Nationalists will hold home rule meetings, not because their constituents need conversion, but to keep up interest in the question.

There will also be a number of meetings in England, Wales and Scotland. It is rather interesting to note that the name "Gladstone" again appears among the list of Englishmen who are trying to convert the masses of England to the principle of self-government for the sister isle. W. G. C. Gladstone, grandson of the "grand old man," and member for Kilmarnock burgs, has been taking a prominent part in the campaign, in England and Scotland.

Winnipeg Case Settled.

Winnipeg, April 8.—With customary ceremony, Lieutenant-Governor D. C. Cameron prorogued the Legislature Saturday afternoon, the speech from the throne congratulating the province on the satisfactory settlement of the boundary question and on the legislation for control of a certain class of public utilities.

A settlement was reached at the eleventh hour between the two disputants, who have taken up so much of the time of the Legislature, viz., the City of Winnipeg and the Heese syndicate.

The basis of Saturday's agreement is that the city, in return for the withdrawel of the obnoxious "Manitoba power bill and the emasculation of the radial railways bill, agrees to purchase all poles in the city at valuation and rent space to the Winnipeg Electric Co., or its successors. This saves the city from an awkward legal tangle following on the action of its engineers in erecting poles and wires right over and even between the poles and wires of the company.

City officials express themselves as satisfied with the agreement. The consent of Sir William Mackenzie has yet to be obtained.

Had Boils On Neck and Arms.

Had Them Lanced But, Got No Relief Until He Used Burdock Blood Bitters.

Boils in themselves are not a dangerous trouble, but still, at the same time are very painful. They are caused entirely by bad blood, and for you to get rid of them it is absolutely necessary to put the blood into good condition. For this purpose there is no remedy that can compare with Burdock Blood Bitters. This preparation has been on the market for about 35 years, and has a reputation unequalled by any other for the making of pure, rich, red blood. Mr. H. J. Batten, Stratford, Ont., writes:—"I have been troubled for several weeks with boils on my neck and arms. I had them lanced by the doctor, but as soon as one went others came. I tried all kinds of so called remedies, but could get no relief till I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I am pleased to say I am now quite free from those most painful things, and feel much better in every respect.

"My boy, of nine years, had a rash come over his back and legs, so we gave him a few doses and now he is all right again."

Ottawa Motorists Sought by Police.

Ottawa, April 8.—An old lady of 77, Mrs. Huston of Pembroke, was knocked down and seriously injured by an automobile Saturday night. She is now in the hospital. The automobile carried no lights and gave no warning, knocking the victim on to the car tracks, close to an approaching street car, and dashed on. Passers-by dragged her from under the wheels of the street car and called an ambulance.

The victim was on the way to the hospital to see her daughter, who fell downstairs the same day and broke some of her ribs.

Slow to Capt. Bernier.

Ottawa, April 8.—The Government steamer Arctic will not go to the far north this year, to the disappointment of Capt. J. E. Bernier. For some reason this year's sailing for the Arctic is not approved of by the Government, and it is unknown if Bernier will visit his icy haunts again.

BEWARE Young Man

Its the Little Dandruff Germs That Are Causing Your Hair to Thin Out

Parisian Sage Stops Falling Hair

The clever young man of to-day doesn't take any chances on losing his hair. A man who is baldheaded at 30 looks like 45, and is placed at a disadvantage when seeking employment.

If you have dandruff it means down near the roots of your hair an army of dandruff germs are attacking the hair root and destroying its vitality.

Then hair falls out; grows thin and baldness results. Young man; put your faith in PARISIAN SAGE, it will stop falling hair, kill dandruff germs, abolish dandruff and itching scalp, or money back.

Killed With Billiard Cue.

Toronto, April 8.—Joseph Solina, 97 Walton street, the Italian, who was hit over the head with a billiard cue on Friday night died in St. Michael's Hospital at 6 o'clock last night.

Solina, who for the past two years had been employed as a boot black at Callicott and Finnigan's billiard room, 319 Yonge street, was sweeping out the premises shortly before midnight on Friday when he noticed a young man still staying in the room, although it was after the closing hour. He told him he must leave. This put the man in a rage and picking up a billiard cue he struck Solina a terrific blow over the back of the head. The man then rushed out.

The Italian was taken to the office of Dr. O'Reilly, 59 College street, and from there removed to the hospital. He was completely knocked out by the blow and was unable to speak afterwards. He died from a fracture of the skull.

A number of people claim to have recognised the man who struck the blow. They state that he was not a foreigner as had previously been stated. He is a fair-haired, clean-shaven man about five feet and a half tall and thirty years of age. There is a deep cut across his left cheek. Detective Stronse is now trying to locate him.

The body of Solina was removed to the morgue, where Coroner G. W. Graham opened an inquest at eleven o'clock this morning.

Father and Son Perish.

Toronto, April 8.—The number of those who have met death by gas suffocation in Toronto since the beginning of the year was brought up to eighteen by the suffocation of two Italians at a York street rooming house early Sunday morning. Another Italian who was found with them later was revived at St. Michael's Hospital.

The two Italians suffocated are Petro Rossi, aged about 45; and his son Narisiso Rossi, aged 10. Rossi Geovani, aged 25, a son-in-law of Petro Rossi, was the Italian who was revived.

Fatal Quarrel at the Falls.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., April 8.—Following an argument over a white slave alleged to have been imported from Canada, Joseph Scalzo shot and mortally wounded Robert Makin in East Falls street last Saturday. Makin died at 7.30 o'clock. A score of people hurrying home from work witnessed the shooting in the busy thoroughfare.

Immediately after the shooting Scalzo dodged through the crowd and was captured after a mile chase by the police.

The Dominion linen mills will be moved from Bracebridge to Guelph.

Rev. Dr. Thomas Griffith, a former prominent Methodist clergyman, died in Toronto yesterday.

The amendment to the school act in Manitoba, providing separate schools for Catholics, has become law without comment from the Opposition.

A despatch from Shanghai reported a serious anti-foreign sentiment, attributed to the delay of the powers in granting recognition to the Republic.

The Collingwood Shipbuilding Co. secured the contract to build a new lake steamer for the Keystone Company of Montreal in competition with British firms.

F. H. Clergue, Alex. Simpson of Ottawa and D. D. Porter of London, Eng., are behind a proposal to construct a two million dollar drydock at Sault Ste. Marie.

Mrs. Leonard of Ottawa has extended her offer for another year to contribute 10 per cent. of the amount subscribed for a women's residence at Queen's University.

The Paris police yesterday arrested another member of the automobile band which has been terrorising Paris and the suburbs for some weeks past. The man taken into custody is Raymond Callentin.

The contract has been awarded for the construction in Vancouver of the largest floating steel drydock on the Pacific Coast. It will accommodate the largest Pacific ships and will cost a million and a half.

Major-General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the U. S. army, predicts that more than 40,000 persons will be homeless and more then 10,000 others will have to be fed as a result of the Mississippi River flood.

While seeking toys, in a cupboard, Wilfred, the three-year-old son of Thomas O'Neil of Dresden, found some corrosive sublimate tablets and ate them. The doctors hope to be able to save the child's life.

At a meeting of Kingston Conservative Association, Major W. S. Hughes received the official recommendation for the position of warden of the penitentiary, to take the place of Dr. J. M. Platte, resigned.

Navigation on that portion of the St. Lawrence was opened yesterday afternoon by the arrival at Brockville of the ferry steamer Bigelow, which plowed her way through the ice from Morristown, directly across the stream.

Money Trust Inquiry.

Washington, April 8.—The "Money Trust" investigation will begin Monday before a sub-committee of the banking and currency committee of the House. Frank Vanderlip, a New York banker, and Milton E. Ailes, a Washington banker, both former officials of the Treasury Department, probably will be witnesses. Another who may be called is Former Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw, now a Philadelphia banker.

The committee also will take up through Comptroller of the Currency Murray the relations of the national government to banks. The comptroller's office has been requistioned for a host of statistical data which will enable the committee to get a line on the interlocking directorates of the big financial and industrial institutions of the country.

Men Ordered to Work.

London, April 8.—The decision of the Miners' Federation Saturday afternoon to order the men to resume work has brought intense relief to the whole country. The termination of the coal strike virtually amounts to raising a ruinous siege of the nation's industries, which has inflicted financial loss by far larger than would have been caused by a war with a great power of similar duration.

In Scotland the miners will return to the collieries to-day, but as to-day is a holiday in England and Wales, the strikers there will not return to the coal fields until to-morrow. In many of the mines two or three days more will elapse before repairs can be completed. By the end of the week, however, it is expected that every colliery will be in full swing.

THE SOUTHERN STATES.

Their History Rich in Events of Consequence to the Nation.

The south is especially rich in points of historic consequence, remarks a writer in Leslie's Weekly. At the outset Virginia was the most populous as well as the most powerful of all the states. As "the mother of presidents" she practically gave the law to the country from the accession of Washington in 1789 to the retirement of Monroe in 1825, except during the four years of John Adams in the presidency. In the next third of a century, with its Hayne, Calhoun, McDuffie and other statesmen of large influence, South Carolina was the center of events in the nation. Texas, with its boundary dispute with Mexico, precipitated the war between the latter and the United States, in which by conquest and purchase we obtained Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Nevada, California and parts of Colorado and Wyoming. The necessity for the control of the mouth of the Mississippi incited the negotiation with France which resulted in the annexation of the province of Louisiana, by which the area of the United States was doubled and all subsequent accessions of territory were rendered inevitable. Florida saw the earliest white settlements which were planted anywhere in the present United States. In the Wautauga colony in Tennessee self government made its advent west of the Alleghanies.

A Boomerang.

A gift for repartee is an invaluable weapon in the armory of the political orator when missiles are flying about. Some years ago a meeting was held in a west country constituency in England, which was largely attended by men on the other side. One of the "arguments" addressed to the candidate took the form of a particularly large cabbage. It missed its aim, however, as the speaker contrived to "field" it and, holding it up to the crowd, exclaimed, "One of our political opponents appears to have lost his head."—London Chronicle.

The Chance He Lost.

"Why are you so sad, Alice?" her mother asked.

"I've decided not to keep company with Mr. Jonesby any more."

"Dear me! Have you heard anything about him?"

"No. But last night when I said I wished that I was a man he merely asked me why, instead of getting excited and saying that life would be useful to him if I had not been born a girl."

All Broke.

"Is your father in?" the man with the valise asked.

"No," the boy at the front door said; "he's away somewhere breakin' a year lin' colt."

"Is your mother in?"

"You have an older brother, haven't you?"

"A MORAL QUESTION"

DEALING WITH THE GREAT DIVORCE QUESTION

Inability of the Argyle St. Drain to Carry Off the Surface Water Results in Aylmer Street Being Flooded and Cellars Are Invaded---East City Drain and Downie Street Creek Both on the Rampage--Floods Cause Trouble on the G.T.R. System in This District.

Welcome as was the phenomenally rapid disappearance of the snow on Friday and Saturday, it had a sequal which brought loss and great inconvenience to many Peterborough citizens. So quickly was the white mantle turned into water that the means provided by the city to take care of the spring freshets were unequal to the abnormal demands made upon them, and as a result there were bad floods in several sections. The chief sufferers were the people living near the old East City drain, those whose habitations are along the Downie street creek and the unfortunates who reside in the neighbourhood of the G.T.R. Lakefield branch from Argyle street as far south as Aylmer street and along that thoroughfare for several blocks. Cellars flooded, furnaces extinguished, coal supplies submerged, houses turned into temporary islands, these were some of the conditions many people had to contend with yesterday. There was no time to worry about the fact that the downpour of rain had spoiled the parade of Easter finery—the water rapidly rising in the cellar was enough to think about.

Probably the worst flood was that caused through the failure of the Argyle street drain into the river to carry off the water from the hill back of Nicholls Hospital and from the surrounding fields. The drain was unequal to the task and the water poured down the hill in a torrent, flooding Jordan Bros.' green houses on Argyle street and then flowing over the G. T. R. track followed the old channel alongside the track on down through the city, leaving a record of flooded cellars and yards as it went. It will be remembered that this drain was formerly used to carry off surface water from this neighbourhood emptying into White's creek at Murray street. Some years ago, however, the city fathers had a drain built along Argyle street to the river and until the present time this outlet had always proved satisfacotry. The old drain had been filled in at Aylmer street and as a result conditions were made much worse than they would otherwise have been had the former channel remained open. All Saturday afternoon the water continued to rush down along the Grand Trunk tracks, houses at the corner of Antrim street were similarly treated, in some other buildings near the track between that point and Edinburgh street were similarly treated in some cases the flood reaching the first floor of the house. This was the case with C. H. Smith's residence on Edinburgh street. The field below Edinburgh street and at the rear of the houses on the west side of Union street was turned into a lake, and from here the water poured into the cellars on Dublin street. In Jas. Bogue's residence the furnace was extinguished and considerable damage was done to the billiard table and other articles in the basement. Jas. Martin's house next door was also flooded and other residents in the same section had reason to remember the occurrence.

Reaching the junction of the track and Aylmer street, where the drain was blocked up, there was no other egress for the water than down the road and by five o'clock on Saturday Aylmer street from that point to the corner of London street was a river, with the water flowing a foot deep over the pavement. The houses on the west side of the street suffered severely ,every cellar in the block being filled to the rafters and the buildings were completely surrounded by water. Among the sufferers here were N. T. Lush, whose bakeshop and dwelling were flooded, Mrs. Thackeray, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Nelson, Ralph Carton, J. H. Renwick, ex-Ald. McIntyre and Mrs. Davidson. Mr. Renwick, who is choir leader and organist at George street Methodist church and whose wife is the soprano soloist there, was in a predicament last evening as to how to escape in time for the special Easter music. There was water to the depth of three feet around the house, both back and front and it looked as if a raft was about the only solution of the problem. However, Mr. and Mrs. Renwick succeeded in making their way over the verandahs of the neighbouring houses to the corner where they were rescued in a cab, which splashed through the flood. Those people who had furnaces found themselves shut off from their heat supply and the others who kept their fuel supply in the basement of their houses were no better off as in many cases the water was nearly up to the roof of the cellars.

Up to His Waist.

One of the many experiences of Saturday night was that of a young man who had worked late and was going home after midnight. On reaching the margin of the inundated part of McDonnel street, he thought it was only a little water on the sidewalk, but as he went further it became deeper. Finally, he turned to one side, thinking that he might have mistaken the walk in some way, but his first step brought him off the sidewalk and up to his waist in water. He waded home through parts less deep than that, but even in the house the carpets in the rooms on the ground floor were water-soaked from the flooded cellar. The water was practically above the floor.

At London street the stream branched off, one section invading the cellars on the south side of London St., between Bethune and Aylmer Sts., and the other continuing along Aylmer street to McDonnell, and then through the old channel into the creek. The houses on Aylmer street, between London and McDonnell received their share of water, the cellars being flooded but the conditions were not as bad as further up the street.

The water continued to rise steadily throughout Saturday afternoon and evening, but through the night there was a considerable decrease in the volume of the flood. However, the heavy rain yesterday morning, caused more trouble and had it continued throughout the night, the conditions would have been decidedly serious. The sudden cold snap had its effect however, and by 10 o'clock last night the water had considerably receded. This morning Aylmer street was dry again, but marks of the flood were evident in the ice crop that covered the road, pavements and lawns. Street Commissioner Evans was a busy man Saturday night, and yesterday, superintending the fight against the floods in different sections of the city, and received an involuntary bath on one of his expeditions when he got into a hole in the roadway. There was little that could be done to check the progress of the flood. Man-holes were kept open but could not accommodate the stream of water. Fire Chief Howard was on the job Saturday night, on Aylmer street, but was unable to accomplish anything, except the salvage of preserves, butter, etc.; from the submerged cellars, in that neighbourhood.

Trouble in East City.

Owing to the new drain, built by the city some years ago, becoming blocked with ice, on Saturday night, the surface water caused trouble in East City, and at 1 o'clock yesterday morning the assistance of the police was invoked by some of the cross-the-river residents. With the new outlet blocked up the water had followed the old channel, through the former village, and as a result, a number of cellars and yards along its route were flooded. Officers Meherry and Kidd went over to the scene of the trouble and awakened Street Inspector Alex. Fitzgerald, who went to the mouth of the new drain, and, with the assistance of the officers, succeeded in opening up the channel and the situation was relieved.

Downie Street Submerged.

The Downie Street creek, in the north-western portion of the city, always known as a trouble-maker, was on its bad behaviour again on Saturday, the water from the hills coming down the creek-bed like a mountain torrent, cellars and yards all along the line were invaded, and at Downie street, the road bed was under several feet of water. Conditions were better yesterday in spite of the rain; the water dropping considerably. Considerable damage was done to houses in the vicinity, and in Mr. Spenceley's residence the inmates had to remove their effects to the second floor.

The Creek Very High.

The spring freshets raised the water in White's creek, flowing through the centre of the city, to a very high level, the water nearly reaching the deck of some of the bridges. However little damage is reported from the neighbourhood of the creek, although the water invaded the boiler-room of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, and difficulty was experienced for a while this morning in getting up steam.

Ald Buller stated to the Examiner that he considered the trouble caused by the flood light, in comparison to what it might have been. The Argyle St. creek proved its worth in relieving the surplus of water which gathered its strength from Smith,

SHORTAGE IN TAXES

TO APPEAR ON THURSDAY

A charge of appropriating to himself $182.94 belonging to the Village of Havelock, or in the plainer words, of the summons of stealing that sum, has been laid against Mr. Fred Bennet, the former constable of the town. High County Constable Cochrane went to Havelock to-day to deliver the summons to Bennet, who will appear before Magistrate Edmison on Thursday.

In addition to his duties as constable, Mr. Bennet was the tax collector, and during the period from the 15th of October until the 10th of December, he is charged with misappropriating the sum above mentioned. Among those who will probably be called as witnesses are Messrs. J. P. Wright, Jas. Skene, W. Matthewson and Jas. W. Bryans.

SPECIAL K. OF C. TRAIN DELAYED

Initiation Ceremonies Being Held in City To-day

Spring freshets on the Lindsay line of the G. T. R. detained a special train from Orillia, bringing members of the Orillia and Lindsay Councils of the Knights of Columbus for the initiation that was held in the city to-day. This necessitated the postponement of the morning's work until this afternoon, as the first degree work was performed by the Orillia team. At 8.30 this morning the candidates, numbering about 70, attended high mass at St. Peter's Cathedral sung by Rev. Father McColl, assisted by Father McAuley, deacon, and Fr. McCarthy as sub-deacon. An eloquent sermon was preached to the Knights by Rev. Father Hurley, and afterwards Bishop O'Connor gave a short address.

Steamer "Ontario" Catches Fire and Captain Runs Her Aground, Then Gives Signal For Assistance

PASSENGERS RESCUED

Special to The Examiner.

NEW LONDON, CONN., April 8.—With stories of lives saved through bravery and the prompt action of Captain Bood and crew, coupled with the efficient working of the wireless distress signals, forty passengers of the Steamer Ontario from Baltimore to Boston, arrived here at noon to-day on a rescue tug.

The Ontario is hard aground on the rocks off Montauk Point, with fierce fires burning in her hold, and the crew still on board fighting them. Three revenue cutters and two lifeboats stand alongside ready to give assistance if the fight against the fire proves unavailing. Fire was discovered in the hold at 2 o'clock this morning. Captain Bood immediately ran his vessel on the rocks and ordered his wireless operator to send distress signals. They were received by the life-saving stations on shore as well as by the revenue cutters in the coast harbours. Within an hour or two, just in time to prevent a panic among the passengers, a tug arrived alongside and took them off. The fire was then breaking fiercely through the decks.

SIX MONTHS FOR PETTY THEFT

MANN LUMBER AND CHEESE BOX COY'S FACTORY IS VISITED BY DISASTROUS EARLY MORNING FIRE

Dublin St. Mill the Scene of a $6,000 Blaze on Sunday Morning Which Gave the Brigade a Stubborn Fight ---Fire Was Discovered at 4 O'clock, People Nearby Being Awakened by the Smoke.

The Mann Lumber and Cheese Box Company's factory on Dublin street, which has on more than one occasion been the scene of a serious collagration, was visited by a disastrous blaze early yesterday morning, which gave the fire brigade a hard battle and did considerable damage to the building, stock and machinery. Fire Chief Howard's estimate of the total loss is about $6,000.

The origin of the blaze is a mystery and the only theory that Chief Howard can advance is that the fire started from the electric wiring. It was discovered at 4 o'clock in the morning and had already obtained a good start. The smoke awakened some of the members of Mr. Thos. McGeachie's family, who live across the street, and an alarm was sent in from Box 42, at the corner of Dublin and George street. Mr. McGeachie, who is the manager of the company, hurried over to the building and attempted to enter the office to rescue some of his books, but was driven back by the flames. The brigade arrived in remarkably quick time, to find that the fire was making rapid headway. It had started in the north-eastern corner of the mill, where the contents were blazing merrily. However, Chief Howard and his men quickly had five streams from the hydrants on Dublin and George streets playing on the blaze and while the issue was doubtful for some time they won out a stubborn battle and succeeded in confining the fire to the quarter in which it had originated. The work of the firemen was made very difficult, not only by reason of the inflammable material, but also by the fact that the ground in front was so slippery with ice that it was no easy task to handle a heavy hose under the circumstances. The fire laddies stuck to their task, however, and at 8.30 had the blaze entirely under control and half an hour later extinguished completely so that the hose company were enabled to return to the hall.

The fire was not as spectacular as the last one in the same building, as the flames were kept inside and only for a moment at the start did the fire break outside. The result was that many people in the neighbourhood slept through the excitement unaware of the fact that there was a conflagration in progress nearby. There was a splendid water pressure, and with five lines of hose, 2200 feet in all, in operation, the brigade held and conquered the flames in splendid manner. It was fortunate indeed that the fire was discovered when it was—a few minutes' more start and there would have been but small chance of saving the mill.

Chief Howard estimates that the damage to the building will be in the neighbourhood of $3,000, to the stock about $1400, to the machinery $300 and to the belts $700. The insurance risks are divided up as follows: The Royal Fire Insurance Company $2,250, the Canadian Fire Insurance Company $2,250, both of these on the building, the Atlas Company $500 on the building and $500 on the machinery, the Canadian Fire Insurance Company $500 on the stock and the Aetna Company $1,000 on the stock.

ENTRANCE FEE OF $1

Children From Public Schools Will Be Called Upon, According to New Regulations

SOME ADVANCED FEES

Higehr education and higher education fees are apparently coming together. Public school inspectors have received a circular from the Department of Education at Toronto announcing a new schedule of examination fees. Most strikig in these charges is the innovation of $1 fee for High school entrance. Heretofore, there has been no charge for the entrance examination, but commencing this year an assessment of $1 will be levied on each pupil trying the examination. The senior high school entrance, the higher forms of the high schools and examinations for admittance to the collegiate institute taken by pupils who have taken several years at a continuation school, will now be $5.00. The fees for all other examinations, save that of entrance to normal schools, have also been boosted.

Local People In New York

Several Local Citizens Registered at the Victoria

NEW YORK, April 9th.—In spite of the fact that New York is filled with big up-to-date hostelries, some of the older hotels hold their own against the fashionable newcomers. The Hotel Victoria is one of these.

Here you will see representative men from all over the United States, Canada and Europe.

Nowhere will you find more picturesque characters and people well known in public life than at the Victoria.

As you sit in the big dining room you will hear some voice speaking with an accent that marks him as a native of Great Britain. At another table sits a big athletic sun burned man whom you recognize as one of Canada's well known sportsmen. A group of three men at another table in earnest conversation draws your attention. A word dropped and you know that the earnest speaker is Sir James Whitney, leader of the government of Ontario. Sometimes you even discover a romance of many years ago; that fine sturdy old man and his sweet faced wife came to the Victoria thirty five years ago on their wedding trip, and they again seek its comfort.

Canadians' are particularly partial to the Victoria and among those registered at present from Peterborough are Mr. and Mrs. James Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Travers.

WEDDING BELLS

PATTERSON-SMITH.

On Saturday afternoon, the Rev. Canon Davidson united in marriage Frederick Thomas Patterson and Helen Smith, both of Peterborough. The groom was supported by Mr. Fred Monson, while Miss Annie Duckham acted at bridesmaid.

Mr. and Mrs. Patterson will reside in Peterborough.

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT GRANTS TO WEST PETERBOROUGH ROADS

Buckhorn Road	$500
Cavendish Township Roads	300
Galway Township Roads	400
Harvey Township Roads	500
Pigeon Creek Road (Ennismore Township)	200

and the following appropriations have been made to supplement the grants made by the following townships of appropriations they have made under certain by-laws for the purpose of improving the roads:

Galway and Cavendish	$225
Harvey Township	375
Smith Township	250

From the above it will be seen that all the townships in the West Riding of Peterborough have been recognised, with the exception of North Monaghan. North Monaghan seemingly can be depended upon to vote Conservative all the time—hence its requirements are regarded as superfluous by a government so strongly addicted to strict economy as the Whitney Government. There is no road in Galway or Cavendish that is as bad or needs expenditure of government money as badly as the boundary road between North Monaghan and Cavan. This, however, does not say that either Mr. Peck or the Whitney Government are responsible for the fact that a road within six miles of Peterborough can only be called a road because it has been laid out as a road. That such a road is allowed to exist within six miles of a city is a disgrace to civilization.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION CHAIRMAN HAS RESIGNED

OTTAWA, APRIL 7.—It is understood that Hon. A. B. Morine, chairman of the public service commission, has tendered his resignation to the government. Mr. Morine feels that the charges which have been made against him are entirely groundless.

The resignation has not yet been accepted, as there are certain matters pending upon which the reports of accountants and other experts are to be received within a few days.

Mr. Morine will submit these reports to the government after the commissioners have considered them. The reports will be submitted to the government some time this week.

OTTAWA, APRIL 8.—While there has been no official announcement regarding the reported resignation of Hon. A. B. Morine, and the acceptance of the same by the Government, those members of the Cabinet who were get-atable, this morning didn't deny that this was the case. Already several names have been mentioned as his successor.

$250,000 FLOOD DAMAGES WERE SUSTAINED AT PARIS

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, APIRL 8.—From all accounts the heaviest sufferer from the Grand River floods, in Western Ontario, was Paris, Ont. Owing to the floods grounding wires, Paris could not be reached until this afternoon, when the following message came through to your correspondent here:

Paris, Ont.—The Grand reached a higher level than in sixty years, here. The business section was flooded, and thirty families rescued by boats during the early hours of Sunday from the submerged residential district, known as the flats. All Saturday night and Sunday every available man was engaged building a sandbag dike to prevent the river breaking its banks, near the dam. Thousands of sand bags were used, with success. Penmans, Limited, lost 1,000 tons of coal. A break in the natural gas main caused material inconvenience. The municipal street lighting system was partially submerged and put out of business. The total loss is estimated at $250,000.

THE HOPELESS QUEST.

Toronto has so dry an outlook for getting a good water supply, that the temperance people are hopeless of bringing about the water wagon regime and have abandoned the idea of a local option contest.

STILL BEHIND.

Sir James Whitney is still a lap behind. Work began to-day, Monday, on the clearing of the Elk Lake partway right of way, but the sending of the Elk Lake telegram months ago has not yet been cleared up.

MR. MORINE RESIGNS.

The Mail and Empire announces that Hon. A. B. Morine has resigned the chairmanship of the Public Service Commission, as the result of the Carvell charges. He says that these charges are groundless, but he does not desire "to hamper the work of the commission." If Mr. Morine is innocent, which he must be if the "charges are groundless," he should stick to his guns and defy his "enemies, slanderers and persecutors." Mr. Morine's resignation will be, by many, construed into an admission that the Carvell charges were not so "groundless" after all, and Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden's acceptance of it will be construed into concurrence in the admission

GOOD OUT OF EVIL.

In nearly all the processes and operations of nature, positive good comes out of apparent and momentary evil. The man who had his cellar flooded yesterday, will be willing to regard the cold snap as a blessing. It prevented the further forming of water from melting snow and permitted the flow-off of water already formed. Thus was prevented perhaps more serious flooding than that that has taken place in all parts of the province. Thus the cold "spell" that, gave spring so decided a set-back, was in some respects a good thing, and has relieved the situation in regard to dread of disastrous flooding, in Peterborough, if not in some places not so happily situated in this regard.

THE TIME TO ACT.

The Whitney Government has carried a resolution in the Legislature declaring that the treating system is the greatest evil of the drink traffic, and that its policy is to pass a law to abolish treating at the bar. The Whitney Government is in power; it has a big majority and can pass any legislation it desires. The Whitney Government is not only in power, but the Legislature is in session, and there is nothing to prevent it bringing in and passing a bill to abolish what it declares is the greatest evil in connection with the license system. It may be argued that there is not time to prepare a bill to be submitted to the Legislature at this session. But that seems to be a frivolous excuse. If he Government has reached the conclusion, as it has declared, that the treating system is the greatest evil, it must have been giving the subject serious consideration. If, as a result of this consideration, it has deemed the subject of sufficient importance to adopt the abolition of treating as a policy, it would, as a practical government, a government of action, have also considered the feasibility of the proposal, and have thought out a bill to give its policy effect. The Whitney Government would certainly not have adopted a policy, unless it was fully certain that it could be made effective by legislation. The excuse that it is not ready with a bill is only admissible upon the hypothesis that the Whitney Government had not thought of the question, nor given it consideration till Mr. Rowell came out with his banish-the-bar policy. The excuse of not being ready would only be tenable on the hypothesis that the Whitney Government adopted he abolition of the treating system to effect Mr. Rowell's policy, which seems to have exercised a strong appeal to he people—to draw a red-herring across the scent. Did the Whitney Government adopt the abolition of treating as a real policy or only as a matter of policy? If it is sincere in its present attitude towards temperance progress it should act now.

THE MORINE CHARGES.

The Halifax Herald, Mr. Borden's home organ, is disposed to treat the charges which have been preferred against Hon. A. B. Morine very seriously. It says:

> However unfounded, malicious and antiquated the charges may be; and however triumphantly Mr. Morine may be able to refute them, the fact that such charges have been made in parliament against the chairman of the investigating commission unquestionably places the government in an embarrassing position.
>
> It would be very ridiculous for the head of the investigating commission to hold his position and continue his investigations to the character of others, while his own character and public reputation are under investigation, or even questioned.
>
> The men intrusted with the responsible duty of investigating the honesty and capacity of the Ottawa departments must be men not only above reproach, but above suspicion—men at whom the finger even of slander cannot be pointed.
>
> And pending complete refutation of the charges made in parliament by Mr. Carvell, there is only one course open to Mr. Morine. Prompt resignation of his position will relieve Mr. Borden of embarrassment and render the country a service by thus facilitating the continuance of the investigations by a new man. This is the only course that will satisfy independent Conservatives and the country.

In fair play and justice to Mr. Morine, Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden, who has made Mr. Morine a government official, should submit the charges against him to investigaiton. If an investigation will give him definite acquittal from the charges made, so much the better for Mr. Morine and for Mr. Borden himself. He has placed Mr. Morine at the head of a commission to investigate into the conduct of civil servants and the chief investigator should be clear of reproach.

AS TO TREATING.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

How can treating be abolished so long as the bar is open? By what process of law could the government sanction the operation of a liquor bar and then attempt to prevent treating? The very suggestion itself tells of its own impossibility.

How for instance, could John Jones, a bricklayer, in a bar-room for his daily glass of beer, be prevented from asking Tom Brown, his carpenter chum on the same job, from having a drink? It would require an army of detectives, it would involve a system of espionage which would never be tolerated in a free country; and it would create a condition of public opinion which would result in a revulsion of feeling which would bring about a condition worse than now existing.

Take the city of Toronto itself, with its quarter-mile long bars, for example, and remember what takes place there between four and seven on Saturday afternoon, either in winter or summer. How could treating be prevented? Who would enforce the law? Who would undertake to summon constables to carry men who had treated one or two friends to the Court street police station or to the city hall? Why, it would require the whole of the city hall itself to provide accommodation for every man who treats in Toronto on a Saturday afternoon.

A POLICY OF PREVENTION.

(Toronto News.)

Just now we have an active campaign against consumption and a campaign against drinking. There is even denunciation of apartment houses. But in all this display of energy there is not any sign of constructive work to better living conditions.

Fresh air for twenty-four hours every day is admitted to be the best preventive measure against consumption. Societies and administrative bodies are building and supporting sanatoria for consumptives. Money is poured out so that persons in the early stages of phthisis may be cured by the fresh air treatment. Every effort is being made to abolish the disease. Little is being done to stamp out the cause. Slums are tolerated, rooming houses are allowed to thrive without competition from healthier dwellings for unattached men and women, and the practice of several families sharing one house is stimulated by a policy which protects the special interests of speculators in land and buildings. On the one hand we have a policy well calculated to assist the spread of phthisis. On the other hand we spend money without stint in attempting to cure the disease.

If we are to make any headway against phthisis, we must strike at the roo tof the evil. The disease is bred and developed wherever unhealthy living conditions are found. In slums, in overcrowded houses and in dwellings where there is insufficient light and air, consumption will thrive, and it will spread from such places to all parts of the city. Therefore the only effective means of fighting the disease lies in the provision of healthful homes for all workers.

Shiloh's Cure

THE SENATE ACTED IN THE INTERESTS OF THE PEOPLE

The Conservative Press is out hot-foot against the Senate for so amending the Tariff Commission Bill that the Government decided to drop the bill rather than accept the amendments proposed. It is probable that the Hon. W. T. White is thoroughly ashamed by this time of the exhibition of pique he gave during the consideration of the Senate amendments to the bill, and that he will be more disposed hereafter to listen to criticism and counsel. But the Minister of Finance must be judged by the attitude he assumed in the House toward a perfectly reasonable amendment. Had he been the hired man of the Big Interests that were so active in procuring his appointment he could not have fought more doggedly against the securing of information that would enable the Government to learn something of the financial position of industries seeking tariff increases.

The bill, as introduced by the Government and forced through the Commons, provided for inquiry by the Tariff Commissioners to the cost of raw materials, of transportation, and of labour. The condition of the workmen and their relative efficiency were also to be inquired into, and the prices of products and proportion of the price falling to the manufacturer and the middleman or distributor. But there was no suggestion that the real means of judging as to the need of protection were to be provided. The value of an industry to the country at large and its profits to the owners were not to be inquired into. The Senate therefore proposed in amendment that the Tariff Commission, in all cases where an increase of duty was proposed for the further protection of any industry, should report on the following points:

(a) The number of factories now existing, and the number of hands now employed, distinguishing men, women, and children.

(b) A list of the shareholders, with the shares held by each.

(c) Dividends paid during each of the preceding ten years.

(d) The wages of hands, and the number of hours worked per diem.

(e) The total amount of goods of the kind on which such increase of duty is demanded consumed in Canada, whether home-made or imported.

The core of the amendment is to be found in sub-section C. There may be occasions, such as the industrial panic of 1907-8, when, as a result of dumping, prices may be forced down to an unprofitable level despite moderate tariff protection. But no one would propose that Canada's tariff should be framed to prevent importation at such times. The average condition of a business over a considerable period of years must be taken into account in considering any request for higher duties. It is the duty of the Minister of Finance to prove to the people that there is real need for tariff increases before he grants them. The days are gone when Mr. White or any other person may get up in the House of Commons, and increase tariffs without making out a case and the only way in which a case can be made out is by submitting proof that the industry in question is not profitable.

It is the people's business Mr. White is called upon to conduct, and the people insist on being shown the reasons for tariff increases. In throwing the Tariff Commission Bill upon the scrap-heap rather than consent to the moderate amendements of the Senate Mr. White failed in his duty to the vast majority of his fellow-countrymen who pay tariff taxes and reap no benefit from them. He knows very well that few of the rich and powerful captains of industry, who are usually most insistent in demanding higher tariffs, would dare to appear before the country and show their profits over a ten-year period.

To suggest that the Senate amended the Tariff Commission Bill because of the "coaching" of Sir Wilfrid Laurier or of a desire to please him is not only untrue but absurd. The Senate amended the bill to prevent the Tariff Commission from being used as an ambush for an attack on the Canadian consumer. And it did right. Let the man who wants an increase in his protection come out in the open and tell what his profits have been. The people pay; the people must judge.—The Globe.

HOW MANITOBA GOT ITS SEPARATE SCHOOLS

Aftermath of the Boundary Settlement—How Governments in "Political" Sympathy Work Together

OTTAWA, APRIL 6.—The brief despatch that reached the city from Winnipeg to-day, announcing that the amendment to the Manitoba School Act, providing for Separate schools for Catholics had become law, created no surprise among those who have watched the trend of events. The admirers of the Borden government praise Mr. Borden for having courageously settled the Manitoba boundaries question, without imposing Separate schools on the augmented province. Those who know, those who see below the surface, and have more than an inkling of the game, are not surprised. They say that Mr. Borden could easily allay the criticism and hostility of those who wanted Separate schools as a condition of the boundary settlement, by the diplomatic intimation of the fact that they were provided for. Would the Nationalists and other Conservatives who were demanding Separate schools have taken the boundary settlement so quietly if there had not been an understanding that Hon. Mr. Roblin, the premier of Manitoba, and Hon. Robert Rogers, a former member of his government, and a member of the Borden government, with the knowledge and concurrence of Mr. Borden and the other members of the government, had arranged to have the Manitoba government deal with the question in a way to satisfy those who had resented the omission of the matter, from the boundary settlement? This way of dealing with the matter, is regarded as an easy way of getting the Borden government out of a hole, and justifying the loud-mouthed opponents of Separate schools and all they represent, in continued support of the government, which slipped the mantle of responsibility off its shoulders and placed it on the Manitoba government. That such an arrangement was possible lends force to the claim of those politicians who insist upon the beauty and blessing of having the Provincial governments in political sympathy with the government at Ottawa; the politically friendly Provincial governments are handy instruments of pulling out of the fire, chestnuts too hot for the Ottawa government to comfortably and safely handle. By virtue of such relations as these, Manitoba now has its Separate schools as a right of the minority; and while there will general satisfaction that a burning question is settled, the round-about, not to say sneaking way in which it was done, is not creditable to large statesmanship. Mr. Borden gained power by the support of the Orangemen and other Protestants of Ontario, and the Nationalists of Quebec and the Roblin government holds power by practically the same support. A good deal of praise is due the political manoeuvring that can whip these elements into approving what they voted against with so much enthusiasm.

WHITNEY STRATEGY.

(St. Thomas' Journal.)

One cannot help thinking that the declaration in favour of legislation "to prevent and put a stop to" the treating system in connection with the liquor traffic presented by Sir James Whitney in the legislature yesterday was dictated merely by party strategy.

Any man who has ever bought a drink for, or accepted one from, a friend must be convinced of the impracticability of any law "to prevent and put a stop to" the practice.

Even Sir James, who has been known in the long distant past to purchase liquid refreshments for his cronies, admits a series doubt as to the enforcement of such a law, although he asserts his belief that "it would in a short time destroy the desire for the habit of treating and our boys of to-day five years from now would never think of treating."

We credit Sir James with more sanity than to think that he believes anything of the kind.

Does he intend to carry the campaign against treating as far as the soda water fountain and the candy shop?

Treating is a fundamental courtesy of life and it is an absurdity to talk in a general way about preventing and stopping it. The only way to stop treating in either bar-rooms or candy shops is to abolish these places of business.

Sir James Whitney's amendment to Mr. Rowells' drastic policy of "Banish the bar" is but a back door openeu to permit of the escape of some of his temperance followers who find themselves in an awkward corner and weak in the knees.

An idea of the reliance that is to be placed on Sir James Whitney's promise may be gathered from the fact that when Mr. McNaught, one of his supporters, introduced into the House a few years ago a measure aimed at the treating system, he was persuaded by the Premier to withdraw it "as the time was not ripe." Apparently the time is no wonly ripe because Mr. Rowell has pinned his faith to a policy that will have a far more drastic effect on the treating system.

THE WEATHER

Usually Easter Sunday is a beautifully bright spring day, while the preceding Good Friday is frequently showery. This year, however the conditions were reversed Last Friday was an ideal Canadian spring day, clear and bright, with a temperature of 52 in the shade. Saturday was warmer still. In the afternoon the temperature rose to 61 degrees (the highest to date) and the snow went fast. During the night the weather became showery, and continued until shortly after noon. Total rainfall .75 of an inch. Highest temperature during the day, 51 degrees. Another decided change then occurred, and with the approach of evening a fall in temperature took place. Last night the lowest was 20 degrees—12 degrees of frost. This lowering of temperature put a check on the floods, which were becoming serious in some places.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

PITCHER GEORGE WINTER, now training with the Leafs at Macon.

Another Pitcher Added To Peterborough Roster

Edward Green, a New Jersey Phenom Who Won 29 Games Last Season Will be One of the Local's Regular Heavers.

SEVEN TWIRLERS SIGNED

Still another pitcher has been added to the Peterborough roster, making seven that have affixed their signature to the contract of the local Canadian League club. Secretary Davidson to-day received the contract of Edward Grean, a young Gloucester, N. J. phenom, who came to Peterborough with a great record. Manager Templin says that this boy, who is young and ambitious, will be one of the regulars of his pitching department. Working with the Oakleys, N. J. semi-pro. team last season, Green won 29 games out of 31, in which he performed. He has all kinds of stuff, and in addition, is a good hitter, as the box scores of some of his last season's performances indicate.

Templin has received a telegram from Bryan Nork, the Dickenson College pitcher, that he will be unable to report to Peterborough until May 20, as he has some examinations to write off next month. Nork promises to be a source of strength to Peterborough, as his inter-collegiate record is a good one. At present Manager Templin's pitching staff lines up as follows:

Harry Soull, Reading, Pa.
Edward Bartlett, Rochester, N.Y.
Percy Davis, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elmer D. Baver, Schuylkill, Haven, Pa.
Wm. Schaeffer, Reading, Pa.
Bryan Nork, Dickenson College, Carlisle, Pa.
Edward Green, Gloucester, N.J.

He proposes to carry four pitchers with the Club and the best quartette will get the berth. However, as Nork cannot report until the end of May, the club will have five pitchers on the list until that time. Manager Templin will pick them out after seeing them in action here.

Colds

Don't trifle with a cold; no one can tell what the end may be. Pneumonia, catarrh, chronic bronchitis and consumption invariably result from neglected colds. Nothing can be compared with

as a quick cure for colds and grip, and by its use the more serious diseases may be avoided.

THEY WANT TO MARRY MARTY O'TOOLE

Pittsburg $22,000 Pitcher is Not on the Market, However

HOT SPRINGS, ARK., APRIL 8.—Marty O'Toole is not looking for a wife. Not just now. Besides Marty has a girl—away back in the East. The big Irish boy is not prone to discuss his affairs of the heart, but he wants it scattered broadcast that he is not in the matrimonial market.

Somebody sent out a story that Marty was looking for a wife. Now the girls are looking for Marty, filling the mails with reams of wishy-washy stuff, describing their beautiful looks, their childish innocence, their love for ball players and high-class pitchers in particular, asking for photographs of the highpriced one, and a lot of other gush contemplated to direct the big South Framingham boy up the church aisle to the altar.

Marty says he can't imagine how the story that he is in search of a wife, got started. He knows that it is spreading with amazing rapidity, for almost every mail brings in proposals of marriage from girls ranging anywhere in age from the proverbial sweet sixteen to some who are willing to confess that they would prefer to keep their age a secret.

NEWS FROM THE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

(Ottawa Free Press)

Pitcher Larry Hannifan has come to terms with the Ottawa club, and will report to Manager Cook at Chatham on April 20th. Hannifan notified Frank Shaughnessy at Fort Wayne, and Shag wired the club late last night. Hannifan is a big right-handed pitcher, by no means a youngster, but just the man the club needs to use in a pinch. As a relief-pitcher, Shaughnessy declares he has few equals in the minor leagues. He is also a fine pinch hitter. Hannifan is a big fellow "well weighted" above and below. His home is at Winsted, Conn.

With Draper, a southpaw, and Hannifan, a right-hander, and every likelihood of Munson accepting terms soon, the club will require only a couple more twirlers to complete the pitching staff and these will be supplied by Shaughnessy from the Central League. George Winter, the Toronto pitcher, has requested Manager Cook to try out a young pitcher whom he says will be worth considerable money to the club at the end of the season.

Catcher "Red" Rowe, who is coaching the Trinity College baseball squad at Durham, North Carolina, sends word he is in elegant shape, and awaits orders to get into action with the rest of the team at Chatham. Rowe has a backstop, built on the lines of Johnnie Kling, sparingly built but possessing an erm of steel.

Shaughnessy sends word from Fort Wayne he is in the best of shape, and working hard. He says the club has the finest bunch of minor league material he ever saw, and hints he already has his eye on three or four he will turn over to Ottawa before the Central starts its schedule on April 24th.

Pitcher George Bencenbau, of Macon, Ga., South Atlantic League club, who pitched one of the games against Toronto last week, asks for a contract from the local club at any terms. On his own request he has been given his release by the Macon club as he cannot stand the torrid climate of the south. He is highly boosted by Bill Bradley, Toronto's third baseman.

The Berlin Club has written the local management to place them in communication with the Ottawa hotel people in regard to their first trip east for the opening of the season on May 16. They will be here four days.

MORE NICK-NAMES

Nickname Editor,—After glancing over the list of players, signed on for the Peterborough Ball team I think you may safely name them the Dreadnoughts.

"Nuff Sed."

Nickname Editor,—I would submit the following as a very appropriate name for the baseball team of Peterborough, as this city is known as the Electric City and Dynamic is the force that is essential to prosperity. I would call them the Peterborough Dynamics.

D. M.

Nickname Editor,—As the Peterborough Baseball Club are inquiring for a name for their team I prefer the name of "Neversweats," because they will never have to sweat to win a game.

$2,350 F. O. B. OSHAWA

The automobilist who delights in a motor that hums a steady though quiet tune—that is responsive to his controlling touch—that seems to laugh at hills and sandy roads—and who appreciates the little conveniences that add to his comfort—the Self-Starter, the complete Electric Light Plant, with separate dynamo—such a man should inspect McLaughlin-Buick Model "43".

The 40 to 50 H.P. Buick Motor provides ample reserve power for all emergencies.

The dependability to the manufacturer is more to be trusted than the cleverest arguments of the salesman. That is why the cautious purchaser of an automobile places more reliance on the reputation of the McLaughlin Car and its makers than on the most glowing promises of a salesman, however well they may be founded.

Your future satisfaction demands that your choice be a McLaughlin-Buick.

'The Pranks of a Pair of Twins

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Associaties, 1911.

Their names were Nina and Christina, but for miles around their home on the West creek turkey farm they were known as Nine and Ten. The Mason twins were never far apart. As little girls their pink sunbonneted heads bobbed in harmonious companionship over the rolling farm acres.

The Mason twins were very beautiful to look upon, and they were so similar in face and form that even their own father, Captain Dod Mason, couldn't tell them apart. They were sweet tempered, merry hearted girls, and they had never lacked for admirers, who led a most unhappy existence, for it amused the Mason twins to change characters and puzzle their prospective lovers almost into imbecility with their pranks.

But Cupid had been playing pranks with the twins themselves, and today Nine and Ten, busied with the work of their motherless home, were silent and distrait. Suddenly Nine spoke, her back turned to her sister, as she reached into the china closet:

"Ten," she began, faltering.

"Yes," replied Ten in the same sort of voice.

"Are you—are you engaged to Jack Nickerson?"

There was a little silence while Ten shook her duster out of the window. Then "How did you guess?" she asked in a low tone that tried to be gay.

"Oh, I thought so, that's all. I may as well tell you that I promised to marry Linn last night." Nine's voice sounded tragically hollow from the depths of the closet into which she persistently burrowed.

"Oh!" Ten cried sharply, and then she left the room. Nine heard her run hastily up the stairs to her own room. Listened to her light tread across the floor and then silence.

Nine withdrew her head and looked miserably around the sunshiny room. "I don't see what is the matter with her," she murmured. "If she's engaged to marry Linn she ought to be the happiest girl in the world—just fancy!"

Captain Dod Mason and his two partners, Linn Oswald and Jack Nickerson, had been riding around the ranges taking count of the flocks of turkeys. It was the shipping season, and soon the handsome bronze birds would be corralled and protestingly executed and hustled into the cold storage cars that even now awaited their coming on the spur tracks at Pento.

"My appetite tells me it's nearing dinner time, boys," said the captain genially as they concluded their conference. "If you can manage to get that last flock of gobblers out of that roost in the cottonwoods I'll telephone down to Pento for the gang to come up in the morning, and we'll start things going. Coming to the house now?"

"I'll be along presently," remarked Linn gloomily. "Guess I'll take another look at those chaps in the cottonwoods."

"Same here," added Jack Nickerson laconically, and together in moody silence they watched the captain's retund figure riding easily across the ranges, his horse gracefully rising over every split rail fence that impeded his progress.

"Fine old boy," said Linn, with a heavy sigh.

"Best ever—I say, Linn"— Jack's voice had lost its customary tone of assurance. He spoke almost shyly.

"Fire ahead," encouraged Linn recklessly, as if he knew what his companion was going to say and wanted to get it over with.

"I'm engaged to marry Ten Mason," blurted Jack suddenly.

"Then you ought to be the happiest man in the world," uttered Linn gravely as he held out his hand.

"Happier than the man who marries Nine?" demanded Jack jealously.

"Who told you?" Linn stared at him. "Told me what?" It was Jack's turn to stare.

"That I was engaged to marry Nine."

"I didn't know that you were engaged to her," said Jack shortly. "Congratulations—and all that, you know!"

"Thanks," said Linn dryly. "Going to ride down to the cottonwoods?"

They turned their horses and trotted slowly across the crisp pasture land. It was a frosty November day, and the tang of approaching winter was in the air.

When they drew near the cottonwoods they heard the raucous grumblings of the mammoth gobblers that were the pride of the ranch. By mutual assent Linn rode around to the south side of the little thicket, while Jack protected the eastern way of escape.

With a loud yell and a thunder of hoofs Linn raced through the thicket, driving the wandering birds before him. It would have worked all right, only the biggest gobbler of all and the leader of the flock lifted his huge spread of wings and flew up into the lower branches of the nearest tree, and soon he was followed by the entire flock of fifty, whose bulk darkened the sparsely clothed trees and hung, a menacing fierce, over the irate driver's head.

"Let 'em stay, then," said Linn crossly. "We can get 'em after dinner. What do you say?"

"Suits me," said Jack, and together they rode silently back to the farmhouse, where Nine and Ten were superintending the placing of the dinner on the table.

Nine was very pale, and her eyes were bright and sparkling, always a sign that things were going wrong with her. Ten's eyes looked as if she had been crying. It was a silent meal; there was universal embarrassment, and even Captain Dod, absorbed in his dinner, noted the silence.

"What's the matter?" he called blithely. "Everybody in the doldrums? Next time you folks ride ten miles to a moving picture show at Pento you better see something to laugh at! Didn't anything funny happen last night?

"Well, what's the news?" he went on sardonically. "Anything gone wrong? I've been approached by two young men and two young women this morning, and they've broke the news to me that they're all engaged to marry each other. I took it calmly, for there isn't a better pair of young chaps in the world than my two partners—not a word, boys—and if I've got to give them twins away I'd rather give them to you two, but"— He glared around at them once more and continued: "Somebody had made a mistake, and till it's found out I withdraw my consent, and I declare every one of you disengaged! Understand?"

Without waiting for a reply Captain Dod arose with dignity, and, grasping his plate of pudding in one hand and the pitcher of maple sirup in the other, he retired to the little room that served him as an office.

Silence still reigned at the table, but it was a relieved silence. Suddenly Linn excused himself and departed. Jack followed suit, and there remained no one but the twins staring dejectedly into their puddings.

All at once Nine spoke resentfully: "I think you've treated Jack horridly, Ten Mason, so there! He's the best fellow in the world and you can't appreciate him."

The twins arose and stared at each other across the table, then all at once they ran around and fell into each other's arms with little startled cries of understanding.

Out on the ranges Linn and Jack were riding back to the cottonwood clump. In their hands were long rawhide whips. Both were whistling merrily, and, while their eyes were evasive, each one seemed conscious of the other's rising spirits. Suddenly Jack became sunk in gloom. He spoke raspingly:

"Your hilarity over your release is not very complimentary to Nine."

A half hour later Nine and Ten walked demurely across the ranges, sent thither by their father with a message to his partners.

When the twins reached the southern confines of the first field there charged upon them a furious flock of bronze gobblers, heads down and heavy wings beating the ground. Close behind them raced Jack and Linn, their eyes tenderly anxious of the approaching twins, their mouths hard set with determination. The twins had played their last prank. They must be made to publicly acknowledge their foolishness.

For an instant the girls were rooted to the ground in terror. Forgotten were their father's instructions of how to circumvent the angry turkeys when the succulent but testy bird went on the rampage. The two pairs of blue eyes saw nothing save the approaching brown army and behind them the forms of the men they loved.

All at once Nine's feet found wings, and she darted to the right and toward Jack Nickerson, while to the left Ten swerved and, skirting the rushing flock, forgot everything save that Linn Oswald was there.

"Jack, Jack!" cried Nine.

"Linn, Linn!" screamed Ten.

"Here!" shouted the two men in chorus as they leaned down and each lifted his ladylove from impending danger.

At supper Captain Dod beamed upon their contented faces. "Engaged again?" he asked cheerfully. "Humph! Right side around now, I hope!"

"Oh, yes, indeed!" they all chorused, and the voices of the twins were most emphatic.

Would You Hear the Last Word in Spring Coat Fashions?

If so, come to our store and view the all-embracing and absolutely authentic stocks of brand new opera, automobile and dust coats that are here for your selection. We have attempted to include herein every new and practical style sanctioned by Fashion, and we seek your opinion upon our success.

One thing is sure, however, and that is the styles are more practical and more charming this season than they have been within our memory. Many radical changes from last season's auto-coats are evident—changes for the best, we believe, since they enhance the beauty and becomingness of the garments.

There are many distinctly different models, so that you will certainly find here the very coat style that best becomes you.

Come and investigate this assortment while it is at its height.

PRESENT YEAR WILL BE GOOD ONE FOR ONTARIO FARMERS

Special to The Examiner

TORONTO, ONT., April 8th. — Fall wheat in most parts of Ontario is further advanced than ever before at this season and the prospects are that following the severe winter and quick stepping spring, this is going to be one of the best years on record among the agriculturists of the province. This was the opinion given this morning by an experienced farmer who just stepped off the train after a quick trip from one end of the province to the other and back again. He said the farmers all through were very hopeful and prospects justified their greatest optimism.

BAD FLOODS IN LONDON AND OTHER PORTIONS OF PROVINCE

Special to The Examiner.

BRANTFORD, April 8th. — Mayor Hartman, City Engineer Jones and a dozen men kept an all-night vigil on the dykes which held back the Grand River from flooding West Brantford with its two thousand homes and big population. This morning came the welcome news that all danger was over for the present. The timely change in temperature and the freezing over of the surface of the water and the mud near the banks of the river, gave the floods a chance to subside.

Several of the factories here were unable to resume work to-day owing to flooding. The gas supply was cut off from the whole city owing to a bad breakage caused by floods.

TORONTO, April 8.—Reports this morning from all parts of Western Ontario, where the floods yesterday were very serious, indicate a fortunate subsidence in the waters caused by the change in temperature. The damage has already been very serious in low-lying towns and farming districts.

TORONTO, APRIL 8.—The conservative estimate of the losses caused by the spring floods in different parts of Ontario, which are the worst in half a century, would be seven hundred thousand dollars. Obviously, losses are difficult to estimate because it is practically impossible to calculate the damage suffered by farmers. It is known, however, that factories and places of business in over ten cities and towns suffered heavily while scores of bridges were destroyed. At Southampton, two, costing $60,000 were wrecked. At Galt the flood losses will total one hundred thousand, while Paris claims a loss of a quarter of a million.

OTTAWA, APRIL 8.— A drop of some few inches from the unprecedented flood level which the Rideau river yesterday reached as the result of the quick thaw and rainfall is the only cheering feature in the conditions in Ottawa and district to-day, and which may yet work serious damage unless the present cold snap is of sufficient duration to hold the spring freshets in check.

Three are Drowned.

SHERBROOKE, QUE., APRIL 8.— Edmond Poulin and two children were drowned when driving to a party on the road beside Coaticook river last night. The waters overflowed on to the highway and the party were drawn out into the swollen stream. The children's mother was rescued.

WHAT MEAN THE INITIATIVE REFERENDUM AND RECALL?

What are the Initiative, the Referendum, and the Recall? Many people have only a vague idea of what they are. All three propositions are importations from Switzerland, where the initiative and referendum have been in force for half a century. The fundamental principles are summed up as follows:

The Initiative.—If a certain percentage of voters wish a certain law adopted they can submit it to the legislature, which must in turn submit it to a referendum.

The Referendum.—If a certain number of voters demand an opportunity to vote upon a bill the Legislature must submit it to them and the people decide by a vote whether it shall or not become law, just as in New York State they vote upon an amendment to the state Constitution. The referendum can be demanded not only on bills previously proposed by the initiative, but upon bills which have their origin in the Legislature itself.

The Recall.—If a certain percentage of voters demand the right to decide whether a public official shall continue to hold office or must retire to private life the question must be submitted to the people at an election. If they vote against him he must give up his office, whether the term for which he was elected is anywhere near its end or is just beginning.

A dozen years ago but one state in this country (South Dakota) had the initiative and referendum. The recall had its American beginning in Los Angeles, where it was inserted in the city charter in 1908. Now all three propositions are in force in several states, differing in minor particulars, but substantially the same.—Utica Observer.

MILDRED AND ROUCLERE IN "PRINCESS IRIS"

Few attractions have been found more pleasing or delightful than Mildred and Rouclere in their successful, glittering, imaginative fantasy, "Princess Iris," which will be presented at the Grand on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 11, 12 and 13, and there are few along more capable than these sterling young artists in their line of work or more deserving of the success they are winning in every city they appear in. They have been prominent as the leading exponents of their mystic art for the last five years and have won for themselves thousands of admirers, who show by their presence wherever the occasion presents itself, the esteem in which they are held. It is the blending of a stage character with a personality which the public likes and, coupled with a production of merit, has been the keystone of the goal which Mildred and Rouclere have set for their beautiful, bewildering fantasy. "Princess Iris." The company is in keeping with the high standard set by these artists, and the scenic and electrical equipment is complete in every detail.

Among the many novel features of the performance is Mr. Rouclere's latest scenic conception, "Azra," showing the actual floating in the air over the stage and part of the auditorium of a living woman. This is only one of the "many surprises." Secure your seats in advance of the to insure against disappointment.

OBITUARY

MR. THOS. DERRY.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The regular gymnasium class will be held to-night at 8 o'clock.

The Intermediate Leaders will meet for floor work at 7.15 to-night.

Tuesday evening at 7.30 a meeting for the organization of a canoe club will be held. Every member who is interested in this fine sport is requested to attend, as there will be something of interest for every paddler attending.

Tuesday evening at 8.30 the Brownies will meet the Eko Club in a city league game and it should be one of the best games of the year.

Wednesday evening there will be a junior camp re-union when all the boys who were out to camp last year along with prospective ones for this year's camp, will spend the night in camp. The gymnasium will be used the baseball field and the plunge bath as Clear Lake. The big camp fire will be on hand along with many other camp features.

Thursday night will see the annual Junior Hexation Contest for 1912 conducted. This competition is conducted in almost every Y.M.C.A. gymnasium in Canada, and the local boys expect to get a slice of the "bacon" this year. The events will be 60 yard, potato race, running high jump, standing broad jump, 8 lb. shot put, fence vault, 160 yd. potato race. The contest will start at 7.45.

Friday evening at 9 o'clock, the Nemos and Hustlers meet in a city basketball league match.

Saturday at 8.15 the Midgets and Ramblers meet in a city juvenile basketball league game, after which the floor will be open for the seniors to work in some practice.

WHEN BLOOD IS POISON

The blood must be filtered, otherwise you are poisoned. If the kidneys fail the liver is overworked, and becomes torpid. By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you get both these filtering organs working right, and also ensure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and kidney disease.

RAILWAY NOTES

Tracks Submerged

The heavy rains of yesterday morning and the accompanying thaw caused a deal of inconveniences on the local system of the Grand Trunk last night and this morning by reason of the consequent floods. Although in the city the bulk of the snow had disappeared, there still remained in more exposed parts a considerable amount of that element, which joined the flow of rain water, and flooded many parts of the country.

A heavy flow, coming from the surrounding hills and the swamp flooded the track at Lily Lake to the extent of twelve to fourteen inches, and extended over a distance of half a mile. The road was therefore inaccessible. This morning's train from Port Hope to Toronto, due at 8.20, was met by the 8.20 Lakefield train, which, after having an extra coach attached, proceeded on its regular journey to Millbrook, and the passengers for Toronto were able to continue their journey via the old road. The Belleville train journeyed to Millbrook and returned with passengers for Peterborough from Toronto and other points west. Several years ago similar difficulty was experienced at this spot, but for a year or two the thaw has been more gradual.

The track was also flooded at the Gravel Pit, a short distance east of Blizzards, yesterday, and a train had to be sent to take the passengers off the Belleville local. A work train was then assigned the duty of clearing the Belleville track, which work was soon accomplished.

At the Tile Factory, near Port Hope, too, there was much water on the track, but the difficulty must have been quickly righted, for the trains are running on schedule.

Two washouts were also reported yesterday, one on the Whitley line, near Brooklyn, and another at Utoff, but these of course did not affect the local system.

HOMESEEKERS' AND SETTLERS' SPECIAL TRAINS TO WESTERN CANADA

Via Chicago and St. Paul, April 16th, 23rd, and 30th, and every second Tuesday thereafter, until Sept. 17th, inclusive. Tickets will also be on sale on certain dates via Sarnia and Northern Navigation Company. Special train will leave Toronto 10.30 p.m. on above dates for Edmonton, and points in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, stopping at all points on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway west of Winnipeg. Through coaches and Pullman Tourist Sleepers will be carried, fully equipped with bedding and porter in charge. Berths may be secured in sleepers at a low rate. This is an exceptional opportunity for those wishing to take advantage of the remarkably low one-way settlers' rates or round trip Homeseekers' excursions through the American cities. No change of cars. Secure tickets and berth reservations from any Grand Trunk Agent, or write A. E. Duff, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto. d-w-tf

Easter At All Saints.

Easter passed off quietly at All Saints. The church was beautifully and tastefully decorated by the ladies of the congregation. The rector, the Rev. R. B. Grobb, preached two fine sermons, in the morning on "The Resurrection of Jesus Christ," and in the evening on "Prosperity of Joseph." The music was tastefully rendered by the choir. The two anthems were very well sung. In the evening anthem "King of Kings," Mr. George Chandler, the choir master, sang the solo. The splendid playing of the young organist, Cyril H. Devey, was a feature of the day. In the morning, "The Holy City" was played beautifully, as was "As It Began to Dawn" at the evening service.

At St. John's.

The singing in splendid voice last night of a fully choral evensong, was brought to a climax by the impressive rendering of the "Hallelujah" chorus, (the whole congregation standing) by St. John's choir.

Months of steady work has culminated in three choral evenings, two of them in combination with the choir of All Saints, and with the pleasantly arduous festival music indispensable to Easter, constitutes a record that any choir may well be pleased with, and especially so, when, as with St. John's, the whole works are put on by unpaid singers.

Another choral recital will be put on shortly, in response to a request from the Chancel Guild.

G.T.R. CARS BURNED

Ignition of Charcoal Causes Total Loss of Five Cars at Keene Double Siding

Five cars, together with their contents, were entirely destroyed by fire last evening at the Keene double siding, near Blizzards, on the Grand Trunk system.

The conflagration, it is understood, started by the ignition of some charcoal with which one of the cars was loaded. The flames increased and ultimately caught several of the attached cars. A telephone message was received at the Peterborough depot from the section foreman at Keene and instantly an engine was sent to Keene and detached those cars which were not already ablaze. Although by this means a number of the cars were saved, no less than five were entirely destroyed. Two of the cars were loaded with grain, two with charcoal and one with luggage.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Emily Township Farmer Rescued in Nick of Time—Imprisoned in Eight Feet of Snow and Slush

An elderly man named Bigot had a narrow escape from drowning, near Bébt's Station, on Good Friday. He was driving a team of horses along a road which took a circuitous course through the fields. At the spot where the mishap occurred the snow was piled up to a height of about eight feet. While passing over it one of the horses missed its footing and slipped over the edge dragging its companion with it. Bigot jumped out of the sleigh and landed in some eight feet of snow and water.

Mr. Percy Naish of this city, who was visiting at the home of Mr. Latchford, which was but a short distance away from the scene of the accident, observed the struggles of the man, who was gradually sinking into the water and slush. He shouted to a number of sectionmen who were working near by and together with the assistance of a number of farmers, they effected a rescue. It required the united efforts of a dozen men with ropes and chains to drag the horses on to terra firma. The roadway, which was but a temporary one, had been undermined by the torrents of water which were pouring in from the nearby hills.

6. C. HAVE FIRST ANNUAL BANQUET

The first annual meeting of the O. C. Club was held on Thursday evening, in the supper parlour of Messrs. Hoopers' restaurant. Mr. C. A. Primeau presided. After full justice had been done to the viands placed before the assembly the chairman rendered a brief but well-worded address. The election of officers then took place, as follows:

Hon.-Pres.—Mr. Marino Venerando
Pres.—Mr. C. A. Primeau.
Vice-Pres.—H. W. Walkey.
Sec.—A. Rogers.
Treas.—C. J. Carroll.
Executive Committee—Messrs. Elliott, Campbell, E. B. Gilchrist, F. Sanderson and T. Buller.

The remainder of the evening was spent in music ad song. D'Angelo, the Italian tenor, was an acceptable addition to the musical element and his contributions were loudly applauded.

Four Alarms In One Hour

The fire brigade had a busy hour between 3 and 4 o'clock yesterday, when four alarms had to be attended to. The first came in at 3.10 from R. Hicks and Co.'s wood yard, where a broken power wire had fallen onto some wood, setting it on fire. The blaze was extinguished without any damage. At 3.30 there was an alarm from the Palace hotel, Hunter street, where a chimney fire caused the trouble. There was no damage. At 3.46 a chimney fire at the home of Mr. H. R. Lindsay, 650 George street, gave the brigade another run, and almost at the same moment there was a second call to the Palace hotel, Chief Howard looking after this one himself. There was no damage done in either case.

AN INTERESTING DISCOURSE ON MISSIONARY WORK IN CHINA

Was Given Last Night to the Congregation of Murray Street Baptist Church by Mr. H. D. Robertson B.A.

A very interesting sermon on 'Missionary Work in China' was delivered in Murray street Baptist church last evening by Mr. Harold D. Robertson, B.A. Mr. Robertson has for the past five years carried on the work of a missionary in that country and his address was appreciated by a very large congregation.

"There is a province in China," he said, "which is called the Land of the Great Past, the capital of which is of great historical interest. It is said that every religion that has exercised any influence with the Chinese people, started in this city. It was in this city that a band of missionaries commenced the work of evangelizing. There was discovered in the seventeenth century outside the borders of this city, a tablet. On this tablet, in Chinese characters, is related the story of the first mission to the Chinese; how the missionaries of the sixteenth century were welcomed by the reigning Emperor. We understand from the story that is written there that the Chinese Emperor wanted to establish for his people the Christian church. In later years when the Roman Catholics sent missionaries to China, it was to this city that they came and we find that they were kindly received by the Emperor, and allowed to preach to the Chinese people. It is said that the Emperor wrote the Pope, asking him to send one hundred missionaries to teach the truth of Christianity. It is an astonishing fact that the church, which must at that time have been flourishing, would not be remembered to-day were it not for the facts recorded on the tablet.

It was not until 1842 that a treaty was signed between representatives of Great Britain and the Chinese Emperor, promising protection to foreigners in this place, and it was not until 1860 that sufficient guarantee was given that foreign missionaries would be allowed to travel the coast towns of the Chinese Empire. But in two years the Province of Inland China had been traversed by these missionaries who were listened to sometimes with interest.

But we must come to more modern days to see any lasting results. In the year '95 men lost their lives in that country and it certainly is a beautiful thing to think that when a great mass meeting was held in London, Eng., to discuss the happening that there was no thought in the minds of that great assembly, otherwise than pity and a desire that more men should go to teach these people who knew not what they did, the truth of the Master.

Since that time there has been a new China and in every province of the Empire there are representatives of the English, American and Canadian nations, who are giving their lives to the service of the Chinese. The state of the Christian church in the Chinese Empire is of such a varied nature that it is impossible to speak of one church. The work in the different provinces has been carried on for many generations of time, and it has been found that these men who have preached and taught have been touched by the life of Jesus Christ and that they live for their fellow men.

The universities which have been established by the churches have been, and are being made, for men who shall preach the gospel, and these men are answering. The barrier which has come between the Chinese and foreigners in the past has been removed and the foreigner in China is in close touch with the Chinese people. There is no question on which they are not consulted—there is no body of men who exercise greater influence upon Chinese people than the missionaries.

This is the time when the Christians of that great land will be put to a great test. This is the time when the Christian message to the people will have been of service to them, and just as they realize that it is God moving in their missionary movements, so shall their efforts be successful. In every important centre of that great land there are established hospitals and churches, and yet there is no province in which there is more than one foreigner to fifty thousand Chinese. At the present time the message given there is only understood by a small percentage.

Jesus Christ has been born in China, but He has not yet risen to establish His church there. May we not hope and pray that the light of truth which came to us, may be taken to that land.

The hymns were suitable to the occasion and the address was of considerable interest to those interested in missionary work. The singing of the choir was also of a special and attractive nature.

PETERBOROUGH MAN HEAD OF COMMITTEE

Mr. R. G. Sturgeon a Member of Society of Engineers

Mr. R. G. Sturgeon attended the meeting in Toronto on Good Friday of the Ontario Society of Domestic Sanitary and Heating Engineers. The purpose of this organization is to promote the business of heating and sanitation with a view to organizing those persons who are qualified therein, in order that these trades may insure a standard of efficiency for the protection of the public and for the persons engaged in the business throughout Ontario. The meeting was well attended, representatives being present from as far west as Port Arthur and from Ottawa on the east. Mr. Sturgeon was appointed chairman of the Sanitation committee, with the power to appoint two other members, the committee to deal with questions regarding sanitation pertaining to the trade in the province. Mr. Sturgeon, who was the only engineer present from Peterborough, received his diploma which, with the others, were the first to be granted by the society. A charter has been received and this organization of engineers begins with the two-fold purpose of benefitting the members and the public with whom they have business relations.

DEAD MAN FORMERLY RESIDED HERE

TORONTO, APRIL 8.— The man who was picked up on West Market street with a fractured skull and died in St. Michael's Hospital, was Samuel Willinson, a former employee under James Marshall,, roadmaster for the G.T.R. at Belleville. The body is now at Harry Ranks' undertaking rooms. Coroner Adam Lynd on Saturday night opened an inquest, and after the jury had viewed the remains an adjournment was taken until April 22

The late Samuel Willinson referred to in the above despatch, is believed to be the same Samuel Willinson who, up to about nine years ago, was a resident of this city. He formerly kept a second hand store on Simcoe street, near the site of the Montgomery hotel. He resided on Hunter street and lived here for a number of years.

APPOINTMENTS FOR GRAIN COMMISSION

OTTAWA, APRIL 8.—It is understood here, although the appointments are not definitely made, that Prof. McGill, who investigated the question of grain handling and elevators for the Saskatchewan Government, is to be appointed Chairman of the Grain Commission, and that Mr. C. C. Cassels, Warehouse Commissioner at Winnipeg, and Mr. Frank Gibbs, Chief Grain Inspector, Fort William, formerly of this city, will be appointed members of the Commission.

The two gentlemen from Peterborough, who were applicants for an appointment on the Commission, are not mentioned.

THIS SPRING

If You Take Vinol Now You Will Be Strong All Summer.

"I can get along pretty well in the spring," said a feeble looking woman the other day "but the summer always pulls me down so much."

The trouble with her was that she did not know that she ought to prepare in spring to stand the summer—then she would get along all right.

Our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, Vinol, is the best spring medicine because it builds you up—makes you eat more and digest better—makes your blood rich and pure—puts healthy colour in your cheeks.

Mr. P .O. Barker, of Bowen's Mill, Ga., writes: "When I was badly run down last spring, I took Vinol in an effort to regain my health and strength, and it did not disappoint me. It made me feel as well as ever."

So, to all weak, pale, bloodless, run-down people we say "Take Vinol this spring and be strong all summer." We guarantee Vinol to satisfy you and refund your money if it does not. Peterboro' I.O.O.F.: Visit Lindsay

The Lindsay Warder says:

The brethren of Guiding Star Encampment No. 22, I. O. O. F., had a busy afternoon on Good Friday, when several members of the two Peterborough Encampments visited Lindsay, putting on a lodge of instruction.

Grand Patriarch Thompson of the Town of Windsor, was present and addressed the brethren.

The brethren from Hiawatha Encampment No. 66, Peterborough, conferred the R. P. Degree, Bro. G. F. Cairns, captain. Mount Hebron Encampment No. 56 conferred the P. Degree and the G. R. Degree, Bro. Thos. Duncan being the captain.

The degrees were beautifully exemplified, while the paraphernalia of the visiting brethren was gorgeous and magnificent.

After the conferring of the various degrees the Peterborough brethren were the guests of Guiding Star Encampment at the Royal Hotel.

The Peterborough visitors included the following: Brethren George J. Johnson, J. Buchanan, H. Barrett, J. Juby, R. Murduff, C. Gould, C. F. Cairns, George Baird, Geo. Sachern, John Richardson, J. Fred Reed, J. S. Londerwith, Kent Throop, E. Wand, Geo. C. Carruthers, R. E. Harding, B. M. Frederick, M. J. Kirn, W. J. Hooper and R. J. Craig.

RAILWAY NOTES

Rivetting on the superstructure of the Athabaska River Bridge has been completed and the dock was commenced on February 26th, so that trains are now able to cross upon it. The roundhouse at Fitzhugh has also been completed.

All work on the G. T. P. in the Province of Alberta is to be rushed this spring and the Calgary-Lethbridge line will be commenced as soon as the weather permits.

According to a statement recently issued by the American Bureau of Railway Economics, there were substantial increases in the wages of railway employees during the year 1911. Reports filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission show that the total compensation to the employees of railways over 500 miles long was $1,005,277,249. The total wage cost to the railways for the year was greater by $41,868,823 than it would have been at the rate of pay in effect during 1910 and greater by $69,297,676 than it would have been at the rates of pay in effect during 1909.

Notwithstanding an increase of 2,100 miles of railway operated there were fewer employees on the payrolls June 30th, 1911, than on the same date of the preceding year by 31,037, yet the total compensation paid to employees during 1911 was greater than that paid in 1910 by $49,976,216. This greater than the increase in the gross earnings of the railways by $23,595,121. The net revenue of the railways, which are what is left after paying operating expenses, fell off by $40,986,550 during this same period in which compensation increased nearly fifty million dollars.

Baptist Young People Approve Of "Abolish The Bar" Policy

The Young People's Union of the Baptist Church of Ontario and Quebec, assembled in the Bloor Street Baptist Church, Toronto, and unanimously passed the following resolution:

"Resolved, that we, the representatives of the B. Y. P. U. of Ontario and Quebec, gathered in annual convention, view with gratitude the increased attention being given to the evils of the drink traffic, and that we place ourselves on record as being most heartily in favour of the resolutions introduced by the leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature, which has as its objective the abolition of the bar and such other restrictions as may be best adapted to eliminate, as far as possible, the evils of the liquor traffic, but that we shall not be satisfied short of the total suppression of that traffic."

Twilight Musicale At Charlotte Street Church

There was a large attendance at the Twilight Musicale, held on Saturday last in Charlotte Street Methodist Church. The programme was both varied and select. Mr. Herbert Treneer, the popular organist of St. Andrew's church, rendered organ solos with his usual charm. In Flotow's overture to 'S'tradelli," where the many movements occasion a constant changing of stops, his manipulation of the instrument was superb. This overture seems to contain many characteristics of the music of the opera "Martha," another of Flotow's works, and forms a splendid organ selection. Mr. Treneer also rendered "Toccato," by Dubois. Another prominent feature of the entertainment was a magnificent violin solo, entitled "Reverie," one of the beautiful compositions of Vieuxtemps, rendered in a captivating manner by Miss Julia Choate.

Miss Pearl Brock, the well-known contralto, was heard to advantage in "O Divine Redeemer," a composition which is especially suited to her rich and powerful voice. Miss Pringle, the Soprano soloist, also distinguished herself in "Save Me, O God," by Randegger.

Some readings from the poets by Judge Huycke, formed a suitable diversion. His first reading was one of the most beautiful of Longfellow's immortal poems, namely, "The Legend Beautiful," another captivating poem read was one of Tennyson's, entitled "The Gleam."

Two male quartettes, entitled, "Christ the Lord is Risen To-day," and "Night of Rest" were ably rendered by Messrs. Lee, Fleming, Downey and Skitch.

The success of the event was such that the organizers intend to hold subsequent recitals.

EASTER MUSIC.

Well Rendered by Choir of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

The Easter music at the Church of the Sacred Heart was particularly well rendered. The soloists at the 10.30 o'clock mass and at vespers were Misses Bishop Bartley, A. Milloy and A. Shaw, and Messrs. Henshaw, R. Picard and Bartley.

MEN ARE HELPLESS AS CHILDREN

The sturdiest chap in town usually loses his self-control, and is utterly unable to regard his condition with the common sense that characterizes his every-day actions.

For example: He comes home tired, eats a heavy dinner and sits down to read and smoke away a quiet evening.

Suddenly he notices a weight on his stomach; then sharp pains around his heart, and a feeling of suffocation. Thoughts of "heart disease" rush over him, and in agony he fears the worst.

A couple of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets might have given him relief—might have saved him hours of suffering.

Carry a package of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets in your vest pocket or keep them in your room. Take one after each heavy meal, and ward off indigestion.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets relieve stomach troubles by aiding nature to supply those elements, the absence of which in the gastric juices, causes indigestion and dyspepsia. They tend to aid the stomach to digest all kinds of food and to quickly convert it into rich red blood.

We know what Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are and what they will do. We guarantee them to relieve indigestion and dyspepsia. If they fail, we will refund your money.

Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. Sold only at our store or by mail. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store,—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

SPRING FLOODS CAUSE INCONVENIENCE

and the surrounding country. The quantity of water was so great that even extraordinary provisions for a flood would hardly have sufficed. Ald. Hutler, as chairman of the Board of Works, was out on Saturday night, together with Street Commissioner Evans and a gang of men, and all that was possible was done to relieve the situation.

Half Mile of Road Under Water.

The road to Lakefield on the west side of the river was inundated for a distance of one half a mile in the vicinity of the Water Works dam. The culvert under the road at that point proved inadequate to carry off the water that flowed down from the farm lands on the west side of the road, and the result was a general overflow onto the road and the water followed the highway for a distance of nearly half a mile. Farmers from that section stated that the water was above the hubs of their buggies and was about eighteen inches deep.

The flow of water was particularly heavy and the resulting flood, according to one man who knows that part it bore out his prediction that the culvert built there several years ago was entirely too small for such emergencies. It was his opinion, he stated, that an auxiliary culvert would have to be built in order to prevent the repetition of floods resulting from the spring freshets.

THE RIVER VERY HIGH

The gradual melting of the snow in the back country, together with Saturday night's rain, has had its effect in increasing the volume of water passing beneath the Hunter street bridge during the last few days. The watershed of the Otonabee is an extensive one, and while the water has been collecting gradually as last week's sun melted the snow, it was not until Saturday night that it began to rise. Up to this morning it was reported to have risen three feet, which gives an idea of the suddenness with which the movement got under way. On Saturday the water was within an inch of the top of the street railway wharf and this morning a resident from that district stated that it was two feet over it.

BETTER INQUIRE AT POST OFFICE

To the Editor of The Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—The postman calls at my house between 11 and 12 o'clock on the Park street route, when his regular time is not later than 10 o'clock, and the noon mail that is due between 2 and 3 o'clock, is not delivered until between 5 and 6.

What is the matter with the post office? Is it in the assorting of the mail or is it in the delivery?

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

If "Citizen" will enquire at the post office he may be able to obtain the information desired. We find on enquiry that the letter carriers are supposed to leave the post office at 8 a.m. and 1 p.m.

TORONTO MURDER

Police Are Awaiting the Recovery of Rosenthal's Companion Before They Can Locate the Murderer

A REWARD LIKELY

Toronto, April 9.—The police are still waiting for the recovery of Eli Dunkelman, who is slightly improved but still in a critical condition at the General Hospital from the results of the beating he received when Joseph Rosenthal was murdered at the foot of Strachan avenue Friday night. In the recovery of Dunkelman or the results hoped for from the offering of a reward by Attorney-General Foy or the city police commissioners, who meet at the city hall this afternoon, is seen the only ray of hope for the production of a clue which shall lead to the identification of the men who perpetrated what is still likely to prove a double murder of the most brutal nature which has occurred in this city in years. It is also believed that the offer of a substantial reward would aid materially in the solution of the shooting of Rebecca Berger in Chestnut street a few weeks ago, and which is still unsolved.

Yesterday the police were busy following to the uttermost the few meagre and indefinite clues provided in the Rosenthal case. These were well nigh exhausted without any appreciable light being cast upon the case.

It has become known that considerable quantities of copper and brass have been stolen from the Hydro-electric storehouses and employes have been discharged right and left in an unavailing effort to stop this leakage. It is now known that about two weeks ago that Rosenthal with one Silverman purchased about 1,000 pounds of copper from the manager at the Duncan street station of the Hydro-electric for 7 1-2 cents a pound about a week ago, and Rosenthal is known to have had over a hundred dollars about this time. This purchase was made at about 10 o'clock in the morning, and it is understood that the manager had full authority to make the sale.

The police have also learned of another man who was formerly connected in a business way with Rosenthal, but with whom he quarreled about a year ago. One intimately connected with this man is said to fit the description of the man who was seeking to locate Rosenthal for several days before the murder, and who also called up Antipiski, another dealer in junk, seeking to sell scrap at about the same locality. The man who sought Rosenthal told Mr. Rosenthal, jr., over the telephone that he had always dealt with his father and would rather deal with him than with the Antipiteki's, but that he must locate him soon or he would be forced to take the business to the others.

At the hospital Dunkelman is still in a grave condition. He was conscious for a few moments yesterday, and when Silverman, referred to above, visited him he recognized him but was not allowed to carry on any conversation with him.

It is understood that the Attorney-General is considering offering a substantial reward for information which will lead to the arrest of the murderers, and the police commissioners, who meet this afternoon, will also consider the question of offering a reward.

FLOODS ABATING

Drop in the Temperature Worked Wonders Throughout the Province and Water Receded Everywhere

BAD AT DUNNVILLE

Brantford, April 9.—The Grand River yesterday subsided about three feet and all danger of possible flood is thought to be over. Large outlying districts south of Parkdale are still under water, however, and employes of the Dominion Gas Co. yesterday were unable to effect repairs in the main, the breaking of which shut Brantford, Galt and Paris off from all supply.

No trouble is expected in West Brantford, the dyke having stood the severest test since its construction, although the water surged to the very top of the embankment, no break resulted. Mayor Hartman and officials were greatly pleased at the turn of events here yesterday morning. Brantford city is practically suffering no damage, although outlying sections were inundated.

Dunnville's Sad Plight.

Dunnville, April 9.—Sunday night the citizens of the town worked incessantly building temporary dykes, but from present appearances these will not be sufficient as the water in the Grand River is continually rising.

The Erie Woollen Mills are under three feet of water and several other mills are also in danger of being flooded.

When the ice was going over the dam of the Long Bridge, a support of one of the cribs was dislodged, rendering the bridge unsafe.

The Government overseer, Mr. David Rogers, while working at one of the wasteweirs, lost his balance and was carried through the flume. Fortunately the current carried him to one side, where he was able to grasp an overhanging limb until aid arrived.

Saved Lad From Flood.

Brockville, April 9.—The spring freshet which overflowed the banks of the west end creek, doing considerable damage, was almost attended with a fatality. A lad named Parslow, playing on one of the bridges of the B. & W. Railway, fell into the raging stream and was being carried down when Supt. Curle noticed his predicament. The lad's hands were then only visible above the surface of the water. Curle plunged in and at great personal risk saved Parslow, in whom life was almost extinct.

Quebec Trains Held Up.

Montreal, April 9.—Cold weather has prevented further rising of the water in the Farnham and Chateauguay districts, where floods have seriously disturbed railway traffic, but has not done much to alleviate the situation as the tracks in several places are now covered with several inches of ice.

The bridge over the Yamaska River, near Farnham, which was damaged by ice yesterday, has been repaired and trains will run across it to-day. The New York Central tracks, near Chateauguay were covered yesterday by six inches of water for a distance of 800 yards, and the trains were considerably delayed.

The floods have done little damage so far except to the tracks of the railroads, no serious floods in any of the towns of this district being reported.

Chatham's Water Polluted.

Chatham, April 9.—The medical health officer has issued a warning to the people of Chatham to boil all drinking water until the high water subsides. Chatham obtains her drinking water from the river, but the reserve water tanked up in the large stand pipe has become exhausted, and the authorities find it necessary to filter the water direct from the river which, during the freshet season, does not insure the usual pure supply of water.

Rescuing Flood Victims.

Memphis, Tenn., April 9.—Rescue boats still were busy last night bringing from Wyanoke refugees who had been marooned on knolls, housetops and in a church since the levee break 32 miles south of Memphis on Saturday. Many were thinly clad. All were suffering from hunger and thirst. Several hundred had arrived early last night and it was expected that by to-day the number would be not less than a thousand.

The inundation of a portion of the northern section of Memphis, populated largely by negroes, has ceased; the water has receded, vacating houses; street car traffic through that part of the town has been resumed and the people are preparing to move back into their homes.

The first of the Wyanoke refugees to be rescued was an assembly of about 150 persons. They were in a church, where they had taken refuge when the levee broke. Their supplies of provisions were scanty.

Campbellford's Power Problem.

Cobourg, April 9.—At a meeting of the council of the Campbellford Board of Trade it was decided to ask Hon. Mr. Cochrane to visit Campbellford and investigate the power question there. The secretary has received a reply stating that the Minister will visit Campbellford at as early a date as possible.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Tenders for the new drydock to be built at Levis or Quebec have been called for by the Government.

Col. the Hon. A. J. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, who was seriously ill, returned to Toronto yesterday.

It is announced semi-officially that the Quebec provincial elections will take place by the end of May, probably on the 21st.

A deputation will call on the Ontario Government to ask for the establishment of a training school for the feeble-minded.

It is stated at Montreal that Hon. F. D. Monk will be appointed a judge and that Mr. H. B. Ames will succeed him as Minister of Public Works.

Under the eyes of his son, a man named Nap. Bois, 50 years old, of St. Joseph de Levis Que., committed suicide by jumping into the St. Lawrence River.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal Premiers of Nova Scotia, Quebec, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be tendered a banquet by Montreal Liberals on May 8.

Ellis Cameron, the 12-year-old son of Rev. P. C. Cameron of Windsor was bitten by a dog last week, and as a result the rabies scare there is greatly augmented.

Operations are beginning on the route of the Trent Valley Canal. Dredge No. 8 is at work at Hastings taking out the clay in part of the copper dam to let the high water through.

Navigation on Niagara River opened to-day with the movement of a number of lumber boats from Tonawanda to Buffalo in anticipation of the breaking up of the ice pack at the foot of Lake Erie.

The body of an unknown man which was found in an empty shack at Glenmorris, near Brantford, is lying at St. George awaiting identification. A small sum of money was found in the pockets of the deceased.

Jimmy Colliss, the seven-year-old son of a C.P.R. section foreman at Edrans, Man., blew off the head of his five-year-old sister Bessie with the charge of a loaded gun left by Galicians in an empty box car.

Threw Match Into Gasoline.

Hamilton, April 9.—A barrel of gasoline and Russell Martin, a small boy, who deliberately threw a match into it, was the cause of an explosion in the rear of McDougall and Fair's hardware store, McNab street, about 4.45 yesterday afternoon. According to the story told by Harry Hardcastle, an employe of the firm, a barrel of gasoline was being siphoned into the main tank in the lane at the side of the store and several boys came around to watch the operation and were ordered away. They would not go, and Hardcastle states that as soon as his back was turned young Martin deliberately threw a match into the bunhole and started to run. The resulting explosion was too quick for him, however, and he was severely burned about the arms and legs. He was immediately picked up and carried to Dr. Davey's office, King and Bay streets, and from there home, where he is reported to be doing nicely.

Kipling Denounces Home Rule.

London, April 9.—The home rule struggle, which promises to revive the animosities of Gladstonian times, will open this week with the presentation of the home rule bill in Parliament on Thursday morning. Rudyard Kipling is out this morning in The Morning Post with a slashing denunciatory poem.

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, had an enthusiastic reception on his arrival at Belfast for the Ulsterite demonstration to-day, which will open the Unionist campaign against the Government's policy.

A Knotty Tangle.

Chatham, April 9.—Adolphus Resume, a charity patient at the General Hospital, suffering from paralysis, was carried to the police court yesterday morning to answer to a charge of assaulting one of the nurses by kicking her in the abdomen. The charge against Resume was dismissed by the magistrate and he is now lying in the police court with no place to go.

Under the present law, the magistrate cannot direct him to be sent to a hospital and he is not a fit subject for a jail or a house of refuge.

MINERS AT WORK AGAIN

First Coal Mined Will Go to the Railways and Mills—Miner Leader Prophesies Another Strike

CAPITALISTS TO COMBINE

London, April 9.—If the surfacemen's grievances can be settled, there seems to be nothing to prevent a resumption throughout the coal fields of the United Kingdom. The protests of the Yorkshire and Fifeshire miners against the federation's decision are not likely to be followed by action. The Miners' Associations of these counties have already ordered the men to return.

The railway companies announce an early restoration of normal services. Some indication of the ideas in the minds of the labor leaders as to the future course of labor struggles was given in a speech delivered by Vernon Hartshorn at Muesteg, Wales, Sunday. He declared that the result of the coal strike would be the banding together of the coal owners, railway magnates, manufacturers, and owners and capitalists of all kinds to coerce the Government into adopting legislation to prevent the workers from ever again "holding up the nation." Therefore, he declared, the workers must similarly band themselves.

The transport workers, miners and railwaymen must unite in the preparation for the next fight, which, he said, would be of a magnitude never before seen.

General activity prevails in all the coal mining districts of Great Britain to-day. In Scotland and north Wales yesterday morning there was a large increase in the number of miners who descended the shafts, while in the English and southern Welsh coal fields, where the Easter holiday is being observed, small gangs of men went down the pits in order to clear the roadways and to prepare for a general resumption of work to-day, in compliance with the orders of the Miners' Federation on Saturday.

The full contingent of men is working in north Wales, and as the debris in most of the mines in that district was cleared away last week, thousands of tons of coal were raised yesterday morning.

In Flintshire, 6,000 miners have started work again, and in the Derbyshire pits the men are working in preparation for coal-getting time.

In Fifeshire, Scotland, the men have decided not to return until the funds in the treasury of the union, which amount to $150,000, have been exhausted, and as trouble is feared by the authorities between the strikers and the non-unionist men who have returned to work a large force of police has been drafted into the county. In southern Wales preparations have been made for a resumption, but the prospects there are not bright, as the enginemen, firemen, and other surface men have pledged themselves not to return to work until their demands also have been conceded.

The first coal mined will be supplied to the railroads and mills, so that three weeks at least will pass before the householders in the cities will be able to secure full supplies for domestic purposes at the usual prices, and it is estimated that an even larger period will elapse before normal conditions in foreign trade will be reached.

The Daddy of Good Shows

I have made a business of attracting the public to shows for 10 years and have never made a failure in all my life. I apply business methods to an amusement enterprise and the result is the same as if applied to any other legitimate business. You may have a good show shop or travelling attraction and yet fail to get the business you deserve, all on account of slip-shod methods of putting your show properly before the public. This is right where I shine.

I have secured a program for Chatham Carries Bylaw.

Chatham, April 9.—The industrial bylaw submitted to the ratepayers of Chatham yesterday was carried by over 350 above the three-fifths requirement of the total number of ratepayers. Through the passing of this bylaw the St. Mary's (Ohio) Machine Co. of St. Mary's, Ohio, will take over the Swift Motor Car Co. of this city and go extensively into the manufacture of gas, oil and gasoline engines.

Settlement Fails.

Hoquiam, Wash., April 9.—The strike of 1,900 millworkers on Gray's Harbor, which the mill owners hoped would collapse upon the offer of an increase of wages to $2.25 a day, became more serious when an effort was made to resume work yesterday. The men demand $2.50.

Lenses Must Be Changed

Lenses do not wear out, but eyes do. Every part of the body changes with advancing years, and our eyes in common with the rest of our physical being show the effects of age. We must therefore meet the changed conditions of the eyes. The glasses that you bought ten, or even three years ago, are not giving your eyes the proper assistance. As the eyes are wearing out year by year, your lenses should be made stronger or weaker to correspond to your failing vision.

I will be pleased to have you call and let me explain the advantages of Toric or curved lenses over the old style flat lens. I can and do guarantee satisfaction, because I have every modern convenience for accurate Eyesight Testing. I have the largest and most up-to-date Optical Stock in the city to choose from.

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

Doctors Could Not Help Mrs. Templeton—Regained Health through Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Hooper, Nebraska.—"I am very glad to tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. For five years I suffered from female troubles so I was scarcely able to do my work. I took doctors' medicines and used local treatments but was not helped. I had such awful bearing down pains and my back was so weak I could hardly walk and could not ride. I often had to sit up nights to sleep and my friends thought I could not live long. At my request my husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I commenced to take it. By the time I had taken the seventh bottle my health had returned and I began doing my washing and was a well woman. At one time for three weeks I did all the work for eighteen boarders with no signs of my old trouble returning. Many have taken your medicine after seeing what it did for me. I would not take $1000 and be where I was. You have my permission to use my name if it will aid anyone."—Mrs. SUSIE TEMPLETON, Hooper, Nebraska.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

THERE are some people in this world who live every moment of their lives in a strenuous, tense way, and then wonder why they are so tired at night, why they grow old so fast, why they don't get fat, or why they have nervous breakdowns. The real wonder is that they are not more tired at night, that they do not grow old more rapidly, that they aren't a great deal thinner, and that they don't more often have nervous breakdowns.

Walking is a splendid exercise, but not if you walk as if to a fire, with every nerve keyed up, and your mind passionately intent on your destination. And that is the way this type of person almost always walks, even if he is only out for an afternoon stroll and has all the time there is.

And not only do these folks do active things, such as walking, in an unnecessarily strenuous manner, but many things also which the normal person does quite passively they are tense and active about. Listening, for instance. I have known a person of this type to come home from an hour's lecture as tired as if she had been doing a family washing. The explanation of her exhaustion was that she disagreed with the speaker and had been sitting on the edge of her chair mentally contradicting every word he said. Naturally she had overspent her mental energy, and suffered and made other people suffer in consequence.

Perhaps you would not think that it would be possible to lie in bed strenuously, but it is, and a great many people do just this. They are so keyed up that bed at night, and how to relax even when they go to they don't know consequently sleep in cramped positions with many of their muscles still tense. The doctor at a big college for women always places great emphasis on just this point—"Don't lie in bed strenuously," she urges. "Remember what the bed is for. Let it hold you up. It is quite capable of doing that. Don't try to relieve the bed of part of your weight."

Occasionally strenuousness has its value; perpetual strenuousness always defeats its end. "I know what the trouble is," Theodore Parker once said in reference to some reforms about which he was vexed because they progressed too slowly to satisfy him, "The Lord isn't in a hurry and I am." People who are always in a hurry are always in trouble, because they are out of tune with the Infinite, and consequently out of tune with their best selves and the best of the world. The Universe is never in a hurry. It is written of Mary Lyons, the founder of Mt. Holyoke College, a woman who knew how to be strenuous but also knew how to be patient—"The quiet, undeviating round of the seasons gave her patience; she caught the secret of waiting fretlessly for the forces of God to act."

There are a great many people in this world who need to learn much from "the quiet, undeviating round of the seasons."

Are you one of them?

AN ARDENT WOOER

Only a Threat to Arrest Brought Him to His Senses

The devastating effect of the sparkling eyes, the silvery voices, the twinkling feet of music-hall artists upon the susceptible heart of youth received an amusing illustration and gave the frequenters of the cafes of Rome and Florence a topic for a few moments' pleasant chat. Two little stars of the cafe-chantant stage, Fedora and Pervinca Dinorak, sisters for the purpose of their profession, had an engagement in Florence, where their performance secured the general approval of the public, and the particular admiration of two tender-hearted youths—one a scion of the Florentine aristocracy, and the other a poor plebian. The latter, Carlo Mossotti, had already had his "crowded hour of glorious life," for he had been hailed as a victor on the running track. But in the race for the approving smiles of Fedora or Pervinca, or both, he was always outdone by the aristocrat. Whether he loved one more than the other or both equally is not quite certain; he was, at any rate, assidous in his attentions. And he had the gift of constancy, in which his aristocratic rival appears to have been lacking.

At the conclusion of their engagement at Florence, Fedora and Pervinca went to Rome, and were followed by the ex-runner, who, like a moth fluttering round a candle, was disconsolate unless he could bask in the radiance of their eyes. Having applauded them with all his might from his seat in the cafe-concert where they appeared, he went round afterwards to call upon them at the pension where they were staying. A pathetic scene took place. Carlo fell on his knees, and poured out a torrent of burning words. He wanted either Fedora or Pervinca, or both of them for himself alone. It would kill him if anybody ventured even so far as to kiss the hand of either of them.

At first the girls were inclined to laugh; then they realised that their ardent wooer was serious. They tried to make him understand the absurdity of his suit, but in vain. At last, while Fedora talked kindly to him, her sister went to the telephone to summon assistance, but before help arrived Carlo himself solved the difficulty by rushing away.

The police searched for him, as it was feared that he might have committed suicide. But, after his fierce outburst of passion, he appears to have come to his senses, and started to walk back to Florence. He wrote a contrite letter to his mother who had been anxious about his disappearance, asking her to pardon his youthful escapade.

A TEST OF LOVE

Girl Told Her Lover to Confess to Fraud and She Would Marry Him

How a young poet confessed to a girl friend that he had been spending upon her money got by fraud, and how she thereupon urged him to give himself up, promising to marry him when he became free, was brought to light at Christinia, by the arrest of a young man named Johnsen, on a charge of embezzling $12,500.

Johnsen went there at the age of 24 years, and got a situation in the offices of a large pulp manufacturer, living quietly with his mother and writing poems.

A year ago Johnsen made the acquaintance of a music-hall artist, and, leaving his mother, he took rooms in a hotel, and apparently in order to maintain his altered style, he began a series of frauds in the office. He altered cheques given him for collection, and pocketing the difference, rented a villa outside the town, declaring he had come into a fortune. Knowing that the frauds would be discovered, he went to Berlin with the music-hall artist, and there, the money coming to an end, one morning he confessed everything to her.

The girl was thunderstruck, and immediately tried to persuade him to go home, promising to help him and to marry him after he came out of prison.

At last he consented, but the girl, not being willing to spend a penny more of the stolen money, wired to the manager of a music-hall at Hamburg, where she got a new engagement and got him, moreover, to send her $100 in advance of her salary. With this she paid the fare of Johnsen to Christiania, where on his arrival Johnsen confessed and was arrested.

LIKE A MIRACLE

A Girl Thought to be Dying Suddenly Returned to Health

A girl of 21, in London, who was an invalid for seven years, bed-ridden for five, without the use of her limbs for two, who has been treated by 23 doctors one of whom satisfied himself that she had but a few hours to live, rose from the bed the next evening and, to the amazement of her relatives, walked about the room in full possession of all her physical and mental faculties, and these she has continued to retain.

The name of the patient is Dorothy Kerin. At 14 her parents saw with alarm that she was losing her health. Two years later she became altogether bed-ridden, and was sent to a sanatorium. After nine months she was sent home, worse rather than better. She contracted measles and other complaints, and spent several weeks in St. Bartholomew's Hospital.

A consumption hospital in Hampstead soon afterwards refused to admit her, as the disease had reached too advanced a stage. She went to a nursing home at St. Leonards, but was sent back for the same reason.

A home for incurables in Northwest London took her in, but sent her home in an ambulance two years ago. She had come home to die, but for all those months her extraordinary constitution withstood the encroaches of not one, but several, of the most terrible ailments known to medical science. Sight and hearing left her, and the watchers at her bedside gave up hope.

One evening she was still faintly conscious. "And suddenly," she says, "I saw a sheet of fire. I felt two warm hands take mine, and a voice that whispered to me that my sufferings were over. I put my hands to my eyes, looked up, and saw my father and mother standing by my bed. Then I got up and walked about. I have walked up and down stairs and made my bed. I don't feel ill a bit."

The doctor attending Miss Kerin, a well-known local practitioner, said the details of the patient's illness given above were true in every particular. "I have no explanation," he said. "I can only say that I cannot claim any of the credit for this extraordinary occurrence. Under my directions the patient had lived for weeks on brandy, opium, and starch. Her muscles had no strength. Where it comes from now baffles me. I can say absolutely nothing in explanation."

ASKED HER DRUGGIST TO GIVE HER SOMETHING.

She Had a Bad Cold, So He Recommended

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Mrs. James Warren, Edmonton, Alta., writes:—"Just a few words in favor of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A short time ago I contracted a bad cold, and tried several remedies, but had no good results. I asked my druggist to give me some good cough medicine he could recommend, so he told me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and I can safely say I have never tried anything like it. The first dose gave me relief, and I was completely cured of my cough before I had finished one bottle. It is the best cough remedy I have ever tried, and I can recommend it to everyone."

It is a remedy without an equal for coughs, colds, bronchitis, and all affection of the throat or lungs.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

FREAK DANCING

Gaining Favor With a Section of the English Public

Though the craze for freak dancing, prevalent in America has not invaded England, the American influence is plainly visible in many English ball-rooms, and eccentricities in dancing seem to be gaining favor with a section of the dancing public. There is no prospect of the introduction of New York's "Grizzly Bear Hug," which has been described as "a combination of a tired nigger's shuffle, a demonstration of Hackenschmidt in training, with an occasional kangaroo's leap thrown in," and if the description be accurate no one will regret its absence, but the Boston, the Double Boston, and the One-step are among the dances of American origin in vogue in England.

"The Boston," said one of London's most fashionable teachers of dancing, "has been popular for some time, and when properly danced is both graceful and pretty. The Double Boston, for some reason known as the Viennese, is a development of the same th g." The description that 'it is very like skating," conveys the better idea to the uninitiated. The One-step was originally a kind of modified cakewalk. The necessary qualification for success being "to walk with very loose knees like a cat on hot bricks." Since its introduction the "One-step" has developed considerably. The "Turkey Trot," the "Bunny Hug," the "Kangaroo Hop," and the "Wallaby Jump," are all the One-step in some form or another, and have been adopted for the sake of variety, not always with the happiest effect.

THE POTATO CANKER

Affects the Health of Consumers of Potatoes Having It

Potato canker has found its way across the Atlantic into Newfoundland with potatoes imported from Europe. Potato canker is a disease at present unknown in Canada. It is one of the most serious diseases known, affecting not only the farm lands on which potatoes are grown, but the disease is also directly injurious to the health of the consumer of affected potatoes. Boiling does not destroy the injurious properties. The disease is characterised by nodular excrescences, which may often be larger than the tuber itself. These "cankers" affect the eyes of the potato and are very small in the early stages. Any tubers found with smaller or larger outgrowths rising from where the eyes are situated, should under no condition be used for seed or table purposes. The introduction and establishment of this disease would seriously compromise one of the most important agricultural industries of Canada, viz., potato-growing. Farmers and consumers should be exceedingly careful in using potatoes that may have been imported from Great Britain or the continent of Europe. Suspicious-looking tubers should be destroyed by fire, and not be thrown on the ground, or the disease, if present, will establish itself permanently in the soil.

Redistribution Bill Before Provincial House

Proposed New Constituency to be Formed With Biggar as Seat

The Provincial Parliament now have the new Distribution Bill framed up into working shape, and this will erect 15 new seats and make 54 seats for the whole province.

One of these new seats is allotted to our own town of Biggar, with a district extending thirty miles from east to west and from sixty to ninety miles from north to south, the deflection being caused by the North Saskatchewan River.

Starting from a point on the line between ranges 11 and 12 on the top of township 30, and proceeding straight north along this line to the North Saskatchewan river in township 40; then along the line of the river till reaching the line between ranges 17 and 18 in township 44, and proceeding south along this line to the N. E. corner of township 30 in range 18, and from there straight east to the starting point.

This gives the Biggar constituency an area of somewhere about 2,400 square miles, and includes the towns of Biggar, South Battleford, Meacby, Traynor, Harris, Zealandia, Herschel, Palo, Ocean, Mead, Vance, Meota, and a lot of other smaller places inside the area mentioned above.

WORKMAN FELL FROM CHURCH ROOF

How it Feels to Hurtle Down Through Space to Old Mother Earth

Falling forty-eight feet head-foremost from a church roof and turning a somersault in the air, William Langdon, a bricklayer, had an extraordinary escape from death at Chatham, England. Langdon, who was repairing the roof of St. Paul's Church, attributes his escape to the fact that he fell on his feet. "The sensation of falling was pleasant enough," said Langdon, "It was the sudden stop that was so disagreeable. My mate and I had just finished fixing a 'grundys' under the roof ventilator and we were shifting the scaffolding, when I lost my balance and slid down the north side of the roof. I pitched headforemost to the ground and turned a somersault and landed between a heap of bricks and scaffold-poles. I fell on my feet but struck the earth so violently that I was thrown on my back."

Langdon was severely bruised about the back by his fall. It was his first accident, he added, in twenty-eight years.

SKIN-GRAFTING SAVES ARM

Frank Kerr Undergoes an Unusual Operation

Frank Kerr, a workman who suffered a serious injury to his right arm at the Ontario Rolling Bogus Works, Toronto, underwent a successful operation to save the limb at St. Michael's Hospital.

Kerr was operating a machine when the accident occurred. No bones were broken but the skin was so terribly bruised and torn around the elbow that it was found necessary to graft skin on the injured member, all other attempts at healing being of no avail. When informed that an operation would be necessary Kerr told the doctors that he was prepared to have the skin necessary to cover the wounds taken from different parts of the abdomen and grafted on the arm. This was done with success.

FLIES WITHOUT A START

Toronto Man Claims he Has Overcome Aviators' Principal Problem

E. L. Laur, Toronto, in applying to the Park Commissioner for the use of one of the buildings on the Exhibition Grounds for the storage of his aeroplanes stated that he believes he has invented a machine which will rise without a preliminary running start. He has been working on the principle for some time, and declares the important features of the invention have been accepted by the United States Patent Office, and that he will apply for a patent in Canada.

Most Capable Girls Emigrating

At the annual meeting of the Edinburgh Young Women's Christian Association, Mrs. Arnott, who presided, said she did not think there had ever previously been a year in which so many of their girls in service had emigrated to Canada and Australia. She was glad they should go for their own sakes, because they went to a bigger and wider sphere of life, giving them more chance for the future, but she was also sorry, because it was their very best girls that were going. It was a striking fact that the girls who went to the Colonies were the finest, cleverest, and most capable

A POWERFUL AND EFFECTIVE CURE

For Catarrh, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, Asthma.

Soothing Balsams Are Carried to the Sore, Congested Membranes — Cure Quickly and Completely.

Diseases of the breathing organs are, as you know, excited by germs so minute that only the microscope can reveal them; they are lodged in the tissues, develop there, and cause all the trouble. That is how consumption starts.

If the cause of the disease can be carried by air, why not the remedy? This conclusion lies at the root of the Catarrhozone treatment. The instrument through which you breathe fragrant, healing Catarrhozone splits up into minute particles this invaluable healing and curative agent, thereby enabling the air to carry it to the remotest ramifications of the breathing organs, and diffuses itself over their entire surfaces.

CATARRHOZONE ALWAYS CURES.

It would be absolutely impossible to breathe through a Catarrhozone inhaler without carrying this liquid to the remotest parts of the breathing apparatus. Upon healthy tissue it has no action but upon diseased tissue and upon the micro-organisms which infect diseased tissues its action is so wonderfully curative that the disease is completely abolished. Then the tissue heals.

EARLY TREATMENT IS WISE.

Catarrhozone is an ideal remedy for diseases of the throat, lungs, and nasal passages. If you have catarrh, or bronchitis, or asthma, all are equally curable by Catarrhozone. These diseases are all modifications of an inflammatory condition of the lining membranes of the throat and nasal passages. Under these conditions we call it catarrh. When it extends to the bronchial tubes, we call it bronchitis. The condition is the same, the causes which produce the diseases are identical, and the remedy, Catarrhozone, acts equally promptly and efficiently upon the different forms of this disease. Your case be curable. Get Catarrhozone today; two months treatment (guaranteed) price $1; small size 50c. Sold by all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

Weight of Trains

Lord Allerton has been commenting on the modern demand for convenience and luxury of every kind in travelling, and he asks us to think what this means in the increase of the weight of trains. While a few years ago trains were of about 160 tons weight, we now had trains running at an average speed of fifty miles an hour—and weighing 340 to 350 tons.

Consumption of Tobacco

Smokers in the United Kingdom last year consumed over 3,000,000 lbs. of tobacco more than in the previous year, involving an increased expenditure of $4,800,000, while the year's smoke-bill amounted to $150,000,000, which works out roughly at about 2 lbs. of tobacco per head of the whole population.

Burglar Proof Glass

Burglar-proof glass is now made in France. Embedded in the glass are light wires running in parallel transverse lines about an inch apart. The wires are connected to a battery, and carry a light charge of electricity. If the window is broken the electric current is broken, and a bell is caused to ring. The breaking of the wires releases a magnetic switch, causing the alarm to be given. Unless the glass is completely broken no alarm will be given.

Stitching Wounds by Machinery

A startling announcement comes from Paris. It is to the effect that a surgeon has invented a sewing machine for use after operations, and in place of the stitching by hand. The doctor in the first instance constructed his machine by way of recreation, but the results were such that he has felt justified in introducing it to members of the profession. Each stitch, it is said, occupies only the fraction of a second, and is effected with a precision far superior to that of the most deft fingers.

Ascent of a Boat

Even a steamboat can climb a hill by going up one step at a time. This remarkable performance can be witnessed several times daily during the season of navigation beside the Vrang waterfall in the Bandak Nordsje, Norway. At this point falls in the river prevent the passage of boats up or down, and a canal has been built round the rapids and falls. The ascent is made through a series of locks time, and in passing from the lower to the upper lock the boat is lifted about 90 ft.

Russian Royal Train

The Russian Royal Special train is the heaviest and the most luxurious in Europe. When it was constructed it was devised to stand a charge of dynamite, and it cannot be taken fast over most of the European lines, because their rails are too light. The train contains a small chapel, with an icon of peculiar sanctity, a library, bathrooms, drawing-room, dining-room, and bed-rooms. The servants' quarters are at the rear, and consist simply of an ordinary van-like carriage arranged with sleeping-bunks, as if on board ship. The train is so made that it can be changed to fit the Russian or the mid-European guage.

A STUDENT SPENDTHRIFT

Young Oxonian Managed to Get Nearly Half a Million Dollars in Debt

College debts during three years at Oxford amounting to the huge total of $126,000, were mentioned at the Bankruptcy Court in London, when a trustee in bankruptcy was appointed for Derrick J. Wernher, described as of no occupation.

In the year and a half since leaving Oxford, it was stated, he had amassed liabilities amounting to $400,000, by extravagant living and by racing and gambling. His racing losses totalled $25,000, and he lost by gambling about $40,000. He had at various times owned six racehorses, which he ran in the name of R. Desmond, but some months ago, he sold them for $15,000. Wernher's total liabilities are roughly estimated at about $425,000.

Freight Elevators in Warehouses
WHEREVER goods have to be handled
HAVE you an elevator problem?
You probably think not, but wouldn't it pay you to seek an elevator problem, if by so doing you can at the same time find the solution — a solution — that will make and keep your business more efficient? If your factory, store or warehouse is not equipped with proper elevator facilities you have a real elevator problem, whether you realize it or not.
THE OTIS-FENSOM ELEVATOR CO., Limited
Traders Bank Bldg., Toronto
This Booklet—
"Freight Elevators and Their Uses"
explains, in plain English, how the Otis-Fensom freight elevator may be applied to your business; and tells whether or not it will be advisable to so apply it. The systematic usefulness of this modern mechanical aid to any business that really needs it is thoroughly demonstrated.
It is a small booklet; but it carries a big message. Send for it—read it—study it. It's well worth the time and a post card.

AT HUDSON BAY

Archdeacon Renison Discourses on the Northern Territory

Speaking of the possibilities of Hudson Bay at a Canadian Club dinner at South Porcupine, Venerable Archdeacon Renison a missionary at Moose Factory for fifteen years, said that once when he was at the Parliament buildings in Toronto "a statesman whose suave manners and courtesy are widely celebrated" desired to see him. When he was introduced the statesman said: "I hear you are up on Hudson Bay. Now nothing can sail there at all, is not that so?" He had replied that the Hudson Bay boats had sailed there for 200 years, and they must have something to sail on. But the statesman was one of those that would not be convinced. "You tell this type of men that the thermometer had never been known to go below forty-two degrees below zero at Moose Factory," said the Archdeacon, "and they would answer 'that cannot be.'"

He would tell them that Moose Factory was in the same latitude as London, and they would say, "Well, that doesn't matter." He would say that they could grow any kind of vegetables and produce at Moose Factory and they would not believe him. What were they to do with that kind of people?

Archdeacon Renison called Hudson Bay the Mediterranean of Canada, so vast in extent that the United Kingdom could be put into it and a vessel could sail round it without ever catching sight of land. He knew that Hudson Bay was navigable indeed for five months in the year, and he believed that if breakwaters were built the Moose River could be made navigable for vessels of moderate draught.

Enough salt-water hay grew along the shores of Hudson Bay to feed millions of cattle, and he believed that in the years to come no small population would be found on the shores of James Bay. He made an impassioned plea for the use of the Indian not as a third-rate blacksmith or carpenter, but in the sphere where he excelled—namely, as a fire ranger and a guide instead of the tyros who where sent out from the colleges.

Suffered With Nerve Trouble For Two Years.

IT WAS IMPOSSIBLE FOR HIM TO SLEEP.

Diseases of the nervous system are very common. All the organs of the body may be sound while the nervous system alone may be diseased, therefore it is necessary for anyone suffering from any nervous trouble to procure a remedy which will at once quieten the nerves and build up the system.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will do this for you, providing you give them a fair trial.

Mr. Chas. W. Wood, Montreal, Que., writes:—"For two years I had suffered with nerve trouble, and it was impossible for me to sleep. It did not matter what time I went to bed, in the morning I was even worse than the night before. I consulted a doctor, and he gave me a tonic to take a half hour before going to bed. It was all right for a time, but the old trouble returned with greater force than before. One of the boys, who works with me, gave me half a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I took them and I got such satisfaction that I got another box, and before I finished it I could enjoy sleep from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m., and now feel good."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

AEROPLANE FLIGHTS.

Forces That Operate to Keep Flying Machines From Falling.

An aeroplane being any flat or slightly curved surface propelled through the air, its inquiring mind may well ask, observes that careful student of aviation, Waldemar Kaempffert: Why does it stay aloft? Why does it not fall? It is considerably heavier than air. It is the air pressure beneath the plane and the motion of the plane, explains Mr. Kaempffert, that keep it up.

A balloon can remain stationary over a given spot in a calm, but an aeroplane must constantly move if it is to remain in the air. The monoplane and biplanes are somewhat in the position of a skater on thin ice. The skater must move fast enough to reach a new section of ice before he falls; the aeroplane must move fast enough to reach a new section of air before it falls; hence the aeroplane is constantly struggling with gravitation. And Mr. Waldemar Kaempffert observes further in the course of his elucidation:

"The simplest and most familiar example of an aeroplane is the kite of our boyhood days. We all remember how we kept it aloft by holding it against the wind or by running with it if there happened to be only a gentle breeze. When the wind stopped altogether or the string broke, the kite fell. Above all things it was necessary to hold the kite's surface toward the wind—an end which we accomplished with a string.

"The eagle is an animated kite without a string. It keeps its outspread wings to the wind by muscular power. If we can find a substitute for the string—some device, in other words, which will enable us to hold the kite in the proper direction—we have invented a flying machine. The pull or the thrust of an engine driven propeller is the accepted substitute for the string of a kite and the muscles of an eagle.

"If only these simple principles were involved in a solution of the age old problem of artificial flight, aeroplanes would have skimmed the air decades ago."—Current Literature.

JUPITER'S RED SPOT.

The Great Planet May Be the World of the Future.

The planet Jupiter, whose volume is 1,279 times that of the earth and superior in dimensions and weight to all the other planets put together, is just now attracting the attention of astronomers.

M. Giacobini of the Paris observatory, who has made a special study of Jupiter, has described a red spot which possesses a relative fixity, but within the last year its mobility has increased in great proportion and its longitude by about thirty degrees.

M. Antoniadi in an article in L'Astronomie says that the great red spot is the first continent which is in course of formation on the big planet, the rest being still in an incandescent liquid state, as the earth was when the first continents were born.

M. Camille Flammarion, the famous French astronomer, in speaking of this phenomenon on the great planet says: "We are assisting at the creation of a world. Under our dazzled eyes a new world is being created in the infinity, and in Jupiter we hail the world of the future."

First House In Halifax.

The distinguished geographer, Sir Clements Markham, K.C.B., F.R.S., has entered upon his eighty-second year. He comes of a family famous for its antiquity and valour. A very interesting record of the Markham's history, edited by Sir Clements, was compiled by his father, the late Rev. David Markham, sometime Canon of Windsor. The house has given many gallant sons to both army and navy. Major William Markham, born 1636, who served in Spain under Peterborough and Stanhope, is said to have built the first house in Halifax, Nova Scotia. He is buried in the North Cloister of Westminster Abbey, where also lie the remains of his eldest son, who became Archbishop of York. The archbishop's second son entered the navy, rose to the rank of admiral, and twice served as a Lord of the Admiralty.

Sir Clement has been both secretary and president of the Royal Geographical Society, and recipient of one of its gold medals for research.

REGION OF WARMTH.

Hot Springs Are Reported to the North of Porcupine.

Superintendent A. E. Snyder, commanding the Royal Northwest Mounted Police at Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, reported to the commissioner in 1909 that from north of the now famous Porcupine district in northern Ontario there had come repeated rumors of the existence of a wonderful "tropical" region which was still inhabited by mastodons, says the Success magazine. "The Indians," concludes Superintendent Snyder, "report having seen the gigantic tracks of these animals."

But little attention was paid to these stories, until in November of last year Mr. C. J. McIntyre and two companions reported a most amazing discovery north of Porcupine. They were traveling by dog-sledge, with the thermometer at forty below, when to their astonishment the temperature began to rise so fast that within a space of two hours they had thrown off their garments, and the snow was soft underfoot.

"It seemed," said Mr. McIntyre, "as though we were suddenly passing from winter into spring."

Soon after they came upon the first of numberless hot springs, the snow disappeared entirely, and dense vegetation took the place of the stunted bush and timber of the plains. Because of necessarily slow travel on foot the explorers were not able to determine the extent of this wonderful oasis in the far northern wilderness. They found several good-sized rivers flowing with warm water and teeming with fish, and the country was alive with bear, caribou, ducks, pheasants, wild geese, and other game, and gold was found in a number of creeks.

Mapping Alaska.

Previous to 1896 our knowledge of Alaska was crude and imperfect. The coast mountains were known, but the two great inland ranges, one of which contains the highest peaks on this continent, were hardly indicated on any map. But owing to the labors of the geological survey all the larger geographic features of that country have now been outlined and a network of explorations has been extended over the whole of Alaska. There are no more mountain ranges to be discovered, although there are several yet to be explored. Out of a total area of about 620,000 square miles not one-half remains unmapped and unexplored. The mining resources have been particularly studied, and there is no known mining district in Alaska about which the survey is not able to furnish definite information.—Harper's Weekly.

A Proud Old Lady.

Jeremie Barrette of Montreal was a proud great-great-grandmother the other day, when at the age of 105 years, she held in her arms a one-day-old child, which was christened at the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

Five years ago she held in her arms the youngest of a family of great-grandsons, when he was christened at a church in Point St. Charles. The eldest of that family has now been married over a year, and only a few days ago a representative of the fifth generation was born.

Kitchen Hints.

When hanging meat it is well not to put the metal hook through the meat itself, but through a loop of string tied on to the joint.

To preserve lemons for a length of time bury them in a box of sawdust. In this way they will keep fresh for several months.

To remove a grease spot from wall paper hold a piece of blotting paper over the spot with a hot flatiron for a few moments.

In order to beat the white of an egg to a stiff froth quickly add a pinch of powdered sugar and fine salt and beat on a dinner plate with a broad-pointed knife.

Wood ashes are excellent for cleaning tin articles. Wring a cloth out of warm water, dip it in the ashes and with this scour the things; then rub off and polish.

To remove unpleasant odors from the hands dash a spoonful of sugar on the hot stove and hold the hands over the fumes. Ground coffee answers the same purpose.

Duke's Escort.

The Canadian Military Gazette, Ottawa, says:

The escort for the Duke of Connaught will be the same as for another Governor-General, namely, 24 of all ranks under the command of a captain. It was thought that since the duke was a member of the royal family, he would be entitled to a major's escort of 37 of all ranks, but the British War Office has informed the Canadian department that the position of Governor-General supersedes his position as member of the royal family, and he is entitled to the captain's escort instead of the major's. It is a fortunate thing for the dragoons. The escorts are all drawn from A squadron, which would not have been large enough to supply the major's escort, nor would there have been enough gentlemens' uniforms to go round.

Perils of Interior Africa.

There are native towns not remote from the Lake Chad region of interior Africa where a white man's life isn't worth a nickel. Lieutenant Boyd Alexander, the British explorer, was put to death in one of them recently. Lieutenant Alexander and his Portuguese collector, one Jose, had encamped under a tree in the outskirts of Tama. Suddenly they were surrounded by a band of yelling savages. One, a mere stripling, seized a gun and shot the lieutenant, and the others fell upon him with clubs. The Portuguese tossed his finger rings to the natives, and while they were interesting themselves in them Jose leaped to his saddle and escaped.

Women in Medicine.

The number of women in medicine is decreasing, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association, which recently published a report on medical education in the last year. In that time there were 680 women studying medicine, a decrease of 227 below 1910 and a decrease of 241 below 1909. The percentage of all medical students was 3.4 as compared with 4.2 last year. There were 159 women graduates this year, or 3.7 per cent of all graduates. In 1910 there were 907 women students and 157 graduates, while in 1909 there were 921 women students and 162 graduates.

PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN FOR A BAD STOMACH

No Dyspepsia, Gas, Heartburn or Indigestion in Five Minutes

If you had some Diapepsin handy and would take a little now your stomach distress or Indigestion would vanish in five minutes and you would feel fine.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, out-of-order stomach before you realize it.

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a little just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or Intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no undigested food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odours.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it prevents fermentation and takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is at any drug store waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin contain more than sufficient to thoroughly cure almost any case of Dyspepsia, Indigestion or any other stomach disturbance.

Sign of the Medicis.

"The ancient house of Medici, whose representatives were the business princes of London and whose Lombardian representative gave its name to Lombard street, in the financial district of that city, has been outlived by its coat of arms," says a letter from Bremen in a Vienna newspaper. "The three gilded globes have for many years been used as a sign by pawnbrokers in England and America. The sign has now made its appearance in Germany, an importation from Italy by way of England and America."

Titles For Cities.

American cities used to be called shortly and simply by their proper names. Then journalism and oratory demanded synonyms, and they became known by various historical or romantic characteristics—as the Garden City, the City of Churches, Quaker City, Gotham, the Hub, and so on. Now we are come into a third period, when each city has its commercial or "boosting" title.—Chicago Post.

Praise for Canada.

General Sir Walter Kitchener has been in Montreal with his daughter, who is to attend McGill. The general thinks that Canadian education is so far ahead of that of Oxford or Cambridge that he is having his son and daughter educated here.

He himself would have made Canada his home, but at the time that he was preparing to come, the war in Egypt broke out, and he spent years in campaigning after that. He was in command of the Strathcona Horse and the mounted rifles in South Africa, and says that the Canadians were as good soldiers as he ever saw. Sir Walter has returned to the Bermudas, of which he is governor.

NOT AFRAID OF CHOLERA.

Professor Metchnikoff Says It Is Easy to Avoid the Disease.

The possibility of an outbreak of cholera in France led Professor Metchnikoff of the Pasteur institute in Paris to express his opinion on the subject. Among other things he says:

"Cholera is not dangerous. It is easy to protect oneself from it. I have lived in contaminated areas and never felt the least fear. The measures taken by the government are excellent, but I must confess I have only a moderate confidence in them. The only measures to be taken are individual measures.

"The strictest hygiene must be observed. One must wash often, but above all all drinking water must be boiled and all fruit scalded. People who say that raw fruit is dangerous make a very great mistake. Let people eat their melons without fear. They run no risk. The only essential precaution is to plunge the melons in boiling water for a minute, for the rind may have fragments of earth on it containing the germs which propagate cholera. These germs will die at once. The same is true of all fruits. Cholera and typhoid fever can contaminate any one only by means of the digestive organs. The hands must therefore be kept perfectly clean and all foods carefully sterilized.

"Another mistaken idea is that boiled water is easily contaminated. That is not so. Boiled water keeps its properties for a very long time. It is quite enough to keep it in a properly covered jar. Personally I prepare my supply of boiled water in sufficient quantity for two days."—New York Sun.

A MISTRESS OF FINANCE.

Mrs. Harriman Believes in Conservatism and 5 Per Cent.

Managing a $100,000,000 estate which comprehends the largest individual stockholdings in two great transcontinental railways and one express company and shares and interests, large and small, in forty different directions requires special equipment both of temperament and training. These requirements are fulfilled in a notable degree by the most conspicuous woman actively concerned in high finance today—Mrs. E. H. Harriman.

When the "little giant" of Wall street died two years ago Mrs. Harriman by the terms of his will became in affairs "the estate of E. H. Harriman." It was a staggering burden, under which the man himself had faltered and finally sunk.

Sixteen corporations knew Harriman as president. Twenty-seven others called him their genius. Into this great responsibility Mrs. Harriman stepped at the time when women are supposed to have the most sense, which is after they have turned fifty. She is holding her own with a conservatism and successful control that are the wonder and admiration of the financial world. Conservatism and 5 per cent are said to express Mrs. Harriman's personal views of finance as relating to her own investments. Her husband sometimes thought well of 10 per cent and a risk.—New York World.

The Messenger Boy Abroad.

"There is no good German word to describe the social function known as '5 o'clock tea,'" says a Vienna letter "and therefore the English phrase has taken its place with 'ticket,' 'sport,' 'handicap,' 'start,' 'finish' and many other English words in our vocabulary. Now we have added the 'messenger boy,' who by any other name would not be the counterpart of his American brother. We have not yet become as well acquainted with him as the people of England, but his day is coming, and we may see some more of the fraternity rewarded as they were by the Princess Marie Louise of Schleswig-Holstein recently, who decorated a number of boys for executing orders which required not only good judgment, but ability to make every minute count."

Real Center of Population.

Two men made the same blunder when wrestling with a string of figures, and the center of population was located eight miles out of plumb. The mistake has been corrected by the census bureau. The new center of population is in Bloomington, Monroe county, Ind., eight miles west of its previous location at Unionville, in the same county. The error occurred in multiplying 319,198 population by its distance from the assumed meridian of 1,851 miles. This work is done in duplicate, and two clerks say they made the same error.

Telegraphy.

Skull Fractured In Fight.

Toronto, April 9.—As the result of a free fight at 91 Agnes street yesterday afternoon, Petro Pevitt is in St. Michael's Hospital with a fractured skull and fifteen other Polocks are under arrest, charged with being inmates of a disorderly house.

The men were having a high time at the Agnes street house yesterday, drinking more than one keg of beer, when trouble over a woman brought harsh words from the lips of three or four of them. In a few minutes the whole house was filled with excitement. Blood flowed freely, but only for a few minutes. The noise had reached the street and some children called the attention of the police, and a raid was made. As the police were rounding up their men, Andrew Pargett gave Petro Pevitt a terrible blow on the forehead with a beer glass. When the men were safely in Agnes street station it was found that Pevitt's skull had been fractured. He was removed to St. Michael's Hospital.

Thomas Gufoffski is charged with keeping the house, Pargett with wounding and the rest are held on the charge of being inmates.

Pest To Be Excluded.

Ottawa, April 9.—Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, is considering the prohibition of the importation of all fruit from the Hawaiian Islands to Canada owing to the ravages of the Mediterranean fly. It is one of the most destructive pests in the world to fruit and attacks northern as well as tropical fruit. It can live in northern or southern climes.

It has been doing a great deal of damage in the Hawaiian Islands, and it is feared that it will be brought over to British Columbia with pineapples, which are the principal exports of the islands to Canada, and thence spread to the whole of the Dominion.

Mr. Burrell has been in communication with the American authorities, and it is understood they are also alarmed at the situation and may pass legislation on the subject at the present sitting of Congress.

Repair Work Called Off.

Philadelphia, April 9—Orders were issued yesterday by the union district headquarters at Shamokin calling off all repair work in the Schuylkill district. There will be no interference with the pumpmen and workmen needed to prevent damage to property until after the result of the conference becomes known, when, it is said, it is intended to suspend everything in case there is no prospect of an agreement being reached.

Union heads claim that some companies were taking advantage of the permission given union men to do repair work to prosecute new work, which led to the order being issued.

Quebec Wants a Few Things.

Quebec, April 9.—There was an important conference between Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, and a strong delegation of the council for the Board of Trade yesterday afternoon, when the latter presented a memorial in regard to the immediate necessity for the erection of docks, elevators and railway terminals in the port of Quebec. Hon. Mr. Pelletier promised that a thorough investigation of the different sites would be made at the end of the month.

Kingston Business Man's Death.

Kingston, April 9.—J. Y. Parkhill, dairy produce merchant, was at business Saturday; took ill during Sunday night, and died yesterday morning. He was 66 years of age, and a leading business man here for over thirty years. His wife, four sons and two daughters survive.

Saved From Burning House.

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 9.—An overheated stove caused a fire that destroyed the home of George Aseltin, from which the occupants escaped in night attire. A falling chimney injured Assistant Chief Diddemus. The loss is about $8,000.

Lighthouse-Keeper Dismissed.

Belleville, April 9.—John C. Weth, who has been lighthouse-keeper here for some time, has been dismissed from the office and Henry J. Smith of this city has been appointed to the position.

Construction work on the new C.P.R. line through this city will, it is expected, be commenced in the near future. A building office has been secured, and already members of the construction party are here.

Mauretania Unable to Land.

Liverpool, April 9.—Owing to a heavy gale the steamship Mauretania was unable to land her passengers here last evening. Fearing a repetition of the accident last December, the captain took the liner outside the river, where he could have more sea room, until morning.

Preaching "Sabotage."

Kamloops, B.C., April 9.—"Sabotage,' that form of industrial warfare which the French syndicalists have perfected, is now being advocated, it is said, by some of the leaders of the camps of the Industrial Workers of the World strikers along the line of the Canadian Northern. These leaders explain that the costly machinery of the contractors is fully in the hands of the workers, and that it is the easiest thing in the world to see that some important belts disappear mysteriously, that some nuts rattle off, and that the machinery be allowed to shake itself to pieces.

It is easy to have a stove upset some night in camp and the camp go up in smoke. It is easy to have a blast go off at the wrong time and in the wrong place, rock slides and cave-ins can be caused with a little ingenuity, and the blame can be traced back to no one.

Montreal's Harbor Plans.

Montreal, April 9.—According to Major G. W. Stephens, chairman of the harbor commission, most of the riverfront work during the coming season will be in the neighborhood and eastward from the Victoria Pier to the new berths at Hochelaga for the West Indian, South African and New Zealand boats.

With a view to providing facilities for the calling at Montreal in the near future of larger ocean liners, dredging will be assiduously carried on this summer, the ultimate aim of the harbor commission being to have a 35-foot river channel from this city to Quebec.

Baby Died on Train.

Brockville, April 9.—When an immigrant special over the Grand Trunk Railway reached here last night the conductor reported the death of a child, aged 17 months, which occurred on the train between Iroquois and Cardinal. The parents came from a province in Russia. After a coroner had made an investigation, the body was handed over to a local undertaker for burial. The incident held up the train for thirty minutes.

Ran Out of Goods.

Brockville, April 9.—The police have located John W. Hendry of Toronto, who has been soliciting orders here for a carpet cleaning preparation which was nothing more than sand and coal oil. When brought before the magistrate he explained how he had run shy of the genuine material and had used the sand and the oil to complete his orders. His story was accepted and he was allowed to go.

French Rout Tribesmen.

Rabat, Morocco, April 9.—A French column, under command of Gen. Ditte, has routed a large force of rebel tribesmen near Machel. The engagement lasted thirteen hours, and the fighting was severe.

Her Added Weight.

Mrs. Benham—I am getting stouter all the time. Mr. Benham—Yes; when I got married I little realised that I was getting a wife on the instalment plan!"

West Indies Treaty.

Ottawa, April 9.—The final conferences between the Canadian and West Indies delegates on closer trade relations will be held to-day, when the final touches on the negotiations will be made. The three Canadian representatives, Hon. Geo. E. Foster, Hon. W. T. White and Hon. J. D. Reid, spent a large part of yesterday going over the proposals of the West Indians.

No official announcement as to the outcome will be made until to-day, but it is understood on the best authority that, unless something unforeseen happens to-day, the negotiations will be highly successful, and a treaty advantageous to both sides will be signed.

It is rumored that the agreement will follow the lines suggested by the commission headed by Lord Balfour of Burleigh.

Trouble Brewing In Quebec.

Montreal, April 9.—There appears to be a storm brewing on the political horizon of this province and there may be a cloudburst at almost any moment. There are rumors of scandals afloat and they will not down. In fact the statement was made yesterday that Sir F. Langelier, the Lieutenant-Governor of the province, will refuse a dissolution unless something is done to relieve the public mind.

Rumors of dissension in the Cabinet are rife and it is said that the old feud between Sir Lomer Gouin and Hon. G. N. Parent has broken out afresh.

Orphan Lads Arrive.

Halifax, April 9.—The Allan steamer Scotian arrived from Glasgow yesterday afternoon with 1,344 immigrants on board. Among the passengers were 99 boys from Williard Quarrier's Kalmocalm Home, Scotland, in charge of William Douglas. The lads are between 7 and 12 years of age and are going to Brockville, Ont., from which place they will be distributed among people who propose adopting them.

The Scotian discharged 700 tons of cargo, took 1,500 tons of coal and will proceed to Portland, Maine.

In Fear Of Consumption

To be entirely cured of a cold which threatened to become consumption naturally makes one think well of the treatment which helped to effect the cure.

In a letter just received from Mrs. Edson Brock, Trenholm, Que., the writer says: "I wish to tell you that I have used Dr. Chase's medicines with great success. I took a very bad cold and could not get rid of the cough. I felt so bad that I really thought I was going into consumption. I got well by using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills also did me a lot of good. You may publish this if you wish, for many people already know what great good Dr. Chase's medicines have done. me."

A Harder Task.

"I can twist my husband around my little finger," said the Circassian beauty.

Benjamin Holt has been for sixty-one years an attendant at Windsor castle and distinctly remembers King William IV. and Queen Adelaide.

Dr. Edgar Jones, M. R. C. S., the oldest doctor in England and probably in the world, has just entered his one hundred and third year at his residence at Great Burstead, Essex. Dr. Jones is also a magistrate.

M. Fallieres, president of France, draws annually in salary and expenses $240,000, payable in monthly instalments of $20,000. Parisians believe that he doesn't spend more than $100,000 a year, for he dislikes banquets, entertainments and social functions.

Richard Strauss, the composer, who has a villa at Garmisch, Bavaria, is an indefatigable mountain climber. In his knee trousers and steel shoes he will tramp over the mountains by the day, jotting down in a notebook the themes kindled in his imagination by the beauty and grandeur outspread before him.

Walter Damrosch, who has just celebrated his fiftieth birthday, has been active as an orchestral conductor since 1885. Forty years of his life have been spent in this country. He has been longest associated with the New York Symphony orchestra, his conductorship of which goes back twenty-seven years.

Aviation.

A noiseless aeroplane being tried out by the British army is so quiet that its motor cannot be heard fifty yards away.

The 250 aeroplanes France will purchase for the army during 1912 will be ordered in lots of twenty, fifty and even 100, and they will be supplied by all the leading French constructors. The army aeroplanes are to be known as "avions."

M. le More, who is interesting the French government in his plan to establish an aeroplane route from Algeria across the Sahara, recently finished a journey of 4,000 miles, mapping the route and selecting sites for aeroplane stations. He estimates that the distance can be reduced to 1,200 miles by taking air line courses.

IT WAS STONE IN THE BLADDER

GIN PILLS PASSED IT

"Five years ago, I was taken down with what the doctors called Inflammation of the Bladder—intense pains in the back and loins, and difficulty in urinating, and the attacks, which became more frequent, amounted to unbearable agony. I became so weak that I could not walk across the floor.

My wife read in the papers about GIN PILLS and sent for a box. From the very first, I felt that GIN PILLS were doing me good. The pain was relieved at once, and the attacks were less frequent.

In six weeks, the Stone in the Bladder came away. When I recall how I suffered and how now I am healthy and able to work, I cannot express myself strongly enough when I speak of what GIN PILLS have done for me". JOHN HERMAN, Hamilton, Ont.

MARKET REPORTS.

Chicago Wheat Futures Close Lower, Liverpool Exchange Closed—Live Stock.—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, April 8.—An eccentric downward whirl of more than two cents a bushel in the price of May wheat to-day was taken by many speculators to indicate that the former bull leaders had been deserted by the trade and the public. Nevertheless, at the end of the session the nearby option was but little more cheapened relatively than either of the new crop futures. The close was steady at 1-8c and 1-4c to 1-2c lower than Saturday night. Corn finished 1-2c to 5-8c and 3-4c down, oats off 1-2c and 1-4c to 1-2c, and provisions less expensive by 2 1-2c to 15c.

The Liverpool Grain Exchange and the continental markets were closed to-day over Easter.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, April 8.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat over the cable was very quiet, owing to the fact that there was only a little demand from the continent for April-May shipment, for which the prices bid were all out of line. There is a steady demand for oats from local and outside buyers, but the volume of business doing is only fair. The local trade in flour was fair, but the demand from foreign buyers was very quiet. In rolled oats the feeling is strong, and prices have scored another advance of 10c per barrel, and cornmeal has gone up 25c per barrel. Demand for butter is fair at firm prices. Eggs active and steady. Provisions quiet.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, April 8.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 46 carloads—929 cattle, 12 hogs, 13 sheep, 18 calves and 26 horses.

Exporters.

Mr. Howard bought for Swift & Co. 96 steers, 1,200 lbs. each, for Liverpool, at an average of $6.85.

Butchers.

Butchers' heavy steers and choice quality sold at from $7 to $7.40; butchers' steers, 1000 to 1100 lbs., $6.75 to $7; good, $6.40 to $6.65; medium, $5.90 to $6.30; common, $5 to $5.75; cows, $3 to $6, and extra choice at $6.75; bulls, $4 to $5.75.

Milkers and Springers.

Veal Calves.

Prices for veal calves were firm, at $5 to $8.50, and "bobs" at, $9.75 to $10 each.

Sheep.

Not enough on sale to make a market. Prices, however, are quoted firm at $5 to $6.50 for ewes; rams, $4 to $5.25; yearlings, $7 to $8.75; spring lambs, $4 to $8 each.

Hogs.

There were 20 hogs on the market, all bought by the Swift Canadian Company, at $9.25 to $9.30, fed and watered at the market.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 8.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending April 6 were 600 cattle, 150 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 1000 calves. The offerings on the market for sale were 400 cattle, 25 sheep and lambs, 700 hogs and 200 calves.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle, prices being firm, owing to the very small offerings, which is usually the case every year at the first market after the Easter trade. Butchers generally have sufficient beef on hand to supply their wants for two or three weeks, consequently the gathering of buyers was small, and, as the demand from the large packing concerns was also limited, the trade on the whole was slow. A few choice steers sold at $7 to $7.25, and top quality cows at $6.75 to $6 per 100 pounds, but the demand for all kinds of common stock was almost nil.

The undertone to the market for hogs was strong, and prices have scored a further advance of 10c to 25c per 100 pounds, owing to the continued small supplies coming forward, which to some extent is attributed to the increasing scarcity thruout the country and the very bad condition of the country roads in some sections. The demand from packers was good, and sales of selected lots were made at $9 to $9.10 and $9.25 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

Supplies of small meats were very small, and in consequence trade was also quiet, with no change in prices to note. A few lambs changed hands at $7.25 to $7.50 per 100 pounds, and calves sold at from $3 to $8 each, as to size and quality.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $7 to $7.25; do., medium, $6.50 to $6.85; do., common, $4.50 to $5.25; canners, $3 to $3.75; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.50 to $6; do., medium, $4 to $5; do., bulls, $4.50 to $5.50; milkers, choice, $65 to $70; do., common and medium, each, $30 to $60; springers, $35 to $60.

Sheep, ewes, $5 to $5.50; bucks and culls, $4.50 to $4.75. Lambs, $7.25 to $7.50.

Hogs, f.o.b., $9 to $9.25.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., April 8.—Cattle—Receipts, 3600 head; active and 10c to 25c higher; prime steers, $7.65 to $8.15; shipping, $6.60 to $7.75; butchers, $6.25 to $7.25; heifers, $4.60 to $6.60; cows, $3.50 to $5.50; bulls, $3.75 to $6; stockers and feeders, $5.75 to $6.60; stock heifers, $3.75 to $4.25; fresh cows and springers active and strong, $25 to $85.

Hogs—Receipts, 9000 head; active and 10c to 15c higher; heavy and mixed, $9.40 to $9.45; yorkers, $9.25 to $9.45; pigs, $9.20 to $9.45; roughs, $7.25 to $7.50; stags, $5.50 to $6.25; dairies, $9 to $9.40.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 14,000 head; active and 10c to 25c higher; lambs, $8.50 to $8.75; yearlings, $7 to $7.75; wethers, $6.50 to $6.75; ewes, $5.25 to $6.25; sheep, mixed, $5 to $6.00.

Fans actuated by currents of air have from time to time been used as motors for running clocks. One, by Lepaute, is in the Louvre, Paris. Benjamin Hanks of Litchfield county, Conn., patented one in 1758. In a more recent patent the weight is wound up by the current of air in a chimney which is stopped by a self acting brake as the weight nears the top of its course.

The Old Ox Goad.

Careful investigation has shown that the English measure, rod, pole or perch owes its origin to the pole or goad, which was used to direct oxen.

Montreal Witness Describes Model City

(From Montreal Witness.)

MR. FREDERICK G. TODD, landscape architect, has completed the final revision of the plans for the Model City for the Canadian Northern Railway. Three weeks ago they were submitted to Mr. T. S. Darling, general sales agent of the railway, for approval. Some of the lots seemed too small, so the plans were altered to remedy the defect for the Canadian Northern Railway is determined that no lack of foresight shall mar the whole future of the city behind the mountain.

The photo engraving printed to the right gives an accurate impression of the new town. Its area will be about 1,700 acres, while through it there will be constructed sixty miles of streets. It lies north of the Cote des Neiges Cemetery, and the limits of the Town of Outremont. It is west of the C. P. R. line, south of the Jacques Cartier Union Railway, and north of the Atlantic and North-West Railway. The whole slopes back from the Mountain to the Back River, at the fall of about 45 feet per mile—sufficient to ensure the best of drainage, and at the same time the fall is not great enough to make walking in the town disagreeable.

As will be seen from the picture above, two boulevards, each 80 feet in width cross the town diagonally. One begins at Rockland Avenue, and runs westward towards St. Laurent; the other runs in an easterly direction from Cote des Neiges. Where the two wide avenues intersect, the main station of the C. N. R. will be erected. By this plan the terminal will be in the very centre of the town, and, so, equally accessible to every resident. A square will be laid out at the point of crossing upon which will be erected the public buildings of the city. Another sub-station will be situated where the line crosses the Cote de Leisse Road, about half a mile from the southern border of the town. The diagonal roads, which will be the principal arteries of trade, and be about 3½ miles long, will be intersected by numerous streets, which will be sixty-six feet in width.

An unusual feature of the plan is the circular driveway which Mr. Todd has designed. It is over five miles in circumference, and on it at very frequent intervals are fourteen parks, varying in size from one to five acres. This will probably prove one of the most popular features of the Model City.

The lots designed for business purposes have a frontage of 35 feet, while the residential ones are 50 feet in width. An effort will be made to confine the commercial interests of the town to the two wide, diagonal streets. The lots vary in depth from one hundred to one hundred and twenty feet. The C. N. R. will insist upon strict building by-laws.

Although the plan of Washington, where vertical and horizontal streets are crossed by diagonal streets, was followed in very many respects, a change was made so that the small triangular building lot of the diagonal street has been eliminated from the plan. At the intersections in the Model City the diagonals are diverted so that they intersect at right angles. In this way there are no triangular pieces of land on the main streets, which not only gives the street a better appearance, but makes the land more valuable. The diagonal avenues which run from corner to corner of the town make the distances between any two points in the town not on the same vertical or horizontal streets shorter than under the old system of street arrangement. In planning the new suburb, Mr. Todd has kept in mind what he considers is the greatest weakness of Montreal—the lack of diagonal streets, a failure that often compels people to go round two sides of a triangle to reach their destination.

Wide Streets

"With its wide streets, numerous and large parks, and its large residential lots the new town will be one of the most desirable places in Montreal in which to live," said Mr. Darling to a Witness reporter, "and it does not require a very great gift of prophecy to foresee the day when the city behind Mount Royal will have a population of 40,000. Its 7,500 lots, each to be the home of one family, will easily accommodate that number.

The promoters of the town are very optimistic about the future of the place, and believe that with the rapid electric service that has been assured, thousands of the citizens of older Montreal will embrace the opportunity to own a home in the suburb and so escape the confusion and congestion of the city.

Choose First Selections in the Model City---The Beautiful New Residential District of Montreal

IN no other Canadian city is there to be found a real estate opportunity equal to the one provided by the new Model City in Montreal.

For years the fearfully congested City of Montreal has been walled in between the St. Lawrence River and Mount Royal, while behind Mount Royal has existed one of the most beautiful residential sites in America.

This beautiful district only needed direct transportation facilities with the heart of the business section to make it undoubtedly the most desirable residential locality of Montreal. Just how this is being accomplished is fully explained in the World's interview with Sir Donald Mann, printed on the right of this advertisement.

Just what this means to you depends on whether you grasp the full significance of the remarkable real estate opportunity that now lies before you, or whether you let it slip by never to occur again. Certainly, the same combination of circumstances, that made this Model City opportunity possible, can never occur again. It is an opportunity that is unique in the history of real estate in America.

Montreal A Solid City of 587,756

REMEMBER, Montreal is a solid, old city of 587,756 people—not a boom town that has blossomed forth in a night. Yet, Montreal is adding to its population yearly more people than comprise the present entire population of Calgary, or Edmonton, or Regina, or St. John, N.B., or Halifax, or London, Ontario. One year's increase in Montreal's population is enough to occupy the whole of the Model City and still leave 10,000 people to find homes in other sections of the city. You see, Montreal has urgent need for the C. N. R.'s new residential district.

Montreal Increasing at Rate of 50,000 Yearly

THE Model City is planned to hold about 40,000 people, whereas Montreal is adding to its population at the rate of 50,000 yearly. Model City real estate is therefore a sure, safe, high-grade proposition—and one that will prove highly profitable, as property in the Model City is sure to double and treble in value with the rushing of the tunnel to completion and the influx of home-hungry dwellers from the congested districts.

Those who secure Model City lots at to-day's prices will make the most money. Their margin of possible profit will be the greatest. And those who choose first selections of Model City lots will be in the most favorable position.

You can secure first selections through Oliver, Reid & Co., Ltd. Only one other syndicate had an equally wide selection of Model City properties. The lots we offer are certainly choice locations, as you will see for yourself from the map we will send you.

Sir Donald's Story of Their Big Project

(From The Toronto World.)

SIR DONALD MANN was asked by The Toronto Sunday World to give some idea of the methods adopted by the Canadian Northern in securing railway terminals at tidewate. in Montreal. Everybody had predicted that it would be impossible for the Canadian Northern to get into Montreal on anything like equality with the Canadian Pacific or the Grand Trunk.

According to Sir Donald the real key to the situation presented itself when he and his associates saw not only how difficult it was to get into Montreal, but how difficult it was to enlarge Montreal as a city. It had as difficult a housing and dwelling problem as the railway had to get into the city, and to the waterfront. The harbor was big enough and the docks were magnificent, but there was a lack of freight yard sites and there was lack of space to run a railway line, and apparently lack of place for a big station. And there was a congested city. But engineers can do almost anything if they have the money and a place whereon they can work, and it was by taking advantage of daring engineering work and by taking advantage of the scarcity of building room in Montreal, and putting the two schemes together that a solution of both problems was found in the one project.

Daring Scheme

Accordingly, they calculated that if they tunneled Mount Royal Mountain from its north, or back, side three miles into the heart of the city, they could add the beautiful district that lay just at the back side of the mountain, and MAKE IT WITHIN TEN MINUTES OF THE CONGESTED CENTRE OF MONTREAL. This would give the city additional space for homes, and it would at the same time give the railway an unequaled approach to the heart of the city.

They set engineers to work and in a short time they confirmed Sir Donald's suggestion that it would be possible to tunnel the mountain from the direction of the Back River right into the centre of the city, and to get to tidewater, and to have at the same time a large new district for settlement. Thereupon the company bought 5,000 acres of land near the north portal of the tunnel and bought a large block on Dorchester Street, at the heart of the town, for a station.

Congested City

But this is only one advantage of the big policy adopted by the Canadian Northern in this respect. If there is one city in America that has to solve the street car problem in Winter, it is Montreal because of its narrow streets and the quantity of snow that often blocks the street car tracks. But here will be a tunnel, to start with three miles long, that will carry thousands of people to the centre of the city every day and be absolutely weather-proof and away from the congestion of the streets. Many persons in Montreal are obliged now to spend 40 to 60 minutes each trip between home and business, because of the congestion and crowded street cars; hereafter they will be able to get from all the country behind the mountain into the city in less than 10 minutes, in well-lighted cars, beyond all exposure to the weather, and through a well-ventilated shaft. The public, for the first time, will become acquainted with the comfort and convenience of rapid travelling in tubes instead of fighting their way through congested streets, wet weather and snow blockades, coupled with loss of time and often failure to reach destination.

And the passenger trains of the company in and out of the city will be handled with the same rapidity, the same absence of weather impediment, as the city and suburban traffic, Winter and Summer, snow or storm. No streets to cross, express speed in and out from the city terminal! Nor will there be any smoke in the tunnel, every car and every train will be handled by electric traction!

C. P. R. and G. T. R.

For years now the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk have been planning to get away from the level crossings getting in and out of Montreal, and have only done so in part. The Canadian Pacific at the present moment is carrying on a great big station building and improving its elevated track approach to its Windsor terminal. The Grand Trunk have in hand the idea of raising the level of their Bonaventure Station and an elevated track that will cost millions, and even this, when built, will be more or less of an obstruction to street traffic. The Canadian Northern have a tunnel approach, a modern station and at the same time is giving Montreal more territory for purposes of expansion within 15 minutes comfortable ride from the business centre. This is the greatest thing that has come to Montreal in the past 50 years of our history.

CITY PROPOSES TO PURCHASE REFUSE GROUND OF TEN ACRES

Property is Located in North Monaghan and Can be Purchased for Sum of $2,200—City Will Save $350 This Year Alone on the Deal, it is Stated.

THE BRIDGE QUESTION

A meeting of the Whole Council was held last night for the purpose of discussing the question of securing a suitable dumping ground for garbage. There were present Mayor Bradburn, Ald. Gillespie, Ald. Morgan, Ald. Duncan, Ald. Graham, Ald. Gordon, Ald. Johnston, Ald. Anderson, Ald. Brown and Ald. Buller.

Ald. Duncan, chairman of the Property committee, stated that he and Ald. Brown had looked into the matter as instructed by the Council, at the last meeting. A ten acre piece of property located on lot 9 and situated near the river on Park street, was, in their estimation, admirably suited for the purpose required. The property was owned by Archibald Jackson and could be purchased by the city for the sum of $2,200.

Ald. Brown explained that he had gone into the matter even further and found that he could arrange to lease the property for a term of five years at a yearly rental of $425.

Mayor Bradburn—"I think it would be cheaper to buy. It is a good investment, and it would be a comparatively easy matter to get a man to look after it. One acre is all that would be needed as a dumping ground and there would be nine acres available for cultivation. Providing the North Monaghan people raised no objection we could save $375 this year by purchasing the property."

Ald. Gordon—"The land has been used for that purpose before and I don't see why the people should take exception to it now. A man would be put in charge who would take care of it.

Ald. Brown stated that Mr. Williams, owner of the present dumping ground, had threatened to close his gate to all scavengers in future unless he received a monetary consideration from the Council.

Ald. Duncan—"I am in favour of buying the lot."

Ald. Gordon—"I think it is a good idea. The soil is a sandy loam and it would make an ideal spot for a dumping ground.

At this juncture Ald. Johnston moved that the report of the committee re dumping ground be received and the Council take up the matter of purchasing the property.

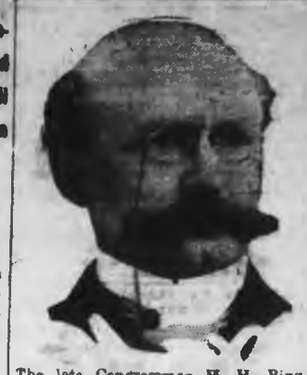
There was no seconder to the motion and a resolution was passed authorizing the City Trust Commissioners to purchase from Archibald Jackson, for the sum of $2,200, that parcel of property known as lot 9, for use as a refuse ground, and that if the Trust Commissioners desired, the Council would pay an interest of 4 1-2 per cent. on purchase price for rental.—Carried.

The property runs off Park street, and is within but a short distance of the powder magazine.

Ald. Morgan brought up the question of providing a foot bridge for the convenience of East City residents desirous of reaching the south end of the city. As it was now all traffic was diverted by way of Hunter St. and to those who were compelled to journey to the south end of the city in the execution of their daily toil, the lack of suitable bridge facilities was a serious drawback. The C. P. R. refused pedestrians the right of way over their tracks.

The Mayor explained that the member for West Peterborough had been approached re the matter, but as yet nothing definite had been arrived at. He was in receipt of a communication from the Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, in which it was stated that the government engineers would be asked to report on the conditions pertaining to the matter.

The Council before adjourning decided to meet in a body to-day at 12.30 noon when a representative of the Toronto World was on hand to secure a photograph of Peterborough's city fathers.



The late Congressman H. H. Bingham, of Philadelphia. He was known as "the father of the House of Representatives," and was representative of his district in Congress for 33 consecutive years.

POLICEMAN IS CHOSEN

Mr. John Kane is the Latest Addition to the Peterborough Police Force—Duties to Commence April 15th

BROCK STREET RINK MATTER

A meeting of the Police Commissioners was held on Monday afternoon with the commissioners all present. The desire of the city to appoint another policeman was considered and Mr. John Kane was appointed, duties to commence April 15th. Mr. Kane has been a resident of Peterborough for a little more than a year and was associated with Mr. John Watt as fishery inspector.

Dr. McClelland, of Brock street, was present and complained of the noise, etc., of the Brock street roller rink. After hearing what the doctor said, the Commissioners asked him to place his charges before them in writing.

The general charges were not felt to be sufficiently definite.

Mr. Meharry, who was present, said that Dr. McClelland had been misinformed with regard to many of his statements.

TORONTO, APRIL 9.—Arrangements have been completed to bring back to Toronto, E. E. McIntosh, who is charged with the theft of $10,000 in unsigned bank notes. The theft was committed over a year ago, and last June notes were found hidden in a house that McIntosh formerly occupied. At the time of the theft McIntosh was suspected. At the same time an autmobile belonging to Frank Rolph disappeared from the Lambton Gold Club. When the United States Customs officials tried to get McIntosh in New Hampshire, he fortified himself in a house, well stored with ammunition. He did not put up a fight, however, and made an attempt to escape by jumping from an upper window.

PETERBORO' PEOPLE ARE INJURED IN HEAD-ON COLLISION ON THE G. T. R. NEAR FRASERVILLE

Special Passenger Train and "Moonlight" Freight Collide and Passengers Are Badly Shaken Up---Accident Occurred a Short Distance West of Fraserville at 9 O'clock Last Night---Stanley Cooper and Harry Cressman, of Peterborough, Were Those Who Received Injuries.

LIST OF INJURED.

Stanley Cooper, Peterborough, badly cut about face.
Conductor Ballantyne, severely cut about head.
Harry Cressman, Peterborough, badly shaken.
Walter Pilling, Port Hope, scalp wounds.

Travelling west from Millbrook to Peterborough at 9 o'clock last evening the "Moonlight" freight collided with a special passenger train from Peterborough, creating considerable injury and damage.

The flood at Lily Lake necessitated an "extra" travelling to Millbrook to bring passengers from the Port Hope train to Peterborough and to convey intending passengers for Toronto to Milbrook to enable them to continue their journey via the old road.

The special, in charge of Engineer Luckham, reached Fraserville, where it should have met the Moonlight, but as the latter had not arrived the engineer continued his journey. He had not covered any great distance however, when he saw the lights of the other train, and instantly slackened speed. But those on the "Moonlight" had evidently not noticed the approaching westbound train in the darkness and before the latter could stop both trains collided with a crash. The spot was about half a mile west of Fraserville.

Thrown Into Disorder.

Both engines on the passenger train were wrecked, the coach was strained and broken and the occupants were thrown about in helpless disorder. As soon as those who had escaped injury had recovered from the shock, an inspection of the injured was made. The worst cases were discovered to be those of Stanley Cooper, a traveller, who has sustained a cut on the face about two and a half inches long. Conductor Ballantyne, of the passenger train, who had a formidable gash at the rear of his head, Harry Cressman of Peterborough, badly shaken and unconscious, and Walter Pilling of Port Hope, who had sustained cuts and bruises about the head. There were others who were only slightly injured.

Conveyed to Peterborough.

The injured persons were laid upon the grass of the embankment and word was quickly despatched to Peterborough, from which a special was sent containing Dr. McClelland, physician to the G.T.R. and Drs. McCullough and Amys. Returning to Peterborough, the unfortunates were met at the station by Messrs. Belleghem's private ambulance, which covered them to the Nicholls Hospital where they now lie.

Engines Reversed.

It chanced that the engines on both trains were reversed, therefore neither of them were derailed. The 'Moonlight' which was in charge of Engineer McConnell and Conductor George McIlroy, sustained considerable damage, especially to its first car.

Fire in Baggage Car.

An overturned stove had set fire to the baggage car which was quickly extinguished by those who were obliged to travel in that conveyance, owing to the crowded condition of the coach.

It was in the baggage car that Mr. Arthur Graham of the Oriental, who was on the train, found Mr. Cressman, who was lying between two trunks unconscious and half smothered by the smoke. Had it not been that Engineer Luckham had slackened speed, the accident might have proved much more serious.

Should Have Waited.

Interviewing Mr. Sandy an Examiner reporter was informed that orders were issued to the special to wait for the Moonlight at Fraserville and therefore should not have exceeded that point.

An auxiliary which was sent from Lindsay last night pulled off the cars and backed the damaged engines on to the siding and thus the track was quickly cleared.

Condition of Injured.

It was ascertained this afternoon that in no one instance are the injuries serious. Mr. Cressman had completely recovered, Messrs. Pilling and Cooper were sufficiently well to leave the hospital for their respective homes, and Conductor Ballantyne is progressing satisfactorily.

UNIONISTS WILL STRIVE TO DEFEAT HOME RULE BILL

Thus Spoke Bonar Law to 150,000 Ulstermen at Great Demonstration at Belfast—Speakers on Four Platforms

NO SEPARATE PARLIAMENT

Special Wire to The Examiner.

BELFAST, IRELAND, APRIL 9.—The Home Rule Bill is a conspiracy just as treacherous as any that has ever been formed against the life of a great nation. I come to you with the assurance that the Unionists will do all in their power to defeat it, and if we defeat it now it is defeated forever." Thus spoke Leader Bonar Law this afternoon, in the course of a demonstration of one hundred and fifty thousand Ulster men against Home Rule. The meeting was so large that four platforms were selected and speakers talking from every one of them at once. A resolution was put from four platforms simultaneously, refusing to accept Home Rule, under any circumstances. They were carried unanimously. Delegates from all over Ulster and from England, Ireland and Scotland marched sixteen abreast up the main streets with the accompaniment of famous Orange music. The demonstration was just as enthusiastic as that accorded Winston Churchill, and certainly gave evidence of Ulster's determination to resist Home Rule and separate parliament to the last ditch.

Charges Dismissed

Special to The Examiner.

WOODSTOCK, ONT., APRIL 9. — The Magistrate's judgment in the case of assault charged against R. A. F. McDonald, Leon McCrimmon and Vincent Price, Masters at Woodstock Baptist College, who, it was alleged, assaulted Student H. V. Hoppwood by cruelly beating him on the bare back while holding him over a vaulting horse, was given out this morning, and was "not guilty." The case was dismissed with no costs. In giving this decision Magistrate Ball pointed that the charge was not laid by the boy and that the punishment was not excessive and therefore not against the law. The magistrate strongly urged that in future corporal punishment be only administered under a specific order of the principal and under his supervision.

CHIVALRY OF YOUNG MAN WAS NOT APPRECIATED

Experiences Trouble Championing Cause of Another Man's Wife and a Police Court Hearing is the Result

CASE WAS DISMISSED

A new champion of the fair sex was unearthed in this morning's session of the Police Court, when Harry Cook was charged by the proprietor of a Charlotte street store, with having used grossly insulting and abusive language in his store on Saturday morning last.

During a wordy altercation which followed the sale of three blinds the plaintiff in the case had threatened to call his wife down for selling Cook three window shades for sixty cents, which was less than the original cost price. Cook resented this action and threatened to "trim" the latter if he made mention of the deal to his wife in the manner in which he had declared he would.

Resented Threat.

The plaintiff, in the witness box, gave evidence to the effect that the defendant had visited his store on Saturday last, and had purchased three window shades, paying seventy five cents for them. Cook mentioned the fact that he had purchased three similar blinds from a lady clerk a few days previous for the sum of sixty cents.

The proprietor declared that this was a mistake on the part of his wife, who was responsible for the transaction. The plaintiff followed this statement up by a threat to call his wife down for selling goods below cost. Cook resented this and threatened to "trim" him if he made any statement to the clerk about the sale of blinds.

Continuing his evidence, the witness asked Cook to leave the store, but he refused, and still persisted in his threats to "trim" the proprietor. Witness grabbed Cook by the arm, intending to show him out, but the latter became obstreperous, and he desisted. Witness then asked Cook again to leave the store, but the latter refused. Cook accused the others of having a companion of his arrested for the alleged theft of an overcoat, some time ago. Cook finally left the store and remained outside for about fifteen minutes.

Evidence was Damaging.

Miss Ethel Sloan, next witness called, gave evidence to the effect that she was in the store when the incident occurred. She described the proprietor's attitude towards Cook, as being of a threatening character.

"Which was the most offensive of the two," queried the Magistrate.

"The proprietor," replied the witness.

Mr. Harry Evans, another eye-witness of the incident, was next called. He happened to be standing at the corner at the time, waiting for a car. He heard loud talking in the store, and heard the Proprietor order Cook out of the shop. He did not hear the

DEATH OF MR. P. J. MEAGHER

Former Student at C. G. E. Passes Away as Result of Accident

LINDSAY, APRIL 8.—A special train arrived in Lindsay this morning from Joliette, Que., conveying the remains of the late Patrick John Meagher, who passed away Saturday, as a result of an accident some two weeks previous. The special train proceeded through to Kirkfield, where interment takes place.

Some two weeks ago the deceased young man, who for a number of years resided in Lindsay, and who was employed with the Canadian Northern Railway as electrical engineer, met with an accident, which laid him up. It appears that he was stepping on to one of the engines, when he slipped, breaking a couple of ribs. One of the fractured ribs pierced his lungs, pneumonia setting in, causing death.

The late Mr. Meagher is survived by his mother, father, two brothers, Messrs William and Fergus, and two sisters, Mrs. Martin J. Kenny, of Port Arthur and Miss Mabel, of Toronto.

Mrs. Meagher, mother of the deceased, Messrs William and Fergus Meagher and Miss Muriel Steers, of Montreal, were on the special train, which arrived in town this morning, and proceeded to Kirkfield for the interment, while Lady MacKenzie, of Toronto, and other relatives of the deceased, arrived in Kirkfield Sunday via special train, disembarking at Gamebridge.

The late Mr. Meagher is well-known in Peterborough. He was a student at the C. G. E. for several years, and made many friends here, who will be shocked to learn of his death.

NO PAY FOR TWO WEEKS

Peterborough theatre goers will have a chance to-morrow night to show their generosity and give some much needed assistance to Miss Constance Crawley and the members of her company who as the result of their desertion by the Sherbrooke man who was managing their tour, are left stranded in Peterborough.

The company is composed of English players who came out to America last autumn and after filling a New York engagement started out on a tour of the maritime provinces with the ultimate intention of moving westward through Canada. On reaching Sherbrooke, Que., some four weeks ago, a Sherbrooke man took up the management of the company and has been handling its affairs ever since, taking charge of the receipts. The members of the company are little known in Canada and have not proved a strong drawing card so that business has not been exactly of a capacity drawing nature, and the players state that they have not received any salaries for the past two weeks.

The climax came after their appearance at the Grand here last night in "A Moral Question," when the manager departed leaving nothing but a letter stating that he is through.

The company feel their position keenly—they have practically no funds and no opportunity of taking up their bookings or indeed of making a start for home unless they are given some assistance. The eight playing members of the cast all hail from England.

Messrs. Turner & Sons, proprietors of the Grand Opera House, have decided to place the house at their disposal to-morrow night and Miss Crawley and her company will give a benefit performance to-morrow evening in the farce-comedy, "What Kitty Did"—a very amusing little play which highly pleased those who saw it at the Grand yesterday afternoon. The tickets will be 50c to all parts of the house and the entire proceeds will be turned over to the unfortunate players, whose position is not to be envied.

The company deserve a better reception at the hands of theatre goers than they have been receiving. Miss Crawley, who is a niece of Lord Kitchener, is a well known actress, and at the time of the South African war filled an engagement in Pretoria. Her New York engagement was under the management of Mr. Chas. Frohman, and she has also been associated with the Ben Greet players, whom it will be remembered gave a delightful performance at the Grand some seasons ago. She is supported by a capable and clever cast of English players, and it is hard to understand why the attraction did not play to better business.

Peterborough people have always had the reputation of being generous when a case of real necessity comes to their notice and undoubtedly the position that Miss Crawley and those associated with her are in, will be appreciated especially by the regular patrons of the Grand, and there will be a bumper house to greet them in "What Kitty Did" to-morrow night. Messrs. Turner & Sons realize that this is a deserving case for assistance—hence their action in rendering the company the use of the Grand.

The County Sunday School Association

The annual meeting of the County of Peterborough Sunday School Association was held in the Y.M.C.A. on Monday fore noon. There were present representatives from Otonabee, Lakefield and Smith, and Asphodel districts.

The minutes of last annual meeting were read and confirmed. The treasurer presented a statement showing receipts of $79.50 as follows: Otonabee, $50.00; Smith and Lakefield, $11.00; Asphodel, $6.75; Belmont, $6.50; North Smith and Harvey, $5.50. Of this amount, $70.00 was contributed to the funds of the Provincial Association, and the balance is on hand.

The budget for the year was considered, and it was decided to ask the different districts to aim at the following amounts for this year, and the local executives were asked to take steps to apportion their amounts among the different schools and notify them as soon as possible, Otonabee, $50.00; Lakefield and Smith, $35.00; Asphodel, $20.00; Belmont, $10.00; Dummer, $7.50; North Smith and Harvey, $5.00.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—J. A. Finley, Norwood.
Vice-Pres.—H. S. Bissell, Lakefield.
Secretary—R. Lees, Peterborough.
Treasurer—A. J. Johnston.
Superintendents—
Teacher Training — Rev. D. A. Thomson, Hastings.
Home Department—A. E. Kennedy, Lakefield.
Elementary Grades—Miss E. L. Waters, Norwood.
Adult Bible Class — Percy Udy, Bridgenorth.

TREATY WITH WEST INDIES

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, APRIL 9.—Hon. Geo. E. Foster announced this afternoon that the treaty with the West Indies would be signed this afternoon, but must be ratified by the respective legislatures and governments; also by the Imperial government, before becoming law.

K. C. BANQUET

The banquet that concluded the Knights of Columbus ceremonies in the auditorium of St. Peter's School yesterday, was a fitting close to the most successful exemplification of K. C. work ever witnessed in this city. The day was begun by attending mass at St. Peter's Cathedral and the eloquent address of Rev. Father Hurley of St. Michael's College, Toronto, was not the least interesting feature of the day's work.

Over three hundred men were seated at the banquet which brought the day's proceedings to a close, and which was ably presided over by Dr. F. P. McNulty, Grand Knight of Peterborough Council.

Among the speakers were Mr. T. P. Hart and Mr. Mulcahy of Orillia, Mr. J. J. McDonnell of Lindsay, Mr. Daniel O'Connell, Past State Deputy for Ontario, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, Rev. Father McColl, Chaplain of Peterborough Council, Rev. Father Hurley, Rev. Father J. O'Brien, of Lakefield, and others. The addresses by Mr. O'Connell, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick and Rev. Father McColl were particularly interesting and eloquent.

A very enjoyable programme interspersed the speeches, Mr. Geo. Lynch, Mr. John King, Mr. Comier of Lakefield, and several of the Orillia members, contributing. One of the most memorable occasions in the history of Peterborough Council was closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

CATTLE SOLD AT HIGH PRICE.

Mr. Jos. Meehan, auctioneer, Peterborough, held a very successful sale of stock in the old American hotel yards on Saturday last. Mr. Meehan intends holding these large sales occasionally, which will enable the Peterborough farmers to secure cattle.

Arctic Not To Go North

OTTAWA, APRIL 9.— The government has definitely decided not to send the steamer "Arctic" into northern waters this summer, owing to the recent work done in the far north. The services of Capt. Bernier will, however, be retained.

Among the world's best things to drink is "SALADA" Tea. Its purity, flavour and deliciousness stand unrivalled.

Chinese Robbed

BROCKVILLE, ONT., APRIL 9. — In broad daylight this morning three desperadoes entered the Chinese restaurant here, covered the proprietors with revolvers and forced them to give up over one hundred dollars secreted under the mattress. They cleared out before the police got onto the trail. It is thought they went west from here.

KIPLING AGAIN.

Kipling has broken out in a poetic rash, and written some verses condemning Home Rule. This denunciation may have some effect, too. Kipling cursed the climate of Canada, under the figure of our Lady of the Snows. We regarded that as a libel, but under the Borden Government, Kipling's metrical cold feet have their realization in the ghastly spring weather we are shivering under on the ninth day of mild-mannered April.

GOING ABROAD FOR MEN.

Many of the faithful, who resented the appointment of Hon. A. B. Morine as Chairman of the Civil Service Commission, because he was an outsider, are now called upon to applaud the appointment of Mr. Clyde Leveit of the Uited States Forestry Service as Chief Forester of the Canadian Conservation Commission, and chief inspector of the Canadian Railway Commission. No objection can be urged to the new appointee, on account of nationality, assuming that he is qualified for the position, and becomes a Canadian. We are receiving in the West so many of our good United States citizens, as the raw material for good Canadians, that one more cannot be objected to. But it seems singular that a Government that was elected on the cry of "no truck nor trade with the Yankees" should go across the line to get incumbents for important offices.

WHERE CHICAGO LEADS

Can't Ontario do as well as Chicago? Next Wednesday, in Chicago, the first wedding will be solemnized under the new regulation which requires both bridegroom and bride to furnish a certificate of health to accompany the marriage license. If Chicago takes so much pains to secure the healthy condition of the subjects of a marriage—most probably of temporary character—why cannot Ontario provide against the marriage for life of subjects afflicted with hereditary diseases or tainted with insanity, or weak-minded, or otherwise fitted to transmit to posterity, a family of similarly affected children. Dr. Godfrey should keep at the work of regulating marriage till he gets legislation that will prevent the marriage of persons physically and mentally unfit to be parents to their kind, and keep up the pitiful supply of insane and idiotic that now encumbers our public institutions, impair the quality of our citizenship and constitute living reproaches to our civilization.

THE SENATE AND ITS USEFULNESS.

Those good Conservative journals, who do not wish to conserve the Senate, but rather to destroy it, were not very greatly in sympathy with the Liberal Government of Great Britain when it sought to pass really reform legislation in face of the opposition of the House of Lords. The Canadian Senate, a few years ago, killed an act of parliament passed by the Commons, and these same Conservatives applauded its action to the echo. And if they had the good of the people at heart to-day they would approve the action of the Senate in revising hasty legislation, in the interests of the country. A Senate may be an occasional inconvenience; but, on the whole, it exercises fairly well the function of a balance wheel—keeps the legislative machinery of the Commons from running wild. The Canadian Senate is not so pyrotechnic in its methods and moods as the House of Commons, and the reports of its proceedings do not possess that lurid interest that sometimes and very often attracts public attention to the oratorical bouts of the representatives of the people. But any man who prefers the meat to the rind—the clear beer to the froth, if he blows the dust off a volume of proceedings of the Senate, will find in them a mine of valuable information. The Senate digs in workings that the elected chamber disdains, and in their search they unearth much solid information that can be used with advantage in shaping the legislation of the Commons. The Senate might be improved by making it elective, and in other ways, but knocking the venerable body on the head would be putting a good deal of sound gray matter out of commission. Our Conservative friends, in a moment of pique, demand the destruction of the Senate, but that does not prevent a fair number of Conservatives from aching to fill whatever Senate vacancies exist; and there is no doubt that if all the senatorial seats should become vacant, we should find enough Conservatives to sacrifice their feelings of resentment at the recent action of the Senate, and to don the senatorial togs. In fact if the Senate were made entirely Conservative, or even with a good working Conservative majority, the objections to it now expressed in some quarters, would disappear.

WHAT WE COULD DO.

As a result of congestion of business and labour troubles in Great Britain, an order for a full-size canal steamer has been placed with the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company, by the Keystone Transportation Co. of Montreal. The result will be that the transportation company will have as staunch a ship as if it had been built in England. The Western Dry Dock Company of Port Arthur have received an order for a second steel freighter from the Merchants' Mutual Line, making the fourth of the big steamers now building at these yards. These facts go to additionally justify the Canadian naval policy of the Laurier Government, which provided for the construction of the vessels of the Canadian navy, in Canada. If this policy had been carried out instead of having been practically abandoned by the faint hearted Borden Government, we might have had at this minute, or in the near future, Canadian work men building Canadian material into Canadian cruisers; and if these would not fully occupy the necessary shipyards, the latter could be devoted to commercial ship building. The idea of building the ships of a Canadian navy in Canada argued statesmanlike foresight. Circumstances might arise far more serious than the recent interruption to construction activity and ability in Great Britain, that would prevent the building of Canadian ships for commercial purposes in the Old Country. It would then be a good thing to have Canadian shipyards to fall back upon. To the excellent shipbuilding plants now in operation in Canada, to supply chiefly internal navigation vessels, would be added the yards for building Canadian cruisers. We would thus be on the highway to the establishment of a great shipbuilding industry in Canada. The hundreds of ships that will have to be built for Canadian ocean-going transportation could all be built in Canada; and, besides, with our wealth of material there is no reason why we should not in time take rank with the Mother Country as a ship-building country for other nations. Neither the British Navy, nor the British shipbuilding industry sprang into full panoplied being as did the goddess of myth. Both were a slow evolution—the work of centuries. Canada should make a beginning, as Canada had made a beginning by the adoption of a Canadian naval policy, which was killed by the Borden Government. In the beginning, our navy might have been a modest affair, but it would have grown healthily and steadily, and with its growth, would have grown the ship-building industry in Canada. Now we are all at sea. The Borden Government acknowledges that it has no naval policy, and is going to go to England in search of one. We had a naval policy that was approved by the British Admiralty. The present Government of super-loyalists have set it aside, and have provided no substitute.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Did we ever have weather like this when the Laurier Government was in power?

Sir James Whitney's policy of brow beating, remarks the Hamilton Times the Legislature does not seem to work as well as it used to work. The members no longer seek to take refuge under the desks when they hear the ferocious roars resounding through the building.

A NOTE OF APPRECIATION.

(Montreal Herald)

There has been seduloously cultivated in some parts of the Dominion, and especially in the neighbouring Province of Ontario, the idea that there is in the Province of Quebec a conspiracy on the part of French-speaking Canadians to do hurt to the English speaking minority. It is to be co-extensive with the speaking of the French language and adherence to the Roman Catholic religion.

One could wish that all of the good people into whose ears this legend is dinned might be made aware of what happened in Montreal on Wednesday. In sixteen of the wards where the French speaking people of Montreal predominate, the representative candidate of the English speaking minority for an important civic office obtained a majority of the votes while in the whole city a candidate who believed French racial feeling would elect him lost his deposit. Now, if there were such a conspiracy as we hear about, the motive underlying it would certainly be in the minds of the most distinctively French population in Canada, which is to be found in the east end of Montreal. When people go about making it uncomfortable for a minority, they do not ease up on their purpose. Never, at least, do they show themselves positively friendly. We in Montreal are so accustomed to such shows of friendliness that we look forward to them with confidence; possibly we do not always look back upon them with appreciation suited to the case.

In some other parts of Canada, perhaps, a relinquishment by a numerical majority of anything it could appropriate would be considered a sign of weakness. Quite probably there are those who think it due to inherent feebleness and lack of character that the majority here act differently. When a reputation for signal generosity is so well established that it can be counted upon with certainty, however, it is not weakness of character that is in evidence, but the reverse. If majorities elsewhere remain unconvinced, let them try the experience on their own account once in a while. They may profit by it.

They Don't Believe Mr. Morine Has Any Intention Of Quitting Job

Not a Man of the Resigning Type---Some Peculiar Complications in the Politics of the Appointment

OTTAWA, APRIL 8. — The announcement in the government press that Hon. A. B. Morine is to be dropped by the government has created great interest in departmental circles at Ottawa. A good many well-informed persons are inclined to doubt the accuracy of the announcement.

It is pointed out that Hon. Mr. Morine is not a man of the resigning type and that both times he was dropped from the Newfoundland government a British governor-general had to demand his resignation.

Borden Knows.

It is further noted that Premier Borden knew a good deal about Morine's record before he appointed him as both men are Nova Scotians, both are politicians and both members of the Nova Scotia bar and in addition to this association a letter was written to Mr. Borden a few years ago giving Morine's Newfoundland record in detail.

With that information Premier Borden did not hesitate to appoint Morine to purify the public service and it is argued in view of these facts that Premier Borden would hardly consent to drop him because the Newfoundland record had been given to parliament and the public by F. B. Carvell, M.P.

It is also regarded as unusual that the announcement should have been made several days after there had been a meeting of the government, and several days after Premier Borden had gone to the United States on a holiday and at a time when most of the ministers were out of the city.

His Late Honour.

It is also considered remarkable that the government gave Morine a place of honour at the head table at the official dinner given to the West Indian delegates if it had determined to decapitate him.

In view of the character of the exposee it will be considered remarkable if Morine does not go, and in view of the other considerations enumerated above it will be considered remarkable if he does go. In the meantime, it is announced that Morine will continue to investigate.

LIEUTENANT OF BOURASSA TO THANK ROBLIN

Mr. Armand Lavergne, Bourassa's Nationalist Lieutenant, Goes to Winnipeg to Thank Premier Roblin

FOR SEPARATE SCHOOLS

QUEBEC, APRIL 8.—Nationalist feeling here is that the Manitoba Government has so far well done the work delegated by Premier Borden to the Provincial Government in regard to the restoration of separate schools as a pendent of the boundary settlement. Messrs D. O. Lesperance, Armand Lavergne and Alleyn Taschereau left this afternoon for Winnipeg, where they will represent the district of Quebec at the Roblin banquet, which will take place there on the 11th instant.

Interviewed on the object of his trip, Mr. Armand Lavergne, Bourassa's lieutenant, said that he was glad to go and thank Mr Roblin for what the latter has just done for the cause of the Catholic minority in Manitoba and to encourage him in completing his work of justice. He accepted the recent settlement as a step in the right direction, and with a renewed hope of a final triumph. This settlement had not theoretically re-established separate schools, but its operation practically meant their restoration in fact.

HOMESEEKERS' AND SETTLERS' SPECIAL TRAINS TO WESTERN CANADA

Via Chicago and St. Paul, April 16th, 23rd, and 30th, and every second Tuesday thereafter, until Sept. 17th, inclusive. Tickets will also be on sale on certain dates via Sarnia and Northern Navigation Company. Special train will leave Toronto 10.30 p.m. on above dates for Edmonton, and points in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, stopping at all points on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway west of Winnipeg. Through coaches and Pullman Tourist Sleepers will be carried, fully equipped with bedding and porter in charge. Berths may be secured in sleepers at a low rate. This is an exceptional opportunity for those wishing to take advantage of the remarkably low one-way settlers' rates or round trip Homeseekers' excursions through the American cities. No change of cars. Secure tickets and berth reservations from any Grand Trunk Agent, or write A. E. Duff, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto. d-w-tf

MRS. ROLLINS IS ELECTED

KINGSTON, APRIL 7.—Mrs. R. W. Leonard, of Ottawa, has consented to extend for another year her offer to the Alumnae Association of Queen's University to contribute ten per cent. of the total subscription to Queen's Women's Residence. At present, the fund has reached $11,000 and it is expected that this will be trebled in another twelve months. The Alumnae Association has re-elected Miss M. E. Marty of Ottawa president; Mrs. John MacGillivray, (Kingston), Mrs. D. D. Calvin (Toronto, and Mrs. Rollins of Peterborough, Vice-Presidents; Miss May Macdonnell, Kingston, Secretary, and Miss Edith Goodwin, Kingston, Treasurer.

FIRST APPLICATION DARKENS THE HAIR

A Simple Remedy Gives Colour, Strength and Beauty to the Hair.

You don't have to have gray hair or faded hair if you don't want to. Why look old or unattractive? If your hair is gray or faded, you can change it easily, quickly and effectively by using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. Apply a little to-night, and in the morning you will be agreeably surprised at the results from a single application. The gray hairs will be less conspicuous, and after a few more applications will be restored to natural colour.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur also quickly removes dandruff, leaves the scalp clean and healthy, and promotes the growth of hair. It is a clean wholesome dressing which may be used at any time with perfect safety.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist to-day, and see how quickly it will restore the youthful colour and beauty of your hair and forever end the nasty dandruff, hot, itchy scalp and falling hair. All druggists sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if you are not satisfied after fair trial.

SERVICES APPRECIATED

The Church Wardens of St. John's received a few days ago the following letter referring to the visit to Buffalo of Rev. Canon Davidson:

Church Wardens,
St. John's Church,
Peterborough, Ont,

Dear Sirs,—As chairman of the committee in charge of the noonday Lenten services held under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, I am writing you to tell you how much we enjoyed and profited by the visit of your Rector, Canon Davidson.

I learned after he arrived, that he came under considerable difficulty, owing to the death of one of the prominent members of your parish, which made us doubly appreciative of his visit. He made a great many friends here and has left an impression which will last.

Should you ever happen to be in Buffalo on a Sunday I hope you will be sure to visit St. Paul's church, where the services were held and make yourself known to some of the Brotherhood men there.

Yours very truly,
JOHN K. WALKER,
77 to 83 Pearl St., Buffalo.

FAREWELL BANQUET TO MR. R. A. STOCKDALE

An interesting event took place last evening in the Oriental Hotel, when R. A. Stockdale was banquetted by a number of his fellow-employees. The occasion was his approaching departure for Toronto. Mr. Stockdale is a moulder in the Wm. Hamilton Foundry, and was held in high esteem by his fellow-employees and friends, about fifty of whom assembled last evening. During the proceedings he was the happy recipient of a handsome illuminated address, which was read by Mr. H. Robertson. Mr. Stockdale suitably responded.

The remainder of the evening was spent in music and singing. Messrs Lee and Cairns furnished some excellent vocal selections, and the banjo solos of Mr. George Clarke proved an acceptable diversion.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N.B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat trouble, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

FOOTBALL

At the annual meeting of the Ontario Football Association, held yesterday in Toronto, Mr. W. A. Milburn, of the local C.G.E. Club, was elected a member of the Match committee.

Dr. J. A. Devitt, of the Midland League, was elected president of the Association for the year.

The Knox church Football Club will meet in the church on Thursday evening at eight o'clock for the purpose of re-organizing the team for the season. A full attendance is expected.

GIVE POSTMASTER REASONABLE TIME

An anonymous communication has been received complaining that Mr. Edzar, Postmaster, is conducting private business as well as acting as Postmaster. This seems to be a small matter. Mr. Edzar should be allowed a reasonable time to close up his private business without being subjected to loss in the operation.

THE 1912 McLAUGHLIN

$2,350 F. O. B. OSHAWA

The automobilist who delights in a motor that hums a steady though quiet tune—that is responsive to his controlling touch—that seems to laugh at hills and sandy roads—and who appreciates the little conveniences that add to his comfort—the Self-Starter, the complete Electric Light Plant, with separate dynamo—such a man should inspect McLaughlin-Buick Model "43".

The 40 to 50 H.P. Buick Motor provides ample reserve power for all emergencies.

The dependability to the manufacturer is more to be trusted than the cleverest arguments of the salesman. That is why the cautious purchaser of an automobile places more reliance on the reputation of the McLaughlin Car and its makers than on the most glowing promises of a salesman, however well they may be founded.

Your future satisfaction demands that your choice be a McLaughlin-Buick.

HIS HONOUR JUDGE LATCHFORD ADDRESSES THE GRAND JURY

At The Opening of The Spring Assizes Which Commenced at One O'clock This Afternoon---Makes Some Important Remarks Concerning Confinement in Common Gaol of Those Afflicted With Insanity Als o Vagrants

The spring sitting of the Court of Assizes for the County of Peterborough commenced this afternoon at one o'clock with His Honour Judge Latchford presiding. Following the usual ceremonies attendant upon the opening of the High Court, the Grand Jury was sworn in. The jury is composed of the following gentlemen: J. J. Turner, foreman, Messrs. R. Hill, R. Sheehan, S. A. Oke, G. Patterson, W. G. Read, M. Whitney, A. Prest, J. Harrison, C. Thompson, S. Ray and A. McIntyre.

The following members of the bar were present: Mr. F. M. Fields, K.C., Cobourg; Mr. E. G. Porter, K.C., Belleville; Messrs. D. J. Lynch and A. B. Colville, Campbellford; Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, Mr. D. O'Connell, Mr. G. N. Gordon.

Gentlemen of the Jury,—You will be glad to know, as I am glad to know, that there are no criminal cases. Therefore, your only duty will be to visit the gaol, court house and other institutions of the county receiving aid from the government, and report to me as to the fitness of these institutions for the work they are supposed to do, and also make such recommendations for improvement which, in your judgment, should be made. You will first visit the court house and the gaol.

A prison should be a suitable place for confinement of those unfortunate or criminal enough to be incarcerated there. I find in the report of the gaol that there are a number of inmates confined therein who cannot be classified as criminals, but are awaiting removal to some other institution where they will receive the care and treatment especially adapted to their case. Two of those who are confined in the gaol are insane and have been incarcerated for some months pending their removal elsewhere. These are not criminals, but there are some criminals responsible for the detention of these unfortunates. The responsibility lies with us for the conditions that exist as regards this matter. This is a condition which should not be tolerated. There is another matter that calls for observation at your hands, and that is the detention in the gaol of people who are poor. A number of these are incarcerated in the gaol whose ages run from 65 and upwards, and are classed as vagrants. The gaol is no place for these people. The fact that they are poor is the only offence that they are known to have committed upon civilization. There should be some other place besides the common gaol, which is only a place for criminals, for the housing of these unfortunates. What recommendations you may make in this respect, is for you to decide.

After this you may visit the hospitals. As a rule the hospitals are splendidly conducted. But it would do no harm for you to exercise your right to inspect these institutions.

As the court is not likely to last over to-morrow morning, I would ask you to be as expeditious as possible in the discharge of your duties as consistent with proper judgment.

Criminal Case Opened.

The case of Samuel Newall, a farmer of Dummer Township, who was charged with criminal assault upon one Maggie Moore of the same Township, was then taken up. Mr. F. M. Fields, K.C., Cobourg, represented the Crown, and Mr. G. N. Gordon acted on behalf of the defence.

The prisoner presented a pitiable sight in court. He is practically a physical wreck and required assistance into the dock. It will be remembered that a postponement was made in the case at the Fall Assizes, owing to the physical condition of the defendant. The Grand Jury on that occasion brought in a true bill against the prisoner.

The following jury were sworn in: Messrs. E. Mann, A. McEwen, T. Davis, S. Miller, R. D. Short, W. Puffer, G. Fitzgerald, J. C. Fowler, H. C. Robertson, D. Philips, J. Blewett, and T. Petrie.

The Crown Prosecutor addressed the Jury, and made special reference to the seriousness of the charge with which they would have to deal.

The prisoner entered a plea of not guilty.

The first witness called was the plaintiff, Miss Maggie Moore. She related the circumstances leading up to the committing of the crime.

At the time of going to press, witness was under examination by the counsel for the defence, Mr. G. N. Gordon.

CHIVALRY WAS NOT APPRECIATED

man say anything that was grossly insulting or abusive.

Cook, the defendant in the case, took the stand, and testified to the effect that on Wednesday last he purchased three blinds from the wife of the plaintiff, at the price of 60 cents. He returned to the store on Saturday and purchased three more, tendering the proprietor 75 cents, in payment. Cook called the store-keeper's attention to the fact that he had purchased three similar blinds a few days previous for 60 cents. The proprietor explained this transaction as a mistake on the part of his wife, who sold the goods. He said he would give her a "calling down" for selling the goods below cost. Cook remonstrated and threatened to give him a "trimming" if he mentioned the transaction to his wife.

Cook placed a new construction on the word "trimming," defining it as a word which implied that the victim whom it was used upon, would receive a "calling down" by word of mouth.

"I don't find the charge proven," said the Magistrate. Cook was a little indiscreet, but if there was any offense committed the proprietor was the greater offender of the two."

The case was dismissed, the plaintiff paying the costs of the court.

Is Sickness A Habit?

With many sickness undoubtedly becomes to some extent a habit. They have "bilious spells," "sick headaches," "attacks of indigestion." Why not take loose from these ailments and know once more the joy of good health?

It takes a little will power. You may have to deny yourself some luxuries which do not agree with you, but it is worth while to be well and to prolong life. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you, because they act definitely and directly on the liver and thereby remove the cause of biliousness, headache and indigestion.

Stir up the liver by taking one Kidney-Liver pill occasionally at bedtime and you will free yourself of many annoying ills, the temper will be less irritable and you will find more joy in living.

FIRE BRIGADE DEPT. WILL BE FURNISHED WITH NEW RUBBER COATS AND BOOTS

The Fire, Water and Light committee met last evening at 7.30 with four members present at the opening of the meeting. They were: Chairman Ald. Johnston, Ald. Gordon, Ald. Brown and Ald. Anderson. The ranks of the committee was strengthened later by the presence of Mayor Bradburn, Ald. Morgan, Ald. Graham, Ald. Duncan and Ald. Buller.

The matter of purchasing 800 feet of new hose for the Fire Department was first taken up. Four tenders have been received altogether representing the Dunlop Rubber Company, Goodyear Rubber Co., Gutta Percha Rubber Co. and the Kingan Hardware Co. The last named represented the Canadian Rubber Company. Prices in all cases ranged from 95c. to $1.10 per foot. A three year guarantee accompanied the tenders and also communications which elaborated upon the qualities of the hose.

Ald. Morgan moved that the Dunlop Company be awarded the contract for 400 feet of Imperial solid woven jacket hose at one dollar per foot f.o.b. Peterborough. This includes couplings and expansion rings complete. The motion, which was seconded by Ald. Anderson, carried unanimously.

It was moved by Ald. Anderson and seconded by Ald. Brown that the contract for a further supply of 400 feet be awarded to the Gutta Percha Company. The hose to be of Paragon brand and to be purchased on condition that the company deliver it f.o.b. Peterborough at $1 per foot, couplings complete.—Carried.

"Light Outages."

The attention of the committee was then focused on the question of "light outages" of the past three months as reported upon by Fire Chief Howard. Accompanying the report was the bill of the Peterborough Light and Power Co. for the last quarter's light.

The number of street lights reported out for the first quarter of 1912 was 73. The arc lights were kept burning on moonlight nights as per agreement which was drawn up between the city and the Peterborough Light and Power Co. recently. This had resulted in the consumption of over 3,000 additional carbons which, in addition to the cost of trimming the lamps, involved considerable expense. The Chief had recommended in his report, at the request of Mr. Munro, manager of the Peterborough Light and Power Co., that the fines be not assessed.

The city pays 16 2-3c. per night for each arc light and when a light is reported out this amount is deducted and a fine of 25c. added, making a total of 41 2-3c. charged against the Power Co. for each light reported out.

Ald. Morgan suggested that the deduction of 16 2-3c. per light be made and that the fines be allowed to go.

This suggestion was later put in the form of a motion by Ald. Morgan and seconded by Ald. Gordon.

Ald. Brown moved an amendment to the effect that the fines be added. Considerable discussion then arose as to the method employed by the Fire Chief in recording the lights out.

Chief Howard, who was present at the meeting, explained that he adopted a coupling up system of recording the number of lights out. That is, in a case where it was conclusively shown that lights had burned out, and the carbons were only half consumed, it was recorded as no light.

A number of the aldermen took exception to this method and favoured the system whereby a record would be made of each individual light reported out, together with the number of hours.

Ald. Morgan withdrew his former resolution and moved that the bill of $39.58, the full amount, with fines included for lights reported out during the last quarter be charged up to the company.

Ald. Brown seconded the motion and it was carried in spite of a couple of dissenting voices.

Ald. Morgan—"Are we getting better results in the way of a light service outside of moonlights nights?"

Ald. Johnston—"I know of one place where we are."

A communication was also received from the Peterborough Light and Power Co. to the effect that the arc light on Lock street had been moved to the centre of the street in accordance with the wishes of last year's Fire, Water and Light committee. This makes a total of 26 lights moved to the centre of the streets. A charge of two dollars per year for each light so moved is made against the city.

Wants to Borrow Fire Chief.

Charles D. White, chairman of the Sherbrooke, Que., Fire, Water and Light committee, wrote Ald. Johnston asking for information concerning the Peterborough Fire Department that would be of service in the reorganization of the Sherbrooke Fire Department. The writer also goes on to enquire if it would be possible to have Chief Howard visit Sherbrooke for a few days and to make such recommendations as he saw fit, with a view to reorganizing the department.

Mayor Bradburn favoured the idea of furnishing the required information, but he objected to the Chief absenting himself from the city. "If they want to see the system we have here and wish to get some pointers, let them come up," he said.

Ald. Johnston thought it would be a good idea to send the Chief down and charge them a couple of hundred dollars. "It would add to the revenue," said the chairman.

Ald. Morgan—"How is it they come to Peterborough for expert information?"

City Clerk Armstrong was authorized to notify the Sherbrooke committee that the information which they sought, was available.

The Long and the Short of It.

The matter of purchasing rubber coats and boots for the firemen was left in the hands of Ald. Johnston and the Fire Chief on motion of Ald. Buller and Ald. Gordon.

Chief Howard favoured the short, stiff rubber boot, while Ald. Morgan advocated the hip boot.

Ald. Johnston instanced the case of the Sunday morning fire at Mann's planing mill and also referred to the unbiased opinion expressed by Mr. T. McGachie, manager of the company, as regards the efficient work of the bridgade. He observed the men on more than one occasion taking off their rubber boots and emptying the water out.

Chief Howard recommended the short, stiff, rubber boot on the ground that they were easier to get into.

Ald. Buller thought that the Chief's recommendation should be substantiated.

Ald. Morgan offered to procure a pair of hip boots and show the committee that they would not fall down as was stated by the Chief.

Fire Protection.

The matter of placing a hydrant on Bonacord street was left in the hands of the chairman, who will look into the conditions, and report at a later date.

Moved by Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that the placing of an incandescent light at the corner of Division and London streets be approved of.—Carried.

INVASION FROM THE U. S. TO CONTINUE

Mr. Arch. D. Browne of Chicago, business manager of the British American and the Canadian American publications, Chicago, and a brother of Mr. James Browne of this city, says the American invasion of Canada will be greater than ever this year. In a recent interview, after a trip through the west. Mr. Browne said:

"If I possessed all of Rockefeller's wealth I would invest every cent of it in Western Canada. This is the land of opportunity. A man has fifty chances here to one in other parts of the continent. Americans are just beginning to wake up to the wonderful opportunities for profitable investment in Canada and this year will see a greater number of Americans come to Canada than ever before. You know all Americans are really Britishers, and when they see what wonderful chances there are out here they are not slow to grasp them. It is not always the old men that come from the United States to Canada. It is generally the young men. Their fathers buy them farms, or start them up in business out here, and they do well."

SPECIAL MEETINGS AT THE TABERNACLE

Special meetings were resumed in Bethany Tabernacle and the Rev. Mr. Chandler gave a very heart-searching message from the experiences of Jacob, as recorded in Genesis, Chapters 32 and 33. Though Jacob was deceitful and crafty, yet when he called upon God for help, God having thoroughly humbled him, gave help, and prospered him in his journey.

The special thought in the message was that it is absolutely necessary to be right with God and with our fellow men in order to prevail in prayer.

Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, at 3 and 8 p.m., Mr. Chandler will give Bible readings, to which all are cordially invited.

200 People Drowned

Special to The Examiner:

CAIRO, EGYPT, APRIL 9.—Two hundred persons, including several British and American tourists, were drowned yesterday in the capsizing of an excursion steamer on the river Nile, caused by a collision with a heavier vessel. At present it is impossible to secure the identity of the victims until the hotel registers are searched and the bodies recovered. Lord Kitchener, the British agent, is personally directing the operations of recovering bodies. This work is extremely difficult owing to the shifting sands at the bottom of the river. Some will probably never be recovered.

SEVEN CENTS A DOZ. FOR EGGS.

That's What We Used to Pay Wholesale in Canada.

OTTAWA, APRIL 9.—R. H. Coats, editor and chief statistician of the Labour Gazette, in a statement yesterday, shows that the wholesale prices of butter, eggs, and cheese in Canada during the past winter have been higher than in any year since 1890, and that the figures at which these household necessities are selling to-day are higher than those of any preceding April in this 22-year period.

The lowest wholesale price of fresh eggs in any April since 1890 was 7 cents per dozen in 1897. Last year they were 20 to 21 cents and this year 25 cents.

Butter sold at its lowest wholesale April figures also in 1897, the price being 19 to 21 cents for creamery prints. It was up to 31 to 32 in 1908, then receded back to 28 to 30 last year, and is now quoted at 35 to 36.

Cheese, wholesale, varied from 10½ in 1890, to 16, in the present month, save for a brief period in April, 1907, when it sold up to 17 cents.

NOTES AND NEWS ON WOMAN SUFFRAGE CONTROVERSY

Miss Roberts Critically Scarifies an Erring Anti-Suffragette

(Written for the Examiner by Miss Adeline C. Roberts.)

No. VII.

Last week the members of the Canadian Club had the pleasure of listening to an address by Mrs. Rossiter Johnson, of New York, on "Why women should not vote." The address proved an immense success, it being a generally admitted fact among suffragists that nothing gains so many new adherents to the cause of woman suffrage, as an address by an anti-suffragist. The audience, numbering about 600, was not disappointed, for the lecturer fulfilled all their expectations. Many in the audience, who were "on the fence" at the beginning of the address, were off it on the side of the suffragists before the lecture was half over.

Mrs. Johnson told her audience that women invented Socialism and Communism (evidently synonyms with her) which were at the root of the woman's movement, and whose principle was "Everyone for himself (or herself) and the devil take the hindmost"; that the French revolution was caused and carried on by women, that women invented all the religions of the world, that women invented constitutional government, that the ballot is not an expression of opinion, but an emblem, that woman suffrage advocated Mormonism which prevailed wherever equal franchise was established, that it advocated abolition of marriage, that women have not full suffrage in Victoria, Australia, that Finland is a province of Russia, and that the Spartan legislator, Lycurgus, went mad. The audience, having meekly absorbed all this and other exceedingly accurate information, she next conducted them in spirit to the Garden of Eden, and they settled down with patient resignation to hear once again the old, old platitude, that Adam was made before Eve. But no,—Mrs. Johnson had another card up her sleeve, and a brand new one, too. "Why," she asked her audience, "did Eve take the apple? Because it was pretty, and because it was good for food; and ever since then woman has been the food provider and the beautifier of the home." After this touching and novel interpretation of the sin of our first parents, a number of ladies in the audience were seen wiping the tears from their eyes. (It may be superfluous to add that they were not tears of sorrow.) But if Eve is our prototype of the ideal woman, why not Adam of the ideal man? Mrs. Rossiter Johnson did not say, as she might have done, "Why did Adam take the apple and lay all the blame on Eve? Because he was greedy and a coward, and ever since then"——no doubt she could have finished up the sentence in a complimentary way likewise.

Being requested to touch on the "white slave" traffic, she dismissed it with a few callous and cursory remarks to the effect that it was not nearly as wide-spread as it was made out to be, that accounts were much exaggerated by women sentimentalists, and that equal franchise had nowhere been effectual in checking it. But when asked by a member of the audience if she had read the recent report of the New York and Chicago vice-commissioners, who consist of men only, and whose report reveals an appalling state of things, and proves, without a shadow of a doubt, that this traffic is in reality a business, an enormous and widespread men's business, controlled and carried on by men and for men's profit, the lady had nothing to say.

Mrs. Johnson next proceeded to demonstrate the terrible and disastrous effects of woman suffrage in places where it was established. The old Colorado example was trotted out once more for inspection. Every anti-suffragist brings that forward as a convincing argument almost as regularly as the Adam and Eve platitude, and "woman's sphere is the home." An attempt to take away the character of Judge Lindsey was not encouraged, even by the "antis" in the audience; as well try to blacken the reputation of Dr. Grenfell. Her accounts of the terrible havoc and disaster wrought by the women voters in the suffrage States and countries made one marvel that she should imagine for a moment that women so incapable, so lacking in judgment, common sense and intelligence, so dishonest and so really wicked as she represented them to be, could be fit to trust with the care of a home and a family. When confronted with written testimony extolling the beneficial effects of equal franchise in Colorado from Mr. Creel, Judge Lindsey, 18 Mayors, Congressman Taylor and others, the lady had again nothing to say!

When the address was over, a member of the audience was heard to remark, "Well, I never took much interest in the question of equal franchise before, but if this is the case of the anti-suffragists, I am henceforth a suffragist." And this remark voiced the opinion of many. It is as well that there were a few "antis" in the hall who remained loyal to the good lady or she might perhaps have felt a little "lonesome" like the anti-suffrage speaker at the Congressional hearings on woman suffrage in Washington, last month. In a report of that meeting, (said to be the finest meeting ever yet held to discuss that question), we are told "Every one was struck with Miss Addams' kind and motherly treatment of the lone "anti" who was inexperienced, bewildered and a little scared."

The allegations in reference to Colorado have been so repeatedly exposed as utterly untrue, by various authorities, whose written testimony to that effect is easily available, that it is unnecessary to occupy further space with quotations from those authorities.

It is rather unfortunate that "Sylvia" happens to be herself a member of the female sex (at least, one judges so from the pseudonym) since she appears to entertain such a very poor opinion of the intelligence ,common-sense and ability of women in general. There are fully as many women in the world as there are men, "Sylvia," and scientific investigations of brain formations by many eminent professors have proved that there is no fundamental difference in mentality between man and woman. No sensible woman supposes that legislation is a "cure for evil" and that "every evil is to be counteracted and all good accomplished by it." But they do realize that present legislation is not adequate to meet present conditions, and the reason is that it is entirely one-sided, made only from man's point of view, and man, in the aggregate (for of course there are individual exceptions) puts money profits and business interests before the lives and health of the community.

Who are the profiters b ythe sweating system, which is ruining the lives and health of so many thousands of women and children? Who profit by the sale of impure milk, which is causing such a terribly large percentage of infant mortality in our cities and towns? Who profit by the sale of tuberculous meat, adulterated food stuffs, and intoxicating liquors? "Men" you say, are as willing to vote for laws which would cure such evils as women would be." Are they? So far, man's legislation has proved a failure in these respects, but laws have been made, and are still being made, dealing very effectively with these and other evils in every country and state where woman suffrage obtains. A significant fact. Legislation is not a sure cure for all evils, and will not accomplish everything, but it can be made more adquate but it can be made more adequate

We are so positive that Rexall Orderlies will do all that is claimed for them that we positively guarantee to hand back the money you paid us for them upon your mere request, if you are not entirely satisfied.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy, are very pleasant to the taste, do not gripe, cause nausea, or any other annoyance usually experienced when ordinary cathartics are used.

Rexall Orderlies have a positive regulative effect upon the bowels and tend to provide permanent relief from Constipation and the myriad of associate ailments. Besides, they help to overcome the necessity of the constant use of laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition.

We honestly believe there is no similar medicine so good as Rexall Orderlies, especially for children, aged or delicate people. They are prepared in convenient tablet form in three sizes of packages. Prices 10c., 25c., and 50c. Why not try them at our risk on our guarantee?

83RD ANNIVERSARY OF GEN. BOOTH'S BIRTHDAY

To-morrow (Wednesday) will be the eighty-third anniversary of the birth of General Booth, the founder and the "grand old man" of the Salvation Army. He was born in the city of Nottingham, England, on April 10th, 1829, and was reared in the Church of England, but at the age of fifteen years became converted and joined the Wesleyan church. He continued to worship in this connection in varied capacities until the year 1865, when he severed himself from this body and commenced mission work in the east end of old London. From this mission eventually developed the world-wide Salvation Army of the present day. In honour of the General's birthday, a special meeting in the form of a musical festival, will be held in the S. A. Temple, Simcoe street, to-morrow (Wednesday) evening, when a splendid programme of vocal and instrumental music will be rendered. One of the important items will be the presentation of a Bandmasters At silver cornet and a beautiful Guards patent side drum to the Temple Band. A cordial invitation is extended to the public. A voluntary collection only, being taken inside.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

A meeting of the Industrial Exhibition committee re buildings will be held to-night in the Dominion bank chambers.

PAID OUT OF THEIR OWN POCKETS

A correspondent, who, by the way, does not send his name, calls attention to the alleged fact that the directors of the Peterborough Industrial are in the habit of going for a luncheon or a "banquet" to a certain local restaurant, which is thus claimed to have a monopoly of the patronage of the directors. The correspondent objects to this as unfair favouritism, and discrimination against other purveyors of meals, and an improper use of Exhibition funds. It is explained that the directors go sometimes to this place for luncheon, and pay for the same out of their own pockets and not from the funds of the Industrial Exhibition.

WEDDING BELLS

BATTERSON—SMITH.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. John's Church, Peterborough, on Saturday evening by the Rev. Canon Davidson, when Frederick Thomas Batterson (late of Wolverton, England) was united in marriage to Ellen Smith, of Peterborough (late of Coventry, England). The groom was supported by Mr. Fred Monson, of Toronto, while Miss Annie Duckham, of Peterborough, acted as bridesmaid. The bride looked charming in a lovely white embroidered dress and black picture hat, while the bridesmaid also wore white. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ridyard, of Park st., where about 30 guests were ready to receive them. After partaking of supper, games were indulged in until the early hours. The musical honours were rendered by Mr. H. Lewis and Mr. G. Hewitt. The out-of-town guests included Miss Mollie Shakespeare and Miss Amy Sutton, of Toronto, and Mr. W. Pollard and Mr. H. Sheen, of Chester, England. Mr. and Mrs. Batterson will reside in Peterborough. The wedding presents were costly and numerous.

SHOULD OWN PORT

Mr. Rowell Makes Proposal in the Legislature

RESOLUTION VOTED DOWN

Toronto, April 10.—Ontario should have a port on Hudson Bay within its own boundary, according to N. W. Rowell, leader of the Opposition, who introduced an amendment to the Ontario Boundaries' Extension Act to that effect in the Legislature last night. Very few words were expressed on the move of the Liberal leader. The Government merely voted down the measure.

Mr. Rowell had said that it would fall upon the Government to extend its railway before it could take over the five-mile strip of land which was granted by the Federal Government. To this the Premier replied that the land became the absolute property of the province irrespective of whether the railway was built there or not.

Mr. Rowell's amendment was then voted down and the bill will receive its third reading to-day.

The leader of the Opposition also moved an amendment making provision for the re-adjustment of the debt allowance for Ontario on the same terms and conditions as the debt allowance for Manitoba is re-adjusted. This met the same fate as his previous amendment.

Than Hon. Adam Beck's bill to the effect that the granting of gas, electric light and telephone franchises to cross streets by municipal councils, should not be made without a vote of the people was under discussion in committee. Sir James Whitney pointed out that the municipalities must have absolute control of the highways, and despite the fact that it would probably work hardship on some companies in certain cases the principle should always rule.

Hon. W. J. Hanna's bill regulating the granting of bonuses to industries was considered in committee most the approval of both sides of the House. It provides that a bonus could not be granted without the assent of three-fourths of the council and two-thirds of the people.

Two Liberal members, Messrs. Mageau, Sturgeon Falls, and J. O. Elliott, West Middlesex, introduced a batch of questions for the Government to answer.

Mr. Elliott's notice of motion is with respect to bilingual schools. He wants information regarding all reports made to provincial school inspectors about the character efficiency and teaching in the schools in five eastern counties since January 1, 1910; all correspondence, memorials, resolutions, affidavits, protests or complaints; all orders authorized by the Government to meet charges, the schools in said counties from which the provincial grant was withheld during the past two years; and the evidence upon which grants were paid in 1911 to schools from which grants had been withheld the previous year.

Mr. Mageau wants a line on all correspondence respecting the development of the Smokey Falls water power on the Sturgeon River for the town of Sturgeon Falls at the time when the lease for the water power was cancelled, and that it would be developed for the town of Sturgeon Falls and the Imperial Paper Mills Co.

Following to-day, the House will open every morning at 11 o'clock, and it is the intention to also hold night sessions this week. There is hope of the session ending on Friday.

The appearance of Hon. A. J. Matheson in the Legislature yesterday afternoon for the first time since his illness, was the signal for an outburst of applause from both sides of the House.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

By the end of the week it is expected that practically the whole British mining industry will be under full operation again.

While riding in one of the classes at the Calgary horse show yesterday afternoon, Percy Sawtelle, a youthful rider, was terribly injured when his horse threw him over its head.

A child of Richard Driscoll of Brockville, aged 15 months, drank a solution of paint and coal oil from a dish and died in five minutes from shock. No inquest will be held.

All of Montreal's telegraph and telephone wires and power cables must go. The work of removing the unsightly poles from the city streets will be commenced early in the coming summer.

An aftermath of the recent floods is the complete tie-up on the G.T.R. north of Hanover. Since Saturday not a train has come in or gone out owing to washouts at Ben Allan, Parkhead and Tara.

Archbishop Bruchesi, Montreal, whose health has been impaired of late on account of his many duties, left yesterday for Detroit, Toledo and other parts of the United States, where he will sojourn for three weeks.

Five persons were killed and thirty injured in a bomb explosion in Lisbon yesterday. The bomb was thrown at a religious procession which was marching through the streets on its way to one of the principal churches.

The abnormal weight of 860 pounds attained by Abraham Sodekson of Boston caused his death yesterday from fatty degeneration of the heart. During his sickness it is estimated that he gained in weight at the rate of 20 pounds a day.

Col. John Barlow and Col. Crosse, both of the National Rifle Association of England, will arrive from England on April 22, to confer with the D.R.A. upon any differences that exist in connection with the sending of a team to Bisley this year.

W. D. Staples, M.P. for Macdonald, a practical farmer, will probably be one of the commissioners on the new Dominion grain board. The other two are said to be Prof. Magill of Halifax and Frank N. Gibbs, chief grain inspector at Fort William.

Receiver Gets Three Months.

Hamilton, April 10.—Moe Levy, a pawnbroker of James street north, was yesterday convicted of the charge of having received stolen goods, and sentenced by Judge Snider to three months in jail.

Harry Burgoyne, who is now serving a term for the theft, stated that he stole them from Chapman Brothers, jewelers, Toronto, and that he told Levy that they were stolen before Levy bought them.

It was shown that when Levy heard of Burgoyne's conviction, that he took some of the goods from his store to his home.

TREATY IS SIGNED

West Indies Reciprocity Pact Completed at Ottawa

AGREEMENT IS REVOCABLE

Ottawa, April 10.—In the presence of His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, in the historic room in the east block, which has been the offices of the Governor-General for years, the treaty between the delegates and the West Indies was signed at 3.20 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster, at the close of the conference, handed out the following official statement: "An agreement was signed yesterday by the representatives of the West Indian colonies and the Government of Canada. It was the result of five days' sitting in conference and a deal of steady work done outside the conference by sub-committees.

"The agreement is made for a term of years and revocable at the end of the period named therein on one year's notice. It includes exchange of products on a wide and generous scale and is based on a preference to the products of each country in the markets of the other.

"The agreement goes to the Governments of the colonies included for consideration and comes into effect when approved by both the Dominion and Colonial Legislatures, and His Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies. It will be possible for all these to consider and decide, and for the agreement to go into effect before the beginning of the year 1913. Judging by the instructions given to the various delegates by their respective Governments and the evident goodwill and harmonious co-operation shown by them in the sessions of the conference, it is anticipated that no objection will be made to the speedy ratification of the agreement.

"The agreement is between Canada and the interested colonies alone, and leaves both with complete liberty to adjust their tariffs as respect all other countries. Grenada, the Bahamas, Bermuda, Jamaica and British Honduras are the only British West Indian colonies that are not included, and for these the latch-string is left on the outside of the door and the lamp kept burning in the window, with a warm welcome certain for them when they come.

"The question of improved cable and steamship communication between Canada and the West Indies were carefully considered, and the views of the conference were embodied in resolutions unanimously passed. The objective of these resolutions is to effect an up-to-date and adequate cable and steamship connection, based upon the co-operation of the West Indian colonies, the Dominion of Canada and the Government of Great Britain. Inasmuch as the agreement is to be submitted to the various Governments concerned for their consideration and approval, it is not advisable to give the details thereof at present to the public."

Teachers Are Exonerated.

Woodstock, Ont., April 10.—The magistrate's judgment in the case of assault charged against R. A. F. McCrimmon, and Vincent Price assistant masters at Woodstock College (Baptist), who, it was alleged, assaulted a Jamaican student, H. V. Hoppwood, by cruelly beating him on his bare back while holding him over the vaulting horse, was given out yesterday morning, and was "not guilty, case dismissed, no costs."

In giving this decision Magistrate Ball pointed out that the charge was not laid by the boy, and that the punishment was not excessive, and, therefore, not against the law. The only fault he found was with the method of administering punishment. The magistrate strongly urged that in the future corporal punishment be only administered under the specific order of the principal and under his supervision.

Will Hang for Shooting Policeman.

Ottawa, April 10.—Word reached the officers of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police yesterday that Fritz Eberts, a German, will hang on June 1 for the murder of E. George Wilmott, at Frank, Alberta.

Wilmott and two or three other members of the mounted police were patrolling at or near Frank, and came across men who had been committing robbery. In the fight that followed Wilmott met his death.

An Even Break In Vermont.

Montpelier, Vt., April 10.—Half the Vermont delegates to the Chicago convention were chosen yesterday and Taft and Roosevelt supporters split even in the struggle for control. The delegation will be completed to-day at the state convention with the choice of the four delegates at large. The Taft delegates were elected in the first district by a majority of 78, while Roosevelt men won in the second district by a margin of 30 votes.

C.P.R. Fireman Fatally Burned.

North Bay, Ont., April 10.—Sidney Aldrich, a young C.P.R. fireman, was fatally burned Monday night. A boiler tube burst, blowing steam back through the firebox, carrying live coals with it. Aldrich was caught in the rush of fire.

NATIONAL SCHOOLS NEEDED

Toronto, April 10.—Bilingual schools came in for a sound trouncing at yesterday afternoon's session of the public and high school trustees' department of the Ontario Educational Association. The discussion was stirred up by a paper by J. R. Lumby of Fort William, on "The Stranger Within Our Gates," and as a result a committee consisting of Dr. Elliott, Kingston; James McEwing, Drayton, and F. W. Gladman, Exeter, was appointed to consider the question and urge on the advisory council of education the necessity for an amendment to the school act to make it impossible under the truancy section of the act for schools to teach a foreign language to the exclusion of English.

"Our object," said A. Werner of Elmira, "is not to find out whether these schools receive grants or not, but we want to make Canadians of our children."

He had no intention of quarreling with parochial schools such as were maintained by the Lutherans, to give children of immigrants a working knowledge of English. Little Italies, Little Austrias or Little Russias should, however, be strenuously combatted in Canada.

Under the Truancy Act, as it was at present, foreigners imported teachers from their own lands and children were allowed to absent themselves from the public schools to attend these if they were "efficiently conducted." An American teacher's views on our history, said Mr. Werner, were naturally distorted and he did not make for the uplifting of Canada.

James McEwing of Drayton insisted that all schools should be under the control of the state. "We are careless in Canada," he said, "in letting foreigners know that this is a British country." Why, he asked, should the recommendation of the advisory council a couple of years ago in this regard have been ignored by the Legislature and no explanation made?

"Our population," said Mr. Lumby, in his paper, "was being recruited from every race of Europe and some of Asia. We could not check the tide if we would, the most powerful weapon for assimilating these heterogeneous elements was our system of national schools."

In the rural sections of the Northwest good work had been done in Canadianizing English-speaking immigrants, but in the cities there was a grave danger where the foreign element was large. It was common to find men who had long ago qualified for naturalization, still quite ignorant of the language spoken or written of the country to which they had become bound.

In hard-fought political campaigns, he said, foreigners who had acquired a mastery over their own people by acting as interpreters, often were avowedly in the market offering to deliver their constituencies' votes to the highest bidder.

Night schools for foreigners had been found to work well. Some of the students who had been illiterate at the beginning, even in their own language, were able by the end of the winter session, to read intelligently the whole of the second book and had attained some proficiency in writing and composition. The Canadianizing of their children would never be done by their home surroundings.

The Daddy of Good Shows

I have made a business of attracting the public to shows for 10 years and have never made a failure in all my life. I apply business methods to an amusement enterprise and the result is the same as if applied to any other legitimate business. You may have a good show shop or travelling attraction and yet fail to get the business you deserve all on account of slip-shod methods of putting your show properly before the public. This is right where I shine.

I have secured a program for

Wed. and Thurs.

That will please all classes.

May Not Save "Ontario."

Montauk Point, N.Y., April 10.—Tugs last night were still pouring streams of water into the smouldering hold of the steamship Ontario, and the lightering of her cargo, which took fire shortly before she was beached off here early Monday morning, is being continued. It will probably be several days, perhaps a week, before the fire is entirely extinguished, and there is a chance that the vessel will never be saved.

Conference to Foil Counterfeiters.

Washington, April 10.—The United States will call an international convention of the world's expert paper money makers to meet at Washington to consider means to circumvent counterfeiting and perfect mechanical devices. June 15 is the tentative date.

At the request of Secretary MacVeagh, Secretary Knox will invite all nations to participate. Russia, Japan, Germany, Sweden and France are especially interested.

Lenses Must Be Changed

Lenses do not wear out, but eyes do. Every part of the body changes with advancing years, and our eyes in common with the rest of our physical being show the effects of age. We must therefore meet the changed conditions of the eyes. The glasses that you bought ten, or even three years ago, are not giving your eyes the proper assistance. As the eyes are wearing out year by year, your lenses should be made stronger or weaker to correspond to your failing vision.

I will be pleased to have you call and let me explain the advantages of Toric or curved lenses over the old style flat form. I can and do guarantee satisfaction, because I have every modern convenience for accurate Eyesight Testing. I have the largest and most up-to-date Optical Stock in the city to choose from.

DISCRIMINATING AGAINST CASES.

There were some complaints made during the year, particularly in the City of Toronto, regarding refusals to admit patients suffering from certain diseases. The Isolation Hospitals, under the direction of the Boards of Health, provide for cases of scarlet fever, diphtheria, and smallpox. Patients with consumption, erysipelas, measles, mumps or delirium tremens, have in several instances been refused admission. The question arises, has a general hospital, receiving public aid, a right to refuse patients suffering from any of the above-named diseases? One example may be cited: A young man, a clerk boarding in a private family, with several children, was quite ill with mumps. The physician when called in suggested immediate removal, but on applying for the admission of his patient was refused at four hospitals. The only reason given for refusing to admit the patient was, "We do not take cases of mumps." Something is surely wrong when such conditions prevail. Every general hospital should be provided with emergency isolated wards, so that provision could be made for admitting patients suffering from any disease except the communicable ones. No public hospital should have the right to deny admission to certain cases, merely because they may require special care and attention. With the rules which are now generally understood to prevent the communicability of disease, there should not be the hesitation so much complained of. Care must be taken not to lose sight of the mission of the general hospital. When hospitals reach the stage when only selected cases are taken, the time will come when hospital grants from public funds should be withdrawn. The public will not support discrimination of the sort complained of, and the sooner every general hospital appreciates that fact the higher will become the estimate in which the hospital will be held by the people.

WHITE PLAGUE DECREASING.

This country is gradually awakening to the proper methods of dealing with the white plague, and the next decade will no doubt bring about greatly increased sanitarium facilities for the proepr care of the consumptive individual. The establishment of these local institutions will not only effect a cure, or improvement, in patients under their shelter, but one of their great missions will be to teach a proper mode of life to the community in general and to the consumptive in particular. They will spread the gospel of a life in pure air as the only proper mode of life for every human being.

On account of the efforts made to educate the public regarding the nature of tuberculosis and the successful means which may be adopted for its prevention, the death-rate in Ontario is year by year growing less.

This splendid result must be ascribed to the efforts made by the Provincial Board of Health to bring its exhibit with its striking educational features before the people, to the introduction of a suitable text book in our schools, as well as the dissemination of suitable literature, to the work of the local sanatoria with their dispensaries, and visiting nurses, and to the fact that the people of Ontario are more than ever appreciating the fact that healthy homes and pure air are the great essential necessities to rid this country of the disease.

The following figures which were gathered with effort to secure accuracy, were presented at the last International Tuberculosis Exhibition, and show the annual number of deaths:

LAZY LIVER, BILIOUSNESS, SICK HEADACHE, COATED TONGUE OR SOUR, GASSY STOMACH

You men and women who somehow can't get feeling right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

The Lay Delegates to the Synod were then elected: Messrs. E. A. Peck, W. Maniece, and T. D. Adams.

By a unanimous vote the stipend of the Rector was increased by $100.

The meeting adjourned until Monday evening, April 22nd.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

The annual vestry meeting of St. John's church was held Monday night with Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of the church, presiding.

Mr. A. H. Stratton was elected People's Warden and Mr. H. W. Morphet chosen as Rector's Warden.

The following were chosen as Lay Delegates to the Synod: Messrs. Jos. Mills, W. T. Johnston and J. H. McClellan.

Mr. W. T. Johnston, the People's Warden, presented the general financial statement, which was received and referred to the auditors to be printed and distributed to the congregation at the adjourned meeting two weeks from last night.

The meeting was then adjourned until April 22.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH.

The Easter vestry meeting of All Saints' was held Monday and a review of the various reports indicates a flourishing condition and prospects are bright for even greater developments during the coming year.

The meeting was opened with prayer by the rector, Rev. R. B. Grobb. The reports of the following committees were presented: Women's Auxiliary by Mrs. Gilbert; Women's Guild by Mrs. Wolstenholm; Girls' Guild by Mrs. T. H. Hooper; Sunday School by Mr. John Edgar; Chancel Guild by Mrs. Gilbert; Choir by Mr. Geo. Chandler Bible class by Miss Julien; financial report by Mr. F. H. Dawson.

In presenting his report, the rector, Rev. R. B. Grobb expressed his appreciation of the good work going on in the church, and he looked forward to a happy and encouraging ministry in All Saints' parish. The Poor Fund report was read by the Rector.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

People's Warden— Mr. Frank H. Dawson, re-elected.

Rector's Warden—Mr. John Hogan, re-appointed.

DEATH IS MYSTERY

New York Woman Under Arrest on Suspicion of Having Murdered Her Husband

CONFLICTING STORIES

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, APRIL 8.—Walter J. Snyder, 37 years old, managing editor of the periodical "Sports of the Times," was found dead in the bathtub of the apartments he occupied on St. Nicholas avenue yesterday, with four stab wounds near his heart. His death became known to the police after his wife, Mrs. Mary S. Snyder called two bellboys into the rooms, and directed them to the bathroom. Mrs. Snyder was arrested and charged with homicide.

Mrs. Snyder's Story.

According to the police, Mrs. Snyder said she was holding a pair of seven-inch scissors in her hand when her husband attempted to embrace her, and the scissors accidentally penetrated his body. Her story left the police with several points to clear up. When Snyder's body was found it was unclothed, and the police discovered hanging on a clothes' line in the kitchen a union suit having three holes in it that might have been caused by scissors. The suit had been washed out. According to the police it was not until some time after the occurrence that the woman told the bellboys of it. When the police arrived Mrs. Snyder was sitting on a chair, resting her chin on her hands, as if in deep thought. She said that Snyder was annoying her by sprinkling water on her while she was manicuring her nails, and suddenly seized her. The blades of the scissors opened, she said, and pressed into the region of his heart.

Conflicting Stories.

Coroner Hellenstein, after questioning the woman for more than an hour in her cell in the Police Station declared his belief that Snyder had been murdered. Mrs. Snyder, he said, made several conflicting statements in regard to the circumstances surrounding the editor's death, as well as about her own antecedents. She told a still different story of the affair, according to Assistant District Attorney Strong, asserting, according to stenographic notes taken of her statement, that Snyder had grasped her hand when she had the scissors in it, and stabbed himself.

"Stay away from me. I am angry with you," she said she told him, just before Snyder seized her.

After the stabbing, she said, Snyder had walked into the bathroom, where she subsequently found his body in the tub.

Mrs. Snyder told the police that her maiden name was Mary Karns, and that she had eloped with Snyder from Morristown, N.J., six years ago, and married him. They had separated, she said, and had become reconciled only two weeks ago. She denied that she was Helen Caulfield, with whom Snyder eloped from Hartford, three years ago, or that she was formerly a Bertha Adina Yeager, whom Snyder is said to have married ten years ago, and divorced in Detroit.

WAS A GREAT SUFFERER FOR FIVE YEARS FROM DYSPEPSIA.

Dyspepsia is one of the most prevalent troubles of civilized life, and thousands of people suffer untold agony after every meal, for nearly everything that enters a weak dyspeptic stomach acts as an irritant.

The long train of distressing symptoms, which render life a burden to the victim of dyspepsia, may be promptly cured by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters. Mrs. Wm. J. Boyne, Lepreau, N.B., writes:—"I thought I would write and tell you of the good Burdock Blood Bitters has done me and also tell you how thankful I am.

"For five years I had been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, and tried different doctors and proprietary medicines, but could get no relief. One day a friend told me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I did not have much faith in it, but I thought I would give it a trial. To-day I am completely cured, and I will always recommend it."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for about thirty-five years and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Redistribution Bill Before Provincial House

Proposed New Constituency to be Formed With Biggar as Seat

The Provincial Parliament now have the new Distribution Bill framed up into working shape, and this will erect 15 new seats and make 84 seats for the whole province.

One of these new seats is allotted to our own town of Biggar, with a district extending thirty miles from east to west and from sixty to ninety miles from north to south, the deflection being caused by the North Saskatchewan River.

Starting from a point on the line between ranges 11 and 12 on the top of township 30, and proceeding straight north along this line to the North Saskatchewan river in township 40; then along the line of the river till reaching the line between ranges 17 and 18 in township 44, and proceeding south along this line to the N. E. corner of township 30 in range 18, and from there straight east to the starting point.

This gives the Biggar constituency an area of somewhere about 2,400 square miles, and includes the towns of Biggar, South Battleford, Naseby, Traynor, Harris, Zealandia, Herschel, Palo, Oban, Mead, Vance, Neola, and a lot of other smaller places inside the area mentioned above.

HASTINGS ITEMS OF INTEREST

Special to The Examiner:

HASTINGS, APRIL 10.—Friday being 'Good Friday,' all the places of business were closed.

The roads in this vicinity are in a very bad condition and the farmers find it almost impossible to get into town to do their shopping.

Schools are closed for the Easter vacation and the teachers are enjoying a holiday, while the small boy has got back to his marbles once more.

A number of people attended the funeral of the late Mrs. D. Foster of Norwood last week. Great sympathy is felt for the bereaved family, who only some five or six weeks ago were called upon to bury their father, and are consequently left orphans indeed.

Little Miss Ona Doxsee entertained a number of her young friends at a birthday party on Thursday last. The young people had a lively time together and all went home feeling well pleased with the evening.

Rev. T. Anderson went to Bethel on Friday evening to attend a social and presentation by the church congregation to their organist, Miss Brown. A very pleasant time was spent by those who were fortunate enough to be present.

Mr. Robert Tudhope of Roseneath, was in town on Thursday en route to his home in Norwood.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Moore are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. Cook.

The household effects of the late Mrs. (Dr.) Coughlan were disposed of on Saturday last by public auction sale.

Baker Bros. have a complete new stock of goods and are receiving a fair share of public patronage.

Mr and Mrs. J. Beavis and daughter Evelyn, spent Saturday in Campbellford.

Mr. D. Fife spent the holiday in Peterborough.

Saturday was quite a busy day araround town, the shippers hustling loading cars with stock, while the ladies were engaged carrying flowers for church decorations, in honour of the Easter season.

Mr. Patrick Doherty spent Wednesday in the city

The children of the Mission Band of the Methodist church conducted the song service on Sunday morning and were afterwards addressed by the pastor. Some fine singing was heard from the members of the Band and great credit is due the leaders who trained them.

Mr. Wm. Oakman has been busily engaged unloading some carloads of salt which arrived this week.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Baker are getting settled in their new quarters and will soon be in a position to receive their friends.

Mr. Wm. Wilso nof Percy, has been appointed to the position of lockmaster for the ensuing year.

RAILWAY NOTES

Mr. R. C. W. Lett, travelling passenger and colonization agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific, who has just returned to Winnipeg, from a trip into the mountains in British Columbia, where he has been securing some valuable views, reports that the first bridge in that province on the 29 mile line has now been completed. This structure, which crosses the Fraser river, is of steel and is almost 500 feet long, while the height from the riverbed is 75 feet. The stream itself at this point is so shallow that horses can cross it easily.

At the 29 mile post the first real view of the mountains is obtained and for fully twelve miles the scenery is unexcelled in the whole range, the line skirting along the base of many lordly peaks.

At a recent meeting of the Real Estate Exchange of Vancouver, a resolution was passed in favour of the remission by the city council of all taxes for the proposed Grand Trunk Pacific hotel, so as to facilitate an immediate start upon its construction, instead of waiting till the completion of the G.T.P.'s transcontinental line. Mr. F. M. Rattenbury is the architect ad it is said that the building will rival anything of it's kind upon the Pacific coast.

Mr. Charles R. Morgan has been appointed City Passenger Agent of the Grand Trunk Railway System at Hamilton, succeeding his father, Mr. Charles E. Morgan, who was 47 years in the service of the G. T. R., and whose death some months ago created the vacancy thus filled.

The death is reported in London, Ont., of Mr. George Phipps, one of the oldest and best known engineers in the middle division of the Grand Trunk. Mr. Phipps had seen 40 years' service with the G. T. R. and was an employee of the Great Western before it became a part of the former road. He was also a veteran of the Fenian raid.

According to western advices received recently at Grand Trunk Pacific headquarters in Montreal, there has been an unusually heavy traffic in wheat at Rat Portage in Prairie for some days past, which is, however now rapidly diminishing. In ten days the G. T. P. handles over 2,000 cars, while 1,500 were re-billed and shipped in bond to Kingston, Ont. Those shipments represent an immense sum to the farmers as, prior t this, they had their grain on the tracks with no hope of moving it till the spring. Hundreds of cars were taken to Westfort and Transcona, and brought back to Portage la Prarie to be routed through the States. The bills of lading in these cases were negotiable to the bankers and the trust and loan companies and had to be traced and the cars reshipped through the States in bond.

A $10,000 advertisement would seem a somewhat daring enterprise for a town whose population is only $1,600, in eastern eyes, and yet that is exactly what their present campaign is costing the citizens of Camrose. That the desired results, however, are being obtained has been already demonstrated in the enthusiastic reception that the volunteer publicity agents are receiving all along the line. The demonstrating car reached St. Thomas, Ont., recently, and, in the course of the afternoon more than 400 people visited it who all appeared to take the keenest interest in the exhibits. Later the visitors were entertained at dinner by the Canadian Club of that town when Mr. Geo. P. Smith, M.P.P., who is managing the tour, gave an instructive address with regard to western hopes and western problems.

Deathly Cramps, Stomach was Bloated

A Bad Case That Proves Cramps and Stomach Disorders are Cured Fast by Nerviline.

"The distress I suffered from cramps last summer was so severe I thought it meant death," writes P. R. Emerson, of Guys Hill, P. O. "I was doubled up with pain and in such bad shape I couldn't walk a hundred feet. I remembered having Nerviline on hand and took half a teaspoonful in sweetened water. In five minutes I was well and my stomach derangements disappeared entirely."

NERVILINE AN INSTANT RELIEF

For cramps, flatulence, diarrhoea and disorders of the stomach and bowels, Nerviline knows no equal—one million bottles used every year—fifty years on the market, that's proof enough of its merit. Large bottles, 50c., trial size, 25c. All dealers or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

A MORAL QUESTION.

Miss Constance Crawley's company presented at the Grand Opera House Monday a deeply devotional play entitled, "A Moral Question." The subject of the play dealt with the conditions which not infrequently lead up to the divorce court. How a man will often ill-use his wife and expect to be forgiven almost instantaneously. As Mrs. Daventry, the wronged wife, Miss Constance Crawley was superb and Mr. Arthur Maude portrayed great strength in his interpretation of the guilty husband. All the other parts were handled in a masterly fashion by a well-selected cast and the costumes were exceptionally gorgeous and costly.

At the afternoon matinee the company presented "What Kitty Did," a delightful little comedy which was appreciated.

MR. J. K. GALVIN HONOURED BY ST. MARTIN'S CHOIR

One of the Oldest and Most Faithful Members of the Choir is the Recipient of a Presentation

AN APPRECIATIVE ADDRESS

Last week the members of St. Martin's choir, Ennismore, waited on Mr. J. K. Galvin, one of the oldest and most faithful of their number, and the organist, Miss Agnes Scollard, read the following address, while John P. Flood made the presentation, consisting of an auto-strop razor and silver shaving mug and brush:

To Mr. J. K. Galvin.
Ennismore, Ont.

We the members of St. Martin's Choir, Ennismore, assemble here today to give expression to our sincere appreciation of your active, useful, and unwavering services and of your constant and unchanging fidelity to the interests and advancement of the choir of this parish.

Your unfailing efforts and ready compliance to practice at all times in season and out of season have combined to render your presence among our members almost indispensable. Needless to say, these honest efforts have been duly appreciated both by pastor and people, and by none more than by us, your associate members of the choir. But it is not alone your faithful co-operation with us in singing the praises of God, nor yet the many sacrifices you must have made to be present at all our practices, that we appreciate so highly. These are, indeed, largely our reasons for assembling here to-day. But combined with those, your frank and open honesty, your sincere and unfeigned piety, your deep and Christian - like charity, your generosity and loyalty to your church, your schools and your family, and the straightforwardness and the marked integrity of your social intercourse and relations with the people, all alike render you eminently worthy of our praise and gratitude. A man of peace, patience and forbearance is a valuable asset to any community. His daily example is often a more eloquent sermon, and productive of more fruitful results than many a pulpit oration. When we find you one of the first in everything that tends to the moral and social elevation of our people, when we see your home well ordered and your family highly educated, when we mark the harmony and concord that has ever been your happy relations with those of all classes and creeds, we have a double reason, why the members of St. Martin's choir should tender to you and your sterling wife their sincerest congratulations for the past, and best wishes for the future. As a slight proof of our appreciation of your good work for the past twenty-five years, we ask you to accept this "tonsorial outfit," trusting at the same time that God may spare you many years to join your voice with ours in hymns of praise and thanksgiving to His honour and glory.

Signed on behalf of the choir: Agnes Scollard (organist), Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Flood, Joseph O'Reilly, William Bell, T. T. Crough, Frank Scollard, Vivian Galvin, Mrs. J. E. O'Donoghue, Lottie Crough.

Mr. Galvin was so completely taken by surprise that he found it rather difficult to give expression to his feelings of thanks and appreciation. His services, he said, to the choir were always a great pleasure, and especially when he saw such perfect harmony on all sides. It was to this fact that he attributed the high standard to which the choir had reached. He would be pleased to continue the good work as long as God spared him.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick also added a few words of congratulation to Mr. Galvin in particular and to the whole choir in a general way, thanking them for their fidelity in the past, and urging them to perseverance for the future.

COULD NOT SWEEP FLOOR

Was So Terribly Afflicted With Lame Back.

It is hard to do housework with a weak and aching back, and no woman can be strong and healthy unless the kidneys are well.

The weak, lame and aching back comes from sick kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from kidney trouble. Mrs. Harvey W. Brownell, Northport, N.S., writes:—"I now take pleasure in writing you, stating the benefit I received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About a year ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad at times I could not sweep my own floor. While looking through your B.B.B. Almanac I saw Doan's Kidney Pills were a great remedy, so thought I would try a box or two. After using five boxes I was completely cured, and I am very thankful to have found so speedy a cure."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. In ordering direct specify "Doan's."

The Religious Ceremony of Getting Drunk

A Visit to the Ainus, the Strange Japanese Aborigines on the Island of Yezo

Ainu Chiefs Preparing to Drink Sake as Part of Their Religious Ceremony.
Copyright, 1912, by Arnold Genthe, N. Y.

HE might have been Michael Angelo's "Moses" come to life like Pygmalion's famous statue. His hair was white, snow white, and hung in long silken locks below his collar. His long white beard was patriarchal in its effect, reaching to his belt line. Upon his noble brow he wore a diadem, the insigne of his chiefship. But—

He rolled like a seaman on shore leave. He tried to speak, but his words were interrupted by frequent hiccoughs. Yet he was not like other drunkards. There was a certain sublimeness about him, a spiritual something which raised him above the average slave to the stuff "which steals our minds away." He was Penri II., chief of the Ainu, the aborigines of Japan. He had drained his tub of sake, not to satisfy any craving or to fulfil any social obligation, but because he felt it to be his sacred duty, a part of his religious ceremony, to do so, as much a part of it as the sprinkling of incense is in the churches of the Western World.

Dr. Arnold Genthe, the San Francisco photographer, who has recently arrived in New York, had travelled far to see Penri in his native village, Piratori, on the northern island of Yezo, to which place he and his people have retreated before the steadily advancing Japanese civilization. By rickshaw he had made the trip northward on the mainland far beyond the haunt of the tourist, where the country showed little influence of Western civilization, until he arrived at last at Aomori, the northernmost point on the island.

By steamer the sea of Tsugaru, which makes the English Channel look like a mill pond, was crossed and a landing safely made on the island of Yezo, which the Japanese call Hakodate. The photographer now felt like a real pioneer. He had his Japanese cook and an interpreter. His journey inland, which lasted three days, was made in a prairie schooner of the vintage of '49, which he says "recalled in exaggerated manner every bump in the road." The country, although rich in natural resources, was unsettled, probably due to the long and severe winters.

No Sign of Civilization.

The little evidence he saw of life showed that life on the island had advanced little since the days of the stone age. The only Japanese whom Genthe saw proved to be an officer of the imperial constabulary, who had come to Yezo to inspect the schools that the government maintains on the island. He was a little frightened when he found himself in comfort in a house occupied by women in gold lace, and his entering was preceded by two postilions, also bedecked with much gold braid.

At the first Ainu village where the tired traveller stopped his interpreter entered the hut, but soon came out followed by a man, whose long hair and high cheek bones, as well as his robe made from the bark of trees, gave him the appearance of a Russian peasant. Then Dr. Genthe noticed that the strange man used a stick to guide himself. He was not only blind, as was every fifth inhabitant of the village. Years spent in the smoke-filled huts over the fire, with no means for carrying off the smoke, had caused this disaster.

Almost as though time had been turned back to the days when people lived in patriarchal and when the prince arrives to awaken the sleeping palace. The night was spent at this village, and the next day the journey was resumed to Piratori, an ancestral home of Penri II.

As Penri II. rolled toward the primitive schooner he was followed by the whole village, who also navigated in that gentle, undulating fashion. There was nothing boisterous in the conduct of any of these gypsy gentlemen, who looked like a whole cavalcade of old men of the sea. Their leader solemnly stroked his beard. This is the greeting of welcome in Yezo—also a part of the religious ceremonies. All of the villagers stroked their beards in unison like soldiers performing their setting up exercises. Genthe is smooth shaven and also stroked a "fancy" four foot appendage.

"May you be kept warm," said the chief in his native tongue, and the interpreter duly made known this message of hospitality. It meant much in a land which is covered with snow for more than six months during the year.

The visitor was invited into the chief's hut, which was of thatched grass, built upon a substantial wooden frame. The floor was bare except for a rug made of bark, the same material in fact as the Ainu garb. This rug attracted the guest's attention, being similar to the prayer rug of the Kilketak Indians of North America.

In the eastern wall was the sacred window, through which one must not even peer. The only other noticeable feature was the dirt, which hung in festoons from the great rafters, which soot and grease had given a rich mahogany polish.

Soon another minor chief came to pay his respects. "I sank you," he said to the photographer, and after the Ainu salutation, he solemnly shook hands. They were the only English words he knew, and when he said them his eyes beamed like a child who had solved a difficult problem at school.

The Ceremony.

The party next went to the hut of the new arrival. The entire village stood around in a great half circle. Then the chief, to the astonishment of the assembled multitude, again grasped the stranger's hand in true American fashion and before his admiring brethren he repeated "I sank you." It later developed that he had been brought to the St. Louis fair and there had acquired his knowledge of English.

Dr. Genthe now ordered a feast for the chiefs. The whole party entered the hut. First went Penri I., the deposed chief of the village; then Penri II. and finally the chief who knew how to say "I sank you," who was followed by the women. Before seating themselves the chiefs solemnly stroked their beards, which is a part of their religious ceremony no more to be disregarded than the sacred drinking of sake.

The beard stroking finished, the chiefs and their guest sat down with legs crossed, in this respect differing from the Japanese, who double their legs up beneath them. The wives, who, being unfortunate enough to be born without hair on their faces, had tattooed bluish black mustaches, sat in a circle behind the men.

A large tub of sake was brought.

With all reverence these primitive men approached this religious ceremony of acquiring a jag. Solemnly Chief Penri II. dipped a stick into the fiery stuff. As the minister sprinkles his flock, so the Chief now sprinkled the hearth with sake as an offering to his household god. Solemnly he threw a cupful to the sacred east window. Quite as solemnly he sprinkled the smouldering fire as an offering to the god of fire. Then, with all humility, he raised his own bowl to his lips and drank till the bowl was empty. And so the chiefs drank through the evening until they could hardly stand on their feet.

Occasionally the women drank, too, when their masters chose to hand them the cup. The eagerness with which they gulped down the fiery liquid showed that craving and not religious custom caused them to imbibe. Each drink might be their last, and so they did not waste time in ceremonials.

Good sake is bad enough, but this was "moonshine," made out of rice mashed in a crude stone mortar. Under the paternal Japanese government, it is doing for these "Indians of Japan" what firewater has done for our red brothers in America. The Ainu, who formerly overran all of Japan and are more like the extinct cave men of Europe than any other race, now number about 17,000. When the feast to the gods was finished it was found necessary to postpone the sacred crane dance until the next day.

The following day Dr. Genthe decided to broach the subject of his visit. This required a good deal of diplomacy. Formerly the Ainu believed that to reproduce the human figure upon paper drove out the soul and shortened their lives. An English photographer who had visited them got his pictures by stealth. Then he showed the finished proofs to the chiefs of village. Immediately the women set up a terrible shriek and the men rushed from the hut, flying like wild men. The result was that the photographer's complete outfit was dedicated to the flames.

The Sacred Bears.

Mr. Batchellor, the American missionary, had done much to drive out this superstition, and Dr. Genthe found his hosts in a much more tractable frame of mind. He explained to them all of the workings of his camera, showed them the plates and let them see objects reproduced on the ground glass. Then he asked permission to take their photographs, and this permission was granted after the financial details had been arranged.

After the American had taken all the pictures he wanted the wife of Chief Penri II., who had regarded him with a great deal of interest, naively expressed a desire to be taken with him. So the photographer and the Ainu Princess were photographed together. Penri II., the obliging husband, pressed the bulb, thus taking his first and only photograph. The result is seen on this page.

Later Dr. Genthe visited a second village, where he saw bear cubs that were being suckled by native women. These bears when full grown were to be used as sacrifices, the Ainu considering them to be sacred animals. Before the sacrifice three apologies would be offered Bruin. After much trouble he succeeded in getting photographs of the Ainu and their bear. The doctor's boatman, however, had been too faithful in the performance of his religious duties, and when going home their canoe was overturned. The photographer escaped, but the treasured film pack sank to the bottom.

When the accounts of these two incidents reached San Francisco, where the photographer is well known, they had been given an entirely new significance. Dr. Genthe was surprised when he reached Honolulu to read in one of the leading newspapers of San Francisco an article with the caption "Noted Artist Refuses to Wed Ainu Princess" and an account of how the lady had saved him from drowning.

Of course the traveller's safe return and his escape from drowning were made the occasion for a new thanksgiving, the thanksgiving taking the form of more sake drunk to the Ainu deity. During the feast one of the men told the story of a mighty hunter of the tribe who had been killed in a hand to hand struggle with a bear which was even larger than the American grizzly. Then more sake was drunk for the soul of the departed hunter.

As Dr. Genthe departed he took with him a memory of the venerable chief uttering incoherent nothings and solemnly stroking his beard to speed his guest away.

"The only time I have ever known a vice to be made a religious virtue," mused the photographer. "How would you like to be an Ainu, live in a grass hut, wear a cloak of birch bark and drink with the permission of your wife and the approval of your minister?"

WHAT THE DOCTORS SAY.

Various Preparations of Liver Used in Medicine.

PREPARATIONS made from liver may render real service in the treatment of various affections. This hepatic opotherapy is in fact a very ancient therapeutic practice, almost as old as the world itself, says Dr. Brelet, in an interesting article on this subject in the Paris Gazette des Hôpitaux. Dioscorides treated dropsy with hedgehog's liver dried in the sun, and Galen recommended wolf's liver for jaundice.

After having been long held in high honor opotherapy was completely abandoned. But since the researches of Dr. Brown-Séquard it has made a triumphant re-entry into the realm of therapeutics. It is extensively used, perhaps sometimes abused, for it is often prescribed without precise indications of its need.

What are the principal indications of hepatic opotherapy? Inflammation and cirrhosis of the liver should naturally be cited in the first place; and, in fact, whenever there is hepatic insufficiency it is theoretically rational to introduce into the organism liver or extracts of liver. In this way, to some extent, one may supply the deficiency of that gland, and on the other hand its functional power is stimulated.

It is found after such medication that there is an increase in the quantity of the urine and a more abundant elimination of urea. The ascitic or dropsical infiltration diminishes or occurs again less rapidly after the puncture. Various hemorrhages, which are frequent complications of cirrhosis, become rare and end by disappearing. In the terminal period of cirrhosis, when the hepatic insufficiency has become complete, and when the patient is in the condition of marasmus and cachexia, the results will be much less, sometimes nil, but these failures should not lead to the abandonment even in such cases of a medicament which may always be tried, since it presents no danger.

The functions of the liver being troubled not only in cirrhosis, but in many affections of nutrition and general diseases, hepatic opotherapy has been recommended for the treatment of various affections—for instance, gout, cancer and tuberculosis. In sugar diabetes opotherapy is also said to have obtained a few rare results. Finally, as the liver has a certain action on the coagulation of the blood, opotherapy is a method of treatment for hemorrhages—for instance, in bleeding at the nose, in cirrhosis and even in tuberculosis.

Hepatic opotherapy is used in various ways. The best is first of all to try fresh liver in pulp form or macerates. In order to obtain the pulp one hundred or two hundred grammes of fresh pig's or calf's liver are taken and grated after the biliary vessels has been removed; the patient would take this pulp in some warm broth. The maceration is done by mixing 100 to 150 grammes of the pulp of pig's liver with an equal quantity of water. Then decant and pass through a sieve.

Powdered liver is obtained by drying the organ in an oven at forty degrees cent. or in a vacuum at about zero cent. The powder represents from fifteen to seventeen per cent by weight of the fresh liver. The extracts of liver utilized are aqueous, glycerinated, alcoholic, peptic or saline extracts. These are sold as specialties and the mode of use varies according to each brand and each product.

A REMARKABLE SNAPSHOT OF GREYHOUNDS AND A HARE

IT would be difficult to catch a photograph showing more action than does the accompanying one of two greyhounds just about to pounce upon a hare which has given them a very sporty run. The picture was made at Le Tremblay, France, during the first round of the Prix Magicien, held February 25 last.

Only the first round of this event was run because of the scarcity of hares at this time of year, and the Prix Shade was cancelled for the same reason. But what was lacking in quantity at the meet was more than made up for in quality, for the hares were exceptionally swift and gave the dogs some very hard runs, one of two of the little animals almost escaping into the brush. The concluding heats of the Prix Magicien were run off at the next meeting of the Greyhound Club of March 10.

FROM EUROPEAN EDITION OF THE HERALD

The photograph, which appeared in the Paris edition of the New York HERALD Monday, February 26, is an excellent illustration of just how a greyhound runs. The body of the dog in the lead is extended at the very finish of a leap, while the second dog is bunched just in the act of springing again. The photographer could hardly have been more favored by fortune.

The skill which was required to make the photograph just at the proper moment may be realized when it is considered that in an infinitesimal fraction of a second both dogs and the hare would have been out of focus, their images would have passed off the plate completely. Had the finger of the photographer wavered for a hundredth of a second in pressing the lever the picture would have been lost.

It is not uncommon to see photographs of horses in the act of hurdling or of crossing the line at the finish of a race, but it must be remembered that in these cases it is only necessary for the photographer to point his camera, focusing the lens on the point where he knows the horse will make the leap and snapping the lever as the animal comes into range. If the first attempt fails he may repeat the action until he has caught the picture at just the proper moment.

It is difficult to take a snapshot of an athlete in the act of jumping or of a pole vaulter in action, but most of these pictures are taken just as the man crosses the bar. For a fraction of a second he is poised, theoretically, stationary. He has hurled his body into the air, and just before it starts to descend it is at rest—not long, but long enough for the camera plate to catch the picture.

There is no poise in the photograph of the dogs and the hare. There is nothing but action and suspense. Another leap and the leader had the little animal in his paws. Another period of time long enough for the photographer's brain to send a message to his finger to act, and the picture would have been lost.

There was no one point where the photographer could plant his camera and wait for the hounds to pass. He had to select a spot where he thought the dogs would begin to close in on the animal and wait for them there, all the time knowing that they might at any second swerve to the right or to the left. The plate was exposed only the infinitesimal part of a second, and it required steady nerves, a quick eye and lightninglike action to snap the lever at just the proper moment.

Declared War On Unmarried Men

Bachelors of Massachusetts Assailed as Misfits

BOSTON, April 10.—The Woman's Homestead Association, of which Mrs. Charlotte Smith, the author of the bill to tax bachelors ,is president, and whose membership is comprised largely of spinsters, has declared war on bachelors who aspire to public office.

In a statement issued by the committee on legislation of the association bachelors are characterized as "misfits of society," and the announcement is made that the following resolution has been adopted by the organization:

"Be it resolved, That the Woman's Homestead Association purposes to keep a tag on all bachelor candidates for public office at the hands of the people until we retire them to private life, where they properly belong, because they are the misfits of society."

In another statement, signed by herself alone, Mrs. Smith declares that confirmed bachelors are arrogant, egotistic, and make money their god. They dodge, squirm, and evade their duties to society and seek to hold public offices, which they are incompetent to fill, she asserts.

A HEAVY RUSH FOR HOMESTEADS

51 Men and Women in Line Three Weeks Ahead of Opening of Land Office

WINNIPEG, April 10.—Fifty-one men and women are in line before the Lethbridge, Alta., land office, where they will camp until homesteads are thrown open for sale on May 1st. First in line is Carl Jones, of Philadelphia. They will have to withstand rain and snowstorms, and one of the three women has a baby in her arms.

"Just let us get Jim Hill to build a railway through the country we are after," said one of the men in line, "and we will be millionaires some day."

Some have been there for several days, and more are constantly arriving. They are camping in canvas lean-tos on the sidewalk, and restaurateurs bring them their meals. Citizens are compelling sanitation.

The mayor will probably have the city engineer mark off the walk in spaces one foot wide and give each man in order a lease good until after May 1st on his foot of sidewalk, thus assuring each man his turn without waiting in line. One man near the head of the line is confined to his cot with rheumatism, but is holding his place, tended by his wife.

Health Declines When Kidneys Fail

Evening prayer was held in St. John's Church every night last week, with special Good Friday service at 10.30 a.m. Services Easter Sunday were: 11 a.m. morning, prayer, followed by Holy Communion; at 3 p.m. in the afternoon, when the Lenten boxes werereceived; and at 7 in the evening. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with abundance of Easter flowers, and special Easter music was rendered by the choir.

At high noon on Wednesday, 3rd April, a very pretty but quiet wedding took place in the Methodist Church, when Miss Adah Grace Holcombe, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington J. Holcombe of town, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. John A. MacArthur, L.D.S., of Markdale. The bride looked sweetly pretty gowned in white ninon over white satin, with pearl trimmings, wearing the customary veil caught up with orange blosoms, and carrying a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Anna Bryans acted as bridesmaid, wearing a dainty dress of pale pink silk mull, with lace trimmings, large picture hat with willow plumes, and carrying a bouquet of pink roses. At the hour appointed, the groom and his groomsman, Mr. Frank Hill, of Markdale, took their places at the altar to await the arrival of the bride. To the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by the organist, Mrs. Roy Campney, the bridal party entered, the bride leaning on the arm of her father, and took their places under a beautifully decorated arch. During the signing of the register, Mesdames Real, Kindred, and Swain sang a trio, "The Wedding Song," from Lohengrin.

After the ceremony the dejeuner was served at the residence of the bride's parents, Donald Street, followed by the usual toasts and speeches. Only the imediate relatives were present. The hapy couple left on the afternoon train for New York and Atlantic City, the bride travelling in a smart tan suit with tan hat and cerise plume. Dr. and Mrs. MacArthur will reside in Markdale, and the many friends of the bride join in wishing her every joy and happiness.

FRANCE LACKS COPPERS

There is a famine of copper coins in Paris just now. The big business firms in Paris feel it most, and the absurd position has arisen that firms which need a certain amount of copper coinage every day have been obliged to pay as much as 5 per cent. premium for half-pennies and pennies in any large amount. Inquiries at the mint do not elucidate the mystery, says the London Standard. The mint struck £60,000 worth of copper coinage during 1911, turning out between £480 and £600 of pence and half-pennies every day. Owing to the famine, £80,000 worth of copper coins will be issued this year, but it is still a mystery what becomes of them. Superficial thinkers blame the increase of omnibus traffic, the tube and the extension of the use of penny-in-the-slot machines of all possible kinds, but even the penny-in-the-slot machines, though they absorb copper coinage in large quantities, disgorge it eventually, so that the famine remains inexplicable.—Albany Journal.

HAIR HAPPINESS

It sounds funny but the hair really must feel happy when it is clean and healthy and free from dandruff. So many people have neglected caring for their hair, that a woman with thin, harsh hair, or a man with no hair is not an unusual sight. There is no excuse for unattractive harsh hair since Sageine has been obtainable in Peterborough, and when W. J. Kent sells it with a guarantee to do all that is claimed for it. Sageine means a healthy clean scalp, a luxuriant growth of hair, and it only costs 50c. a large bottle from W. J. Kent, or charges prepaid from B. V. Marion, Bridgeburg, Ont.

SAID ABOUT WOMANKIND

A mother's prayers, silent and gentle, can never miss the road to the throne of all bounty.—Henry Ward Beecher.

The man is the head of the woman, but she rules him by her temper.—Russian Proverb.

Clean Man

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man can scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Get health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and new, clean, healthy tissues. The man who is clean in this way will look it and act it. He will work with energy and think clean, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomachs. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood. Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

prevents these diseases. It makes a man's insides clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and clean, healthy flesh.

It restores tone to the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs.

Constipation is the most unclean uncleanliness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe. Easy to take as candy.

SPRING
Skin Troubles
Mothers who have used Zam-Buk know how it cures Spring Skin Troubles in Children or Adults. Mothers who have not yet tried it should note these facts:—Zam-Buk was unknown ten years ago, yet such is its merit that to-day it has become the standard salve in the homes of four continents! Zam-Buk is purely herbal; contains no poisonous colouring matter; is used by leading medical men; used in the British Army and Navy; used by all best fitted to know the needs of the skin. Make it your family balm!
Mr. J. C. Bates, of Burks Falls (Ont.), says:—"Zam-Buk cured my three children, who were all broken out in sores to such an extent that it was pitiable to see them. These sores had defied all remedies previously applied, but I am glad to say Zam-Buk healed them."
Miss S. G. Hamilton, of Alliston (Ont.), says:—"My face and hands were one mass of pimples and blotches. These would itch, and when rubbed, broke out into sores. Whenever I put water near the affected parts it caused a stinging sensation and much pain—just as if I had been scalded. Nothing that I applied seemed to do me any good until I tried Zam-Buk. That gave me relief, and a few weeks of the Zam-Buk treatment resulted in a perfect cure."
Zam-Buk cures pimples, skin eruptions, cuts, burns, bruises, piles, festering sores, ulcers, blood-poisoning, eczema, ringworm, bad leg, diseased ankles, and all skin diseases and injuries. Rubbed well into the parts affected, it cures neuralgia, rheumatism, and sciatica. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50c. box, three for $1.25, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and I was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

Uses Only Cuticura Soap for Prize Baby

"I have always used Cuticura Soap and no other for my baby, and he has never had a sore of any kind. He does not even chafe as most babies do. I feel that it is all owing to Cuticura Soap for he is fine and healthy, and when five months old won a prize in a baby contest. It makes my heart ache to go into so many homes and see a sweet faced baby with the whole top of its head a solid mass of scurf, caused by the use of poor soap. I always recommend Cuticura, and nine times out of ten the next time I see the mother she says 'Oh! I am so glad you told me of Cuticura.'" (Signed) Mrs. G. A. Selby, Redondo Beach, Calif.

Although Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. 3M, Boston, U.S.A., will secure a liberal sample, with 32-p. book on the care of skin, scalp and hair.

URGES RESISTANCE.

Bonar Law Incites Ulstermen to Fight Against Home Rule.

Belfast, April 10.—"I have come here to give you the assurance that we Unionists regard your cause as the cause of the Empire.

"We will do all that men can do to defeat a conspiracy as treacherous as any that has ever been formed against the life of a great nation.

"If we defeat home rule now it will be defeated forever."

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition in the British House of Commons, so declared himself in addressing a huge rally of Orangemen here yesterday.

A demonstration of 150,000 enthusiasts yesterday morning passed in procession before Andrew Bonar Law and other prominent Unionist leaders at the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society grounds. The route from the city of Belfast to the grounds is three and a half miles in length, and all the way the roads were packed with cheering partisans as the men marched past sixteen abreast.

The police nervously patrolled every street, in momentary fear of a bloody riot. Fearing that the sight of troops might precipitate trouble, Col. Count Gleichen, in charge of the Belfast military, kept his soldiers in readiness at Curragh camp, prepared to be rushed into Belfast at a moment's notice.

Excitement was at a high pitch when Law began a bitter attack on the measure which will be introduced to-morrow. He declared that the Liberals, having muzzled the House of Lords, were now endeavoring to force home rule through a single chamber Parliament. He talked in his usual blunt and forceful style.

"You say, and I think you mean it, that you will not submit to home rule. It will be difficult, and perhaps impossible to overcome your opposition. Under any circumstances your resistance would be irresistible, but the moral power of that resistance is increased a thousand-fold by the way in which it is proposed that this calamity should be forced upon you.

"If we defeat home rule now, we defeat it forever, for in order to remain a few months longer in office the Government have sold the constitution, they have sold themselves, and they thought they had sold you, but you were not theirs to sell."

From three other platforms, Lord Charles Beresford, Walter Hume Long, Lord Hugh Cecil, Sir Robert Finlay, Lord Castlereagh, and other prominent Unionist leaders urged the excited Orangemen to resist home rule to the end.

DISASTER ON NILE.

Sinking of Excursion Steamer Claims Two Hundred Lives.

Cairo, Egypt, April 10.—A large number of passengers, estimated by some at 200, were drowned Monday evening by the sinking of a Nile excursion steamer after a collision with another steamer in the vicinity of the great dam on the river about 15 miles to the northwest of Cairo, and a few miles from Kalyub.

The steamer had 300 passengers on board, who had taken advantage of the eastern holiday to take a trip to the river dam. On the return journey upstream, and not far from the dam, the excursion boat collided with another and sank almost immediately.

All on board were thrown into the river, but many lives were saved by the vessel with which the excursion boat had collided.

Another passenger steamer and a number of boats from shore hastened to the rescue, and picked up many of those struggling in the water. It is not yet known how many lives were lost, and the identity of the bodies has not been ascertained.

The boat was overloaded. The big lumbering vessel was in centre stream when she collided head-on with another vessel. The ferry turned completely over.

No Tourists on Board.

London, April 10.—The steamer which foundered on the Nile as the result of a collision with another vessel Monday was a local excursion boat, which, according to reports received here, was conveying 300 persons, all of whom are believed to have been Levantines.

It is considered improbable that any Canadian or American tourists were on board.

Without Foundation.

Ottawa, April 10.—The story that Hon. F. D. Monk is to resign and be succeeded in the Cabinet by H. B. Ames, M.P., is declared to be without any foundation.

New Shipping Regulations.

Washington, April 10.—The Inter-State-Commerce Commission yesterday laid down the principles which are to govern under the existing Inter-State Commerce Act as follows:

That a shipment by water from one point to another in the territory of the United States is coastwise business; that shipments by water from a port of the United States to a port of any foreign country, even though adjacent, is export business.

Sir Richard Shoulders Blame.

Ottawa, April 10.—In a letter to the citizens, Sir Richard Cartwright, Liberal leader in the Senate, denies that Sir Wilfrid Laurier instigated the action of the Liberal majority in the Senate in practically killing three important measures of the Borden Government. He stigmatizes the [illegible] as unjust, and asserts that Sir Wilfrid did not attempt to influence the Senate in the action taken.

Muscles Useless Without Nerve Force

Perhaps you are not quite clear on the relation of the nerves to the rest of the body. Through the nerve fibres which extend through countless branches to every nook and corner of the human system is conveyed the motive power which operates the various organs.

There could be no breathing, no beating of the heart, no flow of the digestive fluids, no action of any muscle or organ of the body without nerve force. Consequently, when the nervous system becomes exhausted there is complete collapse of the body, the different stages of which are described as nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and paralysis.

The time to use such restorative treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is when the headaches, sleeplessness, indigestion and other warning symptoms first appear. A few weeks' persistent treatment is then sufficient to revitalize the wasted nerve cells and restore health and vigour.

May Be No Bisley Team.

Ottawa, April 10.—Whether a Canadian team will be sent to Bisley this year is not definitely determined yet. The dispute has been with regard to the Sutherland site on the Ross rifle. The National Rifle Association had a sight made by the Birmingham Small Arms Co., which they agreed to accept. This sight has been submitted to the D.R.A. which has referred it to the Minister.

Meanwhile the arrangements for sending the team as usual are under way.

Winnipeg, April 10.—William R. Shaver, president of the Golden Rule Oil Co., of Canton, Ohio, charged with forgery, was arraigned yesterday and remanded until an Ohio officer can arrive. His affinity, Ethel Wynne, the cousin of his wife, who fled with him, is under surveillance. They were living in a fashionable section. He was arrested Monday night, being recognized by his resemblance to a picture in a circular sent out by the Ohio police.

The Mayor Took a Bribe.

Freehold, N.J., April 10.—Edwin W. Packer, mayor of Long Branch, was fined $500 yesterday after his counsel had entered a plea of non vult to an indictment charging the mayor with having accepted a sum of money from the representative of an asphalt paving company, with a view to having the mayor use his influence in the awarding of contracts.

The mayor also placed his resignation in the hands of the court.

INTENDS TO SPEAK.

Son of Toronto Murder Victim Says Friends Could Tell.

Toronto, April 10.—Through the untiring efforts of Harry Rosenthal, son of the murdered man, a reward of $500 has been offered for information which shall lead to the detection and arrest of the men who murdered Joseph Rosenthal in rear of the Hydro-electric station in Strachan avenue, Friday night last. Yesterday Attorney-General Foy announced the offer of $300 for the capture of the murderers and later the city police commissioners added $200.

Mr. Rosenthal who has given his whole time and attention in an effort to aid in the location of his father's slayers, believes that all that could be disclosed by those who might be expected to render every assistance in the matter has not been told. He is indignant about this and said yesterday:

"The time for mincing matters is gone. Whatever objections may have existed against speaking of certain transactions before Saturday morning were wiped out when it was discovered that a murder of the most brutal kind had been committed. A shady transaction in wire or old iron is one thing, the arrest and punishment of a murderer is another.

"There are men who were old friends of my father who, I am convinced, know of facts which might be of material aid in unravelling this mystery, but they have kept silent. I have every reason to believe that my father knew at least one of the men involved in the transaction which led to his murder. When Mrs. Caplin, who lives in York street, told him of the mysterious man who was looking for him and who gave the name of Smith, she says that my father laughed and said, "Oh, I know him, alright, it is not Smith."

Mr. Rosenthal believes that when Dunkelman, who is mending rapidly at the hospital, is sufficiently recovered to be interviewed by the police, he will be able to throw much light upon the mystery which may then be a mystery no longer. He is also confident that the offer of the reward will bring to the surface further and useful information.

In this connection, he said: "If these people who have not spoken do not come forward and tell what they know before it comes out in some other way, they will not stand in so good a light as if they were to speak out before the words are taken out of their mouths by information, which may at any moment be placed in the hands of the authorities. I have kept silent about some things of which my information is not complete, but, when I have got the facts, those who refused to come forward to do their utmost to aid in the detection of my father's murderers need not expect to remain silent any longer."

When the Sleeper Wakes.

Montreal, April 10.—The Western Hospital authorities have decided in future not to accommodate Blanche David, the young woman who has cultivated the habit of going to sleep for days at a stretch.

They have come to the conclusion that her case is one that does not require medical attendance, and have grown suspicious of the genuineness of her long sleep.

Grand Trunk Issue New Rules.

London, Ont., April 10.—Conductors, brakemen and trainmen from all over the Grand Trunk system in Canada are being notified by Grand Trunk officials to proceed at once to the offices in Toronto and write their new rules.

Yesterday Conductors G. Jackson, J. Forbes and A. Staples, all of Windsor, went through to Toronto to write the new rules, after which it is said they will receive the runs they had before the strike.

The action of the company is said to be due to the strenuous objections made by the Government to the methods employed by the company.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, April 9.—There was an increased demand from foreign buyers for all grades of Manitoba spring wheat, and, as cables were strong, with prices 1½d to 2d higher, a fair amount of business was done. No. 2 northern was sold to London at 91s 9d, and No. 3 at 90s 6d for nearby shipment. A feature of the local market is the demand from Ontario points for oats, and sales of a number of cars were made. An easier feeling has developed in the butter market, and dealers who paid 28½c at Cowansville Saturday were offering it on spot to-day at 34½c. Eggs fairly active and steady.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, April 9.—The railways reported 39 carloads of live stock at the City Market, comprising 726 cattle, 514 hogs, 696 sheep and 450 calves.

Butchers.

A few cattle, weighing 1000 to 1120 lbs., sold at $7 to $7.35; loads of good, $6.60 to $6.90; medium, $6 to $6.40; common, $5.25 to $5.60; cows, $2.75 to $5.60; bulls, $4.50 to $6.

Milkers and Springers.

The bulk of the milkers and springers were sold by Dunn & Levack, and, as will be seen in the report of their sales, they sold 41 milkers, that averaged $62 each, and two more at $65. The sales would range from $40 to $85, and we heard of one solitary cow at $20, but she was of extra size and milking qualities.

Veal Calves.

There were 450 calves on sale. In this number were many "bobs" and inferior quality calves. Bobs sold at $2.75 to $3.75 to $5, while an odd extra quality, new, milk-fed brought $6.50 to $7.

Sheep and Lambs.

Wesley Dunn reported sheep and lambs as follows: Sheep, ewes, $5.25 to $6; rams, $4 to $5; yearling lambs, $7 to $9 per cwt.; spring lambs at $8 to $9 each.

Hogs.

There were 514 hogs reported on sale. There were some cars that were sold at $7.40 f.o.b. cars at country points, and $7.65 for selects, fed and watered at the market. We know of several dealers that are paying $7.15, or at least offering that price, for hogs f.o.b. cars at country points, which means that the farmers are now once more getting $8 per cwt.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, April 9.—Cattle—Receipts, 650; active and steady to strong.
Veals—Receipts, 700; slow and 50c lower, $3 to $9.25.
Hogs—Receipts, 3000; slow and 10c lower; heavy and mixed, $8.25 to $8.30; yorkers, $7.90 to $8.30; pigs, $8.10 to $8.40; roughs, $7.25 to $7.30; stags, $5 to $6.25; slow; sheep 10c to 25c lower.
Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 2000; slow; sheep 10c to 25c lower; lambs 25c to 35c lower; lambs, $6.50 to $8.50; a few, $8.65; yearlings, $7 to $7.50; wethers, $6.25 to $6.90; ewes, $5.25 to $6.15; sheep, mixed, $6 to $6.25; clipped lambs, $7 to $7.25; a few, $7.50; clipped wethers, $6.50 to $6.75.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, April 9.—Cattle—Receipts, 2000; market slow; beeves, $5.35 to $8.70; Texas steers, $4.60 to $5.90; western steers, $5.40 to $6.90; stockers and feeders, $4.30 to $6.60; cows and heifers, $2.65 to $6.80; calves, $5 to $8.25.
Hogs—Receipts, 14,000; market weak, 5c to 10c lower; light, $7.45 to $7.85; mixed, $7.55 to $7.85; heavy, $7.55 to $7.85; rough, $7.55 to $7.75; pigs, $6.30 to $7.35; bulk of sales, $7.75 to $7.80.
Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 17,000; market opened strong, closed weak; native, $4.40 to $6.50; western, $4.40 to $7.10; yearlings, $6 to $7.25; lambs, native, $6.65 to $7.75; western, $6.25 to $8.20.

Long Live the Queen.

The goose that laid the golden egg is known in song and story,
But now we have another fowl which shares mazuma glory—
The hen which lays an egg a day is recognized as queen

PETERBOROUGH WEDNESDAY APRIL 10 1912

SAMUEL NEWALL WAS SENTENCED THIS MORNING TO SEVEN YEARS' IMPRISONMENT

Sentence Was Delivered at the Opening of the High Court—Prisoner Displayed No Signs of Emotion.

WILL LIVE SIX MONTHS

"Guilty!" To no one in the crowded court room did this word fall with greater import than upon Samuel Newall, prisoner at the bar. Even the two solitary members of the feminine sex who occupied a seat in the spectator's gallery, ceased giggling for a brief moment, and an expectant hush prevaded the judicial chamber when Steven Miller, foreman of the jury, arose and announced the verdict which the jury had arrived at, after fifty-two minutes' deliberation.

"I do not think that twelve reasonable men could have arrived at any other verdict," remarked His Honour Judge Latchford, as he discharged the jury.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, counsel for the defence, requested that His Lordship defer sentence until a report could be made as to the prisoner's physical condition, which Mr. Gordon intimated, was very serious. His Lordship complied with the request until the statement of the examining physician was received.

His Lordship also ruled that the report would have to be to hand at the opening of the court at nine o'clock this morning.

The offence charged against Newall was one of criminal assault alleged to have been committed upon one Maggie Moore on the 30th of May last. Both plaintiff and defendant are residents of Dummer.

A Physical Wreck.

Newall is a wreck physically and since his committal has had to undergo a severe operation. He is a tall, spare man, and presented a dejected looking appearance in court yesterday. At the opening of the court he ambled over to a seat adjacent to the prisoners dock. His Lordship took exception to this procedure and ruled that the prisoner be placed in the dock. With the assistance of [illegible] and Mr. G. N. Gordon, Newall was placed in the dock.

7 YEARS' IMPRISONMENT.

"The women of our country must be protected and held as a holy heritage. A reputable physician of the city has reported to me as to your physical condition and this circumstance alone has caused me to withhold the added infliction of the lash in connection with the sentence which I propose to pass upon you. While in prison you will have the benefit of the best surgical and medical attention, and will not be subjected to the temptations which otherwise might guide your life. I will impose a sentence of seven years in prison for the crime which you have committed."

With these words was concluded the case of Samuel Newall at the opening of the Assize Court at nine o'clock this morning. A large crowd of spectators thronged the gallery and keen interest was manifested in the final disposition of the only criminal case in the docket. The prisoner stood up at the command of His Lordship and received his sentence. He displayed no emotion or distress and walked with a firm step out of the dock.

The physician's report ,which was produced in court, revealed the fact that Newall is suffering from the effects of an abscess of the chest near the region of the heart and unless a change for the better takes place, he cannot live over six months.

His Lordship in passing sentence, scored the prisoner strongly for the manner in which he had acted towards the complainant, who is a near relative.

At the time the alleged offence was committed, the complainant was nursing a child of four months and was also performing the household duties in the Newall home. Mrs. Newall, (now deceased) was then on her death bed. During the time complainant was administering to the wants of Mrs. Newall, she was made the object of indecent proposals on the part of the prisoner. These she resented. These actions on the part of the prisoner culminated in the committing of the offence which was alleged to have taken place on May 30th in an outhouse of the Newall home. The prisoner's arrest and subsequent hearing before Magistrate Edmison followed, after which Newall was committed for trial at the Assizes.

GENERAL BOOTH SENDS OUT A BIRTHDAY MESSAGE TO WORLD

LONDON, ENG., APRIL 10.—Eighty three years old to-day is General Booth, and this morning he issued a message of hope and cheer to the world. His only infirmity is his blindness. He can scarcely see one glimmer of light though his physicians say that after an operation, on May 23rd, he may have ten years' partial sight. His message talked of his round-the-world missionary tour, commencing through Canada about September 1st.

FIVE THOUSAND DOLLAR LIBEL ACTION COMMENCED YESTERDAY

Case of Irwin vs. Stephens, Rivals in the Undertaking Business in Campbellford, Being Dealt With in the Court of Assizes---Action is Result of Alleged Defamatory Letter Which Was Published in Newspapers.

The case of James Irwin and Lewis H. Stephens, both undertakers of Campbellford, who are, respectively, plaintiff and defendant, in a libel action, was opened yesterday, at the conclusion of the Newall case.

The personnel of the jury is as follows: Messrs. W. H. Taylor, S. Harrison, W. Adams, W. C. Tully, Alex. Mahood, J. H. Savigny, J. McFarlane, J. Miller, M. White, T. Crawford, R. Bayne, H. Stinson.

Mr. E. G. Porter, K.C., Belleville, and Mr. A. B. Colville, Campbellford, represented James Irwin, the plaintiff. Mr. D. J. Lynch of Campbellford, and Mr. D. O'Connell, of Peterborough, acted on behalf of Mr. Stephens, the defendant.

The action is based on a letter to the Campbellford Herald, in which it is alleged that the defendant stated that he had arrived at the Campbellford station with his best funeral equipage to receive a corpse that was coming from Kingston. That he waited there quietly and with dignity. That the plaintiff, with a casket waggon, came galloping at full speed over the hard roads, and in a loud, rough, noisy, angry manner, asked what authority the defendant had to be there. The defendant had said that he was there under instructions from Father Casey, whereupon the plaintiff had demanded what Father Casey had to do with it. The altercation was stopped by the son of the dead man requesting the defendant to withdraw and that he would make it all right with him. A quotation from the letter reads:

"The loud, rude words must have fallen on the hearts of sorrowing friends like coals of fire on an open wound."

Admitted Receipt of Letter.

Mr. Steven McGuire, editor of the Campbellford Weekly Herald, was the first witness called. He admitted having received the alleged defamatory letter from Mr. Stephens, the defendant, and inserting it in the regular issue. The circulation of the Herald, in which the article appeared was in the neighbourhood of of 1,350, and was distributed throughout Hastings, Northumberland, and slightly in Peterborough Counties.

Mr. James Irwin, plaintiff, on taking the stand, was examined by Mr. Colville. He described, in detail, the circumstances dealing with the incident, upon which the alleged libel was based. He denied many of the statements made by the defendant in the letter to the Herald, in which the latter states that he galloped his horses at full speed over the hard roads. Witness said he was under instructions from the son and daughter of the deceased, when he went to the station to meet the body, and that no loud, rude words passed between the rivals in business.

Witness had made a request to the editor of the Campbellford Despatch to have the letter withheld, but in this he was unsuccessful.

The case was adjourned until nine o'clock this morning.

To-Day's Proceedings.

The case of Irwin vs. Stephens occupied the attention of the High Court all morning and indications are that the case will not be concluded until this evening. At 3 o'clock this afternoon there was a large number of witnesses to be examined. No unusual developments transpired in the morning proceedings. The evidence offered was of an uninteresting character, and principally concerned the manner in which Irwin, the plaintiff in the case, conducted his business. The books of the firm were produced in court. In these were found the account in connection with the burial of the late Mr. Connelly, at Campbellford.

The witnesses to be examined this afternoon were about fifteen in number and are present on behalf of the defendant, Mr. Stephens.

Cannot Be Persuaded To Accept Home Rule

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., APRIL 10—The Times comes out in its old-time vigour this morning, and calls the Liberal Government to witness that yesterday's demonstration in Belfast was one taken part in by thousands of men who have suffered for the unity of the Empire and will not permit this heritage to be filched from them by the Home Rule bill.

"These men," says the Times, "can not be persuaded to accept home rule. Are Englishmen and Scotchmen prepared to fasten it on them by military force?"

Invade Lobby Of Commons

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LONDON, APRIL 10th.—Every seat in the House of Commons available to the public has been booked for to-morrow, when Premier Asquith will inaugurate the third attempt to establish Home Rule in Ireland, and hundreds of people to-day invaded the lobby of the house appealing unavailingly to members for permits.

1400 TEACHERS NEEDED IMMEDIATELY

TORONTO, APRIL 10th.—Willis C. Froats, School Inspector, speaking on "Teacher Supply" at the Ontario Educational Association, said that an adequate supply of trained teachers was at present of most vital importance to the welfare of the province. "We need immediately 1,400 teachers," he said, "and from 500 to 800 more yearly than the present yearly output. But if every schoolroom had qualified teachers under present conditions, salaries would again sink almost to the level of 15 years ago.

"The normal schools must weed out yearly at least 15 per cent. of those attending, simply as an educational protection."

DAINTY OPERETTA TO BE PRESENTED

"Sylvia" at the Grand Opera House on Monday Night Next

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Sodality of St. Peter's Cathedral, a dainty, tuneful operetta, entitled "Sylvia," will be presented at the Grand Opera House on Monday night next. The story hinges upon Sylvia's suggestion to Betty, a farmer's daughter, that they exchange places for a day. Sylvia is betrothed to a nobleman and Betty to a young farmer. The plot is not deeply involved, but is a pretty little story. The feature of the production is perhaps the music. The score is generous with haunting melodies rendered by a strong chorus. The chorus, under Miss L. Hurley's direction, is well balanced and confident. Mr. George Lynch, as stage manager, has employed many little points of what is known in stagecraft as business.

STRANDED IN THE CITY

Immigrants Experience Difficulty in Securing Employment—Bad Roads Given as the Reason

FARMERS UNABLE TO GET IN

That a big strapping Irishman with an industrious-looking wife should be stranded in Peterborough through lack of employment, seems incredible in view of the reports which have become current during the past few weeks concerning the scarcity of farm help, but such is the case. The couple, who are accompanied by three children, arrived in the city on Saturday evening, and upon looking up the advices concerning these people, Mr. Howson found that a Smith township farmer had decided to take the couple with their children. It has developed that the said farmer will be unable to live up to his obligation, owing to the indisposition of his wife. As a result the party have had to remain in the city. They are without funds, and unless relief comes soon, will be reduced to destitute circumstances. The husband is a good horseman and can also milk and do other sundry tasks associated with farm work. The wife has a general knowledge of housekeeping and is willin gto work.

The Aftermath.

Farmers are somewhat reluctant these days to journey far from home. They are content to remain at home until the roads, which are said to be in a desperate condition, have improved. As a result the applications for help at the local immigration office has fallen off somewhat during the last few days. About ten new arrivals were received here yesterday and were quickly disposed ow. Two more arrived this morning and it is expected that another small party will reach here to-morrow or next day. About a dozen trunks and boxes were piled up in the immigration office this morning. It was the aftermath of the party which Mr. Howson received yesterday.

Letters Uncalled For.

Mr. Howson is deluged daily with letters addressed to parties whom he has placed at one time or another. Many of these he is unable to forward, as many of the parties to whom the letters are addressed have moved away, leaving no trace of their whereabouts. The outside appearance of one letter which is addressed to a party who, when last heard of, resided in Otonabee, would indicate that it was from a fond parent or perhaps a lonesome wife. If parties moving away would write and notify Mr. Howson, he would see that all mail received at his office was forwarded to them.

A Falling Off in Returns.

Mr. Howson, in conversation with the Examiner, stated that he thought there would be a falling off in the immigration figures for the season in so far as Peterborough county is concerned. The lure of the west is diverting the tide of immigration westward. Indications are that the next four weeks will be the banner period of the year and it behooves all those in need of farm help to come out of their shell and get in on the ground floor.

RED MILL THEATRE

Case Was Heard in Police Court This Morning—Will Come Up Next Week.

TRESPASSERS BEWARE!

A revolting case figured on the Police Court calendar this morning, concerning one Joseph Cross, who is charged with committing an unnatural offence.

The circumstances are revolting in the extreme, so much so that the Magistrate made a special request that the case be conducted in camera.

Crown Attorney Wood arose and announced that he was not prepared to proceed with the case, and requested a week's remand. This was granted.

Cross is a stranger in the city and is thought to hail from Port Arthur. He has been peddling court plaster around the city, since his arrival here a few days ago. He kept one hand carefully bandaged up, and solicited business largely on the strength of this supposed physical disability, which an investigation carried out by the police, following his arrest, last evening, proved to be a fake.

The Bridge Question Again.

The agitation for a foot-bridge and the action of the C. P. R. in preventing pedestrians from crossing the C. P. R. railway bridge, developed a new phase when William Pritchard and Henry Coit were charged with trespassing upon the C. P. R. Company's property. Both men pleaded guilty to the charge and were allowed to go with a warning.

Special C. P. R. Constable Pinchin laid the information and explained the attitude of the C. P. R. authorities, who are determined to prevent the citizens from using the C. P. R. railway bridge as a means of crossing the river.

Henry Coit addressed the Court and pleaded ignorance of the law. He was merely passing over the bridge, as business demanded his attention on the other side.

LOCAL AGENCY SETS UP A NEW RECORD

BANQUET TO-MORROW NIGHT

The local district of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has set up a new record in the Company's achievements in the United States and Canada, by making the best showing of all the districts throughout these countries and making an entirely new record. The activities of the Company spring from the offices in the famous Metropolitan building in New York. The country is divided into territories and subdivided into districts. The Peterborough district includes all the towns between Ottawa and Toronto, and is under the superintendency of Mr. John Rothwell. The returns for 1911 show that Mr. Rothwell's men secured 250 per cent. of the business apportioned to them. The next best showing was made by the Knickerbocker district in New York, with a percentage of 211. The 34th man had 120 per cent. of his apportionment. These figures indicate the activities of all those who were included in the honour list and certainly show that the local district has made a splendid showing. No Canadian district has ever before held first honours and the record made here is the highest for any district in the Company's history.

The officers of the Company are providing a banquet for the representatives of the local district. It will be held at the Oriental Hotel to-morrow night and among those who will be present are Mr. F. O. Ayres of New York, fourth vice-president of the company, and Mr. Jas. E. Kavanaugh, superintendent of agencies for Western New York and Canada. Mr. Kavanaugh is an old Peterborough boy, and a former teacher in this city.

In the main window of A. W. Creasman, Limited, there is an exact reproduction of the New York Metropolitan building. It is a model made of galvanized iron and is lighted within, the current being alternating, and thus the lights are switched on and off. The Company's colours—yellow, blue, and white, are conspicuous, as also pictures of officers and superintendents of the company.

A large number of the Company's agents are expected to be in the city to-morrow.

TO-NIGHT AT THE GRAND

Benefit Performance of "What Kitty Did" by Miss Crawley and Her Players Will be Well Attended

A DESERVING OBJECT

There will undoubtedly be a large audience at the Grand Opera House to-night, when a benefit performance will be given by and for Miss Constance Crawley and her English company, who, as stated in the Examiner, are in distressing financial circumstances, as the result of having been abandoned by the man who was managing their Canadian tour. The appeal made by the Examiner for some assistance for this deserving Company, has met with satisfactory response, and it is a pleasure to be able to report this a large number of tickets have already been sold. The event is being taken hold of by a number of Peterborough's ladies, who realize the embarassing position in which the members of the company have found themselves, and are doing their best to see that to-night's performance is a success. The English players were the guests of Mr. J. A. Aylmer, who invited a number of people in to meet them and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

The Company will be seen to-night in the bright, amusing farce "What Kitty Did," a really funny little play that has met with popular favour, wherever it has been produced. It has been decided to place rush seats on sale for 25c to-night, while the general admission will be 50 cents.

A LIBERAL OFFER

We Guarantee to Relieve Dyspepsia. If We Fail the Medicine Costs Nothing.

To unquestionably prove to the people that indigestion and dyspepsia can be permanently relieved and that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will bring about this result, we will furnish the medicine absolutely free if it fails to give satisfaction to any one using it.

The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is due to the high degree of scientific skill used in devising their formula as well as to the care exercised in their manufacture, whereby the well-known properties of Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin have been combined with Carminatives and other agents.

Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin are constantly employed and recognized by the entire medical profession as invaluable in the treatment of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The Pepsin used in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is carefully prepared so as to develop its greatest efficiency. Pepsin supplies to the digestive apparatus one of the most important elements of the digestive fluid. Without it the digestion and assimilation of food are impossible.

The Carminatives possess properties which aid in relieving the disturbances and pain caused by undigested food. This combination of these ingredients makes a remedy invaluable for the complete relief of indigestion and dyspepsia.

We are so certain of this that we urge you to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets on our own personal guarantee. Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store.—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

"PRINCESS IRIS"

The attraction at the Grand on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 11, 12, 13, is entitled to the serious consideration of the theatre goers of our city who demand the best in theatrical endeavour, and in the heralding of the coming of these careful and conscientious artists, Mildred and Rouclere and their company it is to be hoped that they will be received in a manner befitting their ability and talents, for surely no artists can be called to mind with greater experience or a more successful career than these sterling young performers. The Egyptian Fantasy, "Princess Iris," which they are presenting this season, is said to be a very strong one, well written and concise. It is one big novelty from the rise of the curtain to its final fall. During the action of the piece there will be introduced many new and novel specialties by artists of note. The attraction is equipped with complete scenic and electrical effects and the production is one of merit and the best possible that a careful and liberal management could put together. The seats are now on sale.

LAID TO REST

The remains of the late Thomas Derry of Milwaukee, and formerly of Peterborough, arrived by the 9.3 train last evening, and were conveyed to the family residence, 455 McDonnell street.

The funeral took place this afternoon. A large number of friends and relatives gathered at the house from which the funeral cortege proceeded to the Little Lake cemetery, at 2 o'clock. Interment took place at 2.30. The Rev. G. W. Henderson of Charlotte Street Methodist Church officiated.

PRACTICE SWEARS AT PREACHING.

Rt. Hon. Mr. Borden, when in the irresponsible position of Opposition leader, was full full of virtuous resolves, which largely resolved themselves into forgetfulness when he came to the responsibility of office with power to give them effect. He talked with Pecksniffian unction of the purity of the civil service and the lofty principles that should influence appointments. No man, he said in effect, should be appointed to office for any other reason than merit, and politics should be the last consideration in making such an appointment. And for years—while in opposition—Conservatives have been condemning the practice of appointing members of parliament to emolumentary positions Premier Borden has disregarded this in appointing the representative of Kootenay, B. C., a member of the Dominion Railway Commission in place of Hon. Thomas Greenway, who represented the west on the Commission. Sir James Whitney has disregarded the wholesome rule in appointing a member of the Ontario Legislature to investigate Ontario's goose-neck, its five-mile wide lane through Manitoba, to a port on Hudson Bay; and he has added to the disregard of good policy by the outraging of the independence of parliament in allowing the member to retain his seat in the house and help vote his own salary as a public servant, in addition to his sessional allowance.

With the accustomed cynical regard for the interests of the Canadian west, the Ottawa government has selected as western representative on the Railway Commission, a gentleman, who is not acceptable to the west, not representative of the west—only of a corner of the west, which is shut out from the middle west by the Rocky Mountains. Mr. A. S. Goodeve, of British Columbia, the member for Kootenay, is personally an estimable gentleman, but has no special qualifications for the position. The parliamentary "Who's who" classifies Mr. Goodeve as a druggist by profession; an honourable occupation, but one that does not give the practical experience demanded on a Railway Commission. But Mr. Goodeve is a politician and his appointment is purely political and worse than that, purely partisan. He will not be acceptable to the west, where the conditions demand a representative on the Commission in touch with the peculiar transportation needs of that rapidly developing region. The Manitoba Free Press, well qualified to voice the sentiments of the west, says that the new Railway Commissioner should have been either a business man or a farmer from the middle west, familiar with conditions in the Prairie Provinces and desirous of seeing them improved. The greatest transportation problems of to-day arise from needs of this portion of Canada; and this will continue to be the case or many years to come. Mr. Goodeve has no special qualifications or the place. His appointment is purely political. It is intended to solace him for two previous disappointments. Failure to reach the Cabinet when the Government was formed; and his more recent non-success in landing the Governorship of the Yukon. As Mr. Borden solemnly observed in proclaiming his Halifax platform:

"To use the power of filling positions as a reward for party service without regard to the character and capacity of the individual selected is a gross breach of a solemn public trust."

Consistency is a jewel which will not put Mr. Borden to the trouble of providing a very large box to keep it in.

WOMEN AND VOTES.

As with every other question, there are two sides, not to speak of the naturally attendant frills, to the woman suffrage question. Woman, to be entitled to vote, should be the equal of man; and woman is not man's equal—she is his superior in all the higher qualities, the qualities of domestic administration, homemaking and all of this sort of thing that contributes to the highest happiness of the home and the character of our future citizens, who receive their first, most abiding and most valuable training in the home. This accepted, it follows naturally as the face follows the nose, that woman should have a voice in providing the conditions that affect the home, chiefly associated with moral considerations. To do this effectively, she needs the ballot. That she would use it within at least as much wisdom as millions of nominal men, who have the ballot, goes without saying.

It is claimed that if woman is given the franchise, she will not use it; her delicate, sensitive, shrinking nature will not permit her to join the rude hustle of the male mob that clusters around the polling booth, swearing, arguing, chewing and smoking tobacco and generally demonstrating their social, itellectual and moral superiority to women. But when women are, in these days of activity, compelled to associate with men in crowded street cars, and in the lobbies of theatres—unfortunately, or fortunately there is no crush of men in church porches; when we remember the development of the physical prowess of woman as represented by the militant suffragettes in the old land, we must conclude that in their arena of physical capability, woman has shown herself the equal of man.

But abstract reasoning aside, there is concrete evidence that women appreciate the ballot and use it wisely and effectively in the interests of a good cause. In the municipal bye-elections in Montreal recently, the enfranchised woman did noble work in the election of Controller Godfrey, the cadidate of municipal reform. The Montreal Herald pays its tribute by nearly a column of description of the work of the woman electors — there are about 8,000 women voters in the city—under the heading, "Debut of Ladies Into Political Arena, a Success," and editorially makes this comment:

> One factor in the civic election that must have had considerable influence in the return of Mr. Godfrey was the work done in his behalf by the Local Council of Women.
>
> There are about 8,000 women voters in the city, and some fifty members of the Local Council have worked most enthusiastically in canvassing these voters in getting the voters' lists into shape and in bringing out the vote. The energetic President of the Council, Mrs. Dr. Ritchie, England, though confined to the house by illness in her family, did much to promote the work of organization, while Mrs. Walter Lyman, corresponding secretary in charge of a committee with headquarters at Mrs. Duncan Anderson's residence, 100 Park Avenue, rendered fine and intelligent service to the cause. Another committee room was opened in the offices of Rev. Dr. Pedley's church, and from these two centres radiated influences which were felt in all parts of the city.
>
> More than one alderman who supported the cause of civic reform, at the elections in February, owed his return to the work of the ladies, and it is fortunate for Montreal that it has a body of women workers willing to undertake this somewhat thankless task.
>
> The spirit that animates them finds illustration in the remark of one who canvassed steadily for a week and worked hard all day yesterday bringing voters to the polls. "I want clean streets," she said. "I didn't feel that I could reasonably demand them unless I went out and worked to secure the return of the man who was most likely to give them to me."

This illustration lends interest to the correspondence on woman suffrage now appearing in the Examiner. While it seems to justify the general contentions of Miss Adelene C. Roberts, it does not impair the contention of "Sylvia" to the effect that home, is the woman's kingdom, in which home duties, the training of her children (and why not training of the husband), attention to their health, physical and moral, constitute the first demand. It will be admitted that anything that will interfere seriously with the discharge of these duties is undesirable; but is it not possible that woman's wide range of capacity, her infinite capability of doing a thousand things at once, would admit of her faithful discharge of home duties and an occasional dash into politics at a crisis like the Montreal bye-election.

THE WEST'S FERMENT.

(Montreal Herald.)

The conspicuousness of the American in the ferment of discontent in the West, is probably to be explained in large part by other considerations than his unfamiliarity with monarchial institutions. We doubt very much whether he blames King George V for the high tariff or the railway blockade or the prices of lumber and cement.. That he has no desire to see the capitalists and manufacturers of Eastern Canada getting rich at his expense is no evidence of republicanism. The fact is that the American in our West is by nature the most enterprising and aggressive of the settlers (except the Eastern Canadian who naturally does not learn to criticise the land of his origin until he has been West for some years), by experience the most fully aware of the burdens imposed upon him, and by nature the most vocal in his complaints. It is not unnatural at all that he should take the leadership in the chorus of protestation, though as a matter of fact hundreds of good native-born Canadians are not a note behind him; and he would probably do just the same if he had been living under a King Theodore or a Dictator Taft all the days of his life.

The Herald publishes to-day another letter from a Westerner on the grievances of the West. The writer is an American, but has not a scrap of anti-monarchical prejudice; and he very rightly feels that it is no answer to his complaining to tell him that he is incapable of true Canadianism because he was born under the stars and stripes. There can be no doubt that the exploitation of the West in the interests of certain classes of Canadians who have been longer in the country than most of the Westerners has reached a very dangerous extreme, and cannot be disposed of by saying that the men who complain of it were licked in the last election and must take their medicine. One of the most dangerous features of the situation is that they know the kind of campaign they were licked by, and strenuously resent it.

Mr. Bennett has succeeded in doing so much for the Westerner in the inner councils of a party which has not much support from the West and not much use for it except as a field of exploitation, that it is unfortunate that some of his sentences should have been misconstrued and unduly emphasized. The writer of to-day's letter may take it from us that Mr. Bennett left in Montreal a much deeper realization of the legitimacy of the West's claims than of the Americanism of the claimants.

How Virile Opposition Stirs A Somnolent Government

Queen's Park is waking up.

This has nothing to do with the coming of spring, the bursting of the buds, and the building of little nests by little birds. It is merely preliminary to saying that some unparalleled change has come over the spirit of the dream in which the Ontario Legislature has passed the last seven years of its existence.

The landslide which wiped the Ross Government out of existence in 1905 left in the House a mere handful of Liberals who were so benumbed and dizzy after the hurricane that for some time there was excellent excuse for their inactivity. Years passed, however, and still the little band to the Speaker's left dreamed on — dreamed of some impossible miracle which should lift them into power over the heads of a strong Government which grew stronger after the seven years now, a private member in politics, and yet the years went on.

The inevitable happened to the Government. Naturally inclined to be autocratic, it became more and more so as time passed, until autocracy was mistaken for authority and acquiescence for agreement.

A New Vim and Vigour.

Now something has happened. something has gone wrong with this state of affairs, so highly agreeable to the Government. The elections of last December did not have so much effect on the relation between the two parties so far as members went, but it injected into the Liberal ranks a new vim and vigour to which they had been total strangers for over half a decade. Moreover, the result placed at the Liberal helm a new leader; and under his guidance, the little band woke up to a realisation of what an Opposition can be and do. The result of this has been both amusing and instructive, as the show man says. The Liberals, both in and out of the House, have been amused at the sight of the Government climbing trees and trying to pull the trees up after them, and the Government itself has been instructed in a lot of things it had managed to overlook in the pleasant days gone by. "British institutions" have been better safeguarded since the present Legislature opened than they had been in the previous seven years; and, with a little more of the present system of judicious checks from the Opposition, the business of the Ontario Legislature will be carried on like that of any other parliamentary body.

Borrowing Thunder.

Let us look for a minute at the enthusiasm with which the Government has adopted several of the Opposition policies. One of the planks of Mr. Rowell's election platform was the eight-hour day for miners. With commendable enthusiasm Sir James Whitney at once introduced a bill establishing such a day, following the lead of the Opposition leader, who also placed such a piece of legislation on the order paper. Things went swimmingly for a while; then the Premier did a volte face, and withdrew his bill. Naturally, of course, that puts an end to the hope of the miners for this session, at least.

Another matter in which the Liberals had showed great interest was tax reform. "Pooh! Pooh! Fudge! Tush!" remarked Sir James, loudly and frequently. Petitions from Conservative constituencies, advice from Conservative members and Conservative newspapers, alike fell on deaf ears, or rather on ears which were deaf at first. For latterly that mysterious influence of which we spoke at first has got in its work, and the Government has promised a commission to "look into" the Liberal proposals. It is safe to assume that when said proposals have been "looked into" jut long enough to make the looking appear convincing something tangible will result, and to the Government will be all the praise.

Preserving British Institutions.

Take a little matter of House procedure, not a big thing to be sure, but still interesting, as showing how far a Government will go unless it is checked. It seems incredible, but for seven years now a private member of the Ontario Legislature has been able to get his bills before the House only by arrangement with the Government. According to the rules of the House, and of any similar body, certain days, or a certain part of several days in each week, are set apart for the discussion of private bills. During this time private bills have precedence. The way things have been working out, however, has been that Government business has had the call before the bill of the private member, which accounts for the fact that we have heard so much about Mr. So-and-So getting permission from the Government to introduce a bill. Anywhere else such permission is not needed, and it will not be needed in Queen's Park in the future. There was a pretty little spat over it, the other day, and Mr. Rowell nailed things for keeps.

"British institutions" are getting another facer in the matter of the five million dollar vote for the development of Northern Ontario.

In this case the House is being compelled to vote a lump sum of five millions, to hand it over to an administrator who cannot possibly spend it all in one year, and who is not asked to specify in the smallest particular the various purposes for which the money is intended. Such a course has never been followed before, either at Ottawa or Westminster. It will go through, in all probability, but it will not go through until the Opposition has had its say. One of the most highly cherished privileges of parliament under British rule has been the absolute control of expenditure, and in this case about the last thing that Parliament has is control.—Toronto Star.

CONSERVATIVES HELP A LIBERAL

Subscribe One Thousand Dollars to Fight Election Protest of Liberal Member

LONDON, ONT., APRIL 9.—In December the Conservatives of East Middlesex joined with the Liberals in defeating the Whitney candidate, Mr. George Neely, ex-M.P.P. Since the election they have given many expressions of their confidence in Mr. Robert Sutherland, the present member, but to-day a further testimonial was given in the form of a donation of one thousand dollars subscribed by ten of the leading Conservatives of Dorchester.

The money was deposited with Mr. J. M. McEvoy of this city, and when they visited the solicitor's office and laid down on his desk a thousand dollars in cash they also handed the following document, which speaks for itself:

"Dorchester, April 8.—We, as Conservatives of North Dorchester, in the East riding of Middlesex, take great pleasure in forwarding the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000) to Mr. Robert Sutherland, M.P.P., showing him our greatest sympathy towards his unjust treatment on behalf of the protest entered against him by Mr. Neely, ex-M.P.P. (Signed) David Gilmour, Levi Atwell, George Hunt, James Smith, William Wallace, W. Hartle, Morley Lane, Thoas Lane."

In addition to the eight naes appearing on the subscription, there are two other Conservatives, making ten altogether, who contributed one hundred dollars each, a striking evidence of their esteem for Mr. Sutherland, as well as a commentary on the methods adopted by the Conservative machine in East Middlesex. Mr. Gilmour is a brother of the late Mr. Gilmour, Conservative member for that riding, and all are prominent Dorchester Conservatives. They stated to-day that their example was being followed by others, who have collected nearly another $1,000.

GRIP IS DANGEROUS

Often Followed by Pneumonia or Pleurisy.

Grip, pleurisy, pneumonia — these are greatly to be feared at this time of year.

To prevent grip from being followed by either pleurisy or pneumonia, it is important to drive the last traces of it out of the system quickly.

The same is true of pleurisy — it leaves the lungs dangerously tender.

Our advice is to take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, and get your strength and vitality back as soon as you can.

Vinol does this for you. Mr. W. R. Williams of West Pittston, Pa., says: "I had a very bad attack of pleurisy which left me weak and rundown. I took Vinol and it has built me up remarkably. On account of the great benefit I have received from it I have recommended Vinol to several other persons."

Our positive guaranty goes with every bottle, that Vinol must satisfy you or you get your money back. McDermid and Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte street; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe street.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Peterborough To Have The Provincial Bicycle Meet

TORONTO, APRIL 9.—After being out of office for a year Louis Rubinstein of Montreal, was elected on one ballot as president of the Canadian Wheelman's Association at the thirtieth annual convention in the Queen's Hotel Saturday afternoon. Mr. Robt. Falconer, the retiring president, was made vice-president. His knowledge of the pedal-pushing game was recognized as invaluable.

The convention was like a church meeting compared with the annual gathering of a year ago; but it was soon evident that the C.W.A. is in earnest in its battle with the C. A. A. U. to break away from that body. Nine-tenths of the delegates were in favour of withdrawing. It was agreed to lay the matter over and to let it be dealt with by the incoming executive. The decision was reached after a vigorous discussion, in which several of the delegates told what they thought of the Canadian Olympic Committee and its recent attempt to keep Canadian riders from going to the Swedish games.

The recommendation to pull out will likely carry when it is finally brought before the new executive.

Peterborough will get the Provincial championships. Toronto was passed up, as last year's meet at Scarboro Beach was not a success.

Plans for the Olympic trials were not discussed, but will be dealt with by the executive. The secretary was requested to write Norton Crow for entry blanks and information.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were:

President—Louis Rubinstein, Montreal.

Vice-President — Robert Falconer, Toronto.

Treasurer—J. S. Smith, Toronto.

Chairman Racing Board—G. L. MacKay, Toronto.

Chairman Membership Committee.—John Gilley.

DOINGS IB THE BIG LEAGUES

NEW YORK, APRIL 10.—The American and National leagues, the American association and the Cotton States and Southern leagues start the baseball season this week.

This matter of fact statement virtually means the beginning of the annual six months' period, during which this year more than 300 recognized clubs of professional players will wage battle in almost as many cities throughout the country for pennant honours in nearly two scores organized leagues.

In the west the Pacific Coast league has already 'got into the game' and to-day the fans of the middle west will start rooting for their favourites in the American Association circuit. To-morrow, the opening day, enthusiasm will have spread to the Atlantic coast, reaching a climax in eight of the major league cities.

In quick order follow all of the minors until by the first of June all the forces which all organized baseball can command will be in the field of action, for a season, which is hailed in all quarters as promising a greater and broader development of the national game than ever before.

Although the big leagues retain most of the veteran players and the younger idols of last season, the change in managements which seven of the sixteen clubs in the 2 leagues undergo this year is the greatest shakeup of the kind within memory. The American league has five such changes. Clark Griffith has left Cincinnati and taken charge of the Washington nine; Harry Wolverton has come from the Pacific coast to put new life into the New York Highlanders; Jake Stahl, the Boston American first baseman, has come back after a year's retirement to manage the team; Harry Davis, the Philadelphia Athletics' famous first sacker, has gone to Cleveland to run the club and the Chicago White Sox are to be generalled by Jimmy Callahan, the old-timer, whose "come-back" last year surprised the fans.

In the National league there are two changes of management. Johnny Kling, the former star catcher of the Chicago Cubs, is promoted to the management of Boston after a season's work behind the bat here. In Cincinnati there will be the novelty of an umpire turning manager, as Hank O'Day, a National league arbitrator for years, has undertaken to lead the Reds.

Thomas J. Lynch, president of the National League, is very optimistic about the coming season.

I look for the best season the National League has ever enjoyed," he said. "With so many of the clubs strengthened, it should be a keen race. New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Pittsburg are sure to have close competition among themselves, and this season Brooklyn, Cincinnati Boston and St. Louis look much stronger than last year. And the more teams that figure strongly in the race the better the season will be."

Ban Johnson, president of the American league, is quoted in a similar vein on the prospects of the junior organization. He predicted that instead of there being two prominent contenders in the pennant race as was the case last season, there would be five or six in a close race this year.

Manager Templin Is Expected Next Week

Manager Templin of the Peterborough Ball Club, will likely arrive in Peterborough at the latter end of next week, to arrange for the transportation of his team, superintend the improvements to Riverside Park and generally prepare for the season, which open on May 14. "Old Folks" is working out every day at his home in Reading, and will be in good shape when he reports, as will be most of his players, as he has instructed them to get into condition as soon as possible. Templin has his team practically complete and what is better, he knows just what his men are and what they can do. He is Buntying for a couple of pitchers and may sign another box artist. His squad will report in Peterborough on May 1st, and will have two weeks training here before opening the season. Secretary Davidson is still anxiously waiting for the schedule, a draft of which was supposed to be sent out to the clubs for approval last week.

MORE NICK-NAMES

Nickname Editor—

We are going to have a dandy ball team this year. Why not call them the "Dandies?" J. H.

Nickname Editor—

I would suggest the name "Electric Quakers" for the Peterborough baseball team as it refers to two of our largest industries, and Peterborough is called both the "Electric City" and the "Quaker Oats" city. It would also distinguish our team from all the Quakers whom the Peterborough team are going to make quake, as only "Electric" Quakers can make quake.

"One of 'Em.'"

Nickname Editor—

Nickname Editor—

I would suggest that the ball team be called "Swapates." They certainly will "swap" the ball some and also the name is significant because it contains the initials of the former non-professional teams of the town, namely, Straths, West Ends, T.A.S., Athletics, Auburns, Pulmans and Park St., who delivered the goods long before we could boast of a professional team.

Hoping we may be the proud possessors of the pennant. E. K.

NEWS FROM THE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

OTTAWA, APRIL 8.—Communicating with the Ottawa Baseball Club from Champaign, Ill., Manager Louie Cook last night announced he expected to round up the crack outfielder he has been after in Chicago, for three weeks past, by Wednesday. The fact that the Canadian League season is only three and a half months is all that bars the way to landing this star in the Capital. He hit around .345 in a Class C League last season and stole over 25 bases in 41 games. He wants a four months' contract. Here is what Cook says about him: "I hope I will be able to land him, as he is a mighty good man and would add twenty per cent. strength to our club. In addition he is a good, clean fellow and will go up to the majors, sure in another season or two."

Cook also gives out the information he has a lien on the best pitcher turned out of the western universities in years. Milwaukee and Minneapolis, of the American Association, have offered him big league salaries, but he declines to play in the Western States. Cook believes he will be able to get him if the Class A. A. clubs don't turn his head with fancy offers.

The Ottawa manager has also signed Ruddy Weise, a combination outfielder and catcher. His contract arrived in the Capital yesterday. Cook states he is very fast, a good fielder, and a fine fellow.

The club management has its hooks on a .325 hitter from the Ohio State League and he looks the next thing to a certainty. He is a third baseman and a youngster with flash lightning action on the bases.

The Ottawa Free Press says:

The stimulation given the Canadian League by the admission of Ottawa and taking in of Peterborough to complete an eight club circuit is being shown all along the line. The Ottawa people immediately went out after a high-class collection of ball players that had the other clubs gasping. Then Peterborough showed it meant business by the municipal authorities getting behind it, buying a manager who was sent south to sign up the best he could get. Hamilton awakened to the fact they would have to strengthen to step along with the other clubs and sent scouts down to Detroit, and scoured the bushes of Michigan for men. Guelph, a small centre, has a wealthy and enthusiastic backer in Owner Mahoney, who turned loose all kinds of cash getting players from New York State and New England. Brantford and St. Thomas have also recruited from the New England states. Finally London, one of the best cities on the circuit, opened up the throttle and dragged Frank Bowerman, the former New York Giant catcher, to manage its club. It is safe to say Bowerman will gather a fast bunch of men around him, and London can now be looked upon as a one, two, three team, Berlin, with foxy "Rube" Deneau at the helm, will have the pick of last year's pennant team and some new ones, who will give him a twenty-five per cent. faster aggregation than in 1911. With the city building a $25,000 grandstand for the club, conditions there are hilariously bright.

Infielder Burke, who played with Brantford for a short time last season, wants to try out with Guelph. He is a good sticker and may be given a chance to make good.

Guelph's new first baseman, Walter Bradley, has been playing around Philadelphia for the past two weeks, and is about to go on a short tour with the University of Pennsylvania team.

Ottawa Canadian League players now under contract are: Catchers, Rowe and Shortsleeve; pitchers, Hennifan and Draper; second baseman, Louie Cook; shortstop, Harry McMahon; outfielders, Frank Burke, Rudolph, Weise and Jack Callaghan.

London Advertiser: Frank Bowerman! Well, well, well.

The coming of Bowerman to the London club is the biggest stroke of advertising the Canadian League has yet received.

Now St. Thomas, it's up to you to land Johnny Kling or Roger Bresnahan. These big league catchers are all the style for Canadian league managers.

And we can hear Frank Shaughnessy way over in Fort Wayne murmuring "What d'you know about that?"

Ottawa Free Press:

Richmond, Va., and two Southern league clubs are after Pitcher Harry Draper, the young left-hander Ottawa purchased from Roanoke. Richmond offers a pitcher and infielder and a chunk of cash for Draper. It is apparent the local club grabbed off a star in the young southpaw from Virginia and made no mistake in squandering $500 to secure him. When it is considered Draper has just turned twenty and is already being sought after by Class A clubs, Ottawa can look forward to producing a second O'Toole, with prospects of a grand scramble among the big clubs late in the summer to land the youngster. The local club will entertain no bids for Draper at the present time and if he lives up to advance notices at the start of the season will hang on to him unless a small fortune is offered for his services.

THE 1912 McLAUGHLIN

$2,250 F. O. B. OSHAWA

The automobilist who delights in a motor that turns a steady though quiet pace—that is responsive to his controlling touch—that seems to laugh at hills and sandy roads—and, who appreciates the little conveniences that add to his comfort—the Self-Starter, the complete Electric Light Plant, with separate dynamo—such a man should inspect McLaughlin-Buick Model "43".

The 40 to 50 H.P. Buick Motor provides ample reserve power for all emergencies.

The dependability to the manufacturer is more to be trusted than the cleverest arguments of the salesman. That is why the cautious purchaser of an automobile places more reliance on the reputation of the McLaughlin Car and its makers than on the most glowing promises of a salesman, however well they may be founded.

Your future satisfaction demands that your choice be a McLaughlin-Buick.

CENSUS OF CITY

On April 23rd in Interests of Y.M.C.A. and Sunday Schools

Tuesday, April 23rd, has been selected as the date for the canvass of the city to ascertain the number of boys who are not attending Sunday school. At the meeting of superintendents of the Sunday schools last night this was decided and it was announced that 100 workers would be available for the task of taking the census.

BLANC MANGE.

Put one tablespoonful of sweet, grated chocolate into a saucepan with one tablespoonful of milk. Allow to dissolve and set aside. Mix in a basin three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, three tablespoonfuls of sugar and one tablespoonful of vanilla extract. Moisten with a little cold milk. Put one and a half pints of milk on to boil and pour over the cornstarch, stirring all the time. Pour the whole back into the saucepan and boil for five minutes, stirring constantly. Stir in the chocolate roughly to marble it, and pour into a wet mold. When firm turn out and serve with milk or cream.

BANANA PUDDING.

Two and a half tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, two bananas, one tablespoonful of sugar, the juice and rind of half of a lemon and two cupfuls of milk. Slice the bananas and place in the bottom of a glass dish. Put the sugar over and pour over the lemon juice. Blend the cornstarch with the milk and boil it for eight minutes, stirring all the time. Let this cool and pour over the bananas. When set, sprinkle over with sugar and serve with cream.

INTERESTING ADDRESS BY MR. HAROLD D. ROBERTSON, B.A.

He Addressed Large Audience at Murray Street Church Upon the Modern System of Education and its Influence on the Recent Revolution in China.

The annual meeting of the Mission Circle in connection with Murray street Baptist church, held last evening, was marked by a most interesting address by Mr. Harold D. Robertson, B.A., of China. He spoke on the modern system of education and its influence in the recent revolution, and his remarks were listened to with great appreciation.

"If there is one thing of which the Chinese are proud," he said, "it is the people they call their scholars. This scholar class has been the most influential class of the Chinese nation for centuries. As you know, the man who has done most to influence the lives of the Chinese nation was Confucius, who was born 551 B.C. He made books of the sayings and thoughts of those who had gone before him and they are now sacred books to the Chinese.

It is almost unbelievable what a change has come about in modern times. There is now a series of four examinations for which degrees are given, and the Chinese government appoint those who have passed the higher examinations to the higher public offices. The old Chinese system was that of memorizing, but the generation of the nineteenth century had been learning things. It began to realize that China was getting the worst of it among other nations. These young men advised the Emperor that there was no school in which western customs were taught. He proposed to make a great change in China. It was realized that Russia was influencing Mongolia and Manchuria, that Japan was exercising power over Korea, that Great Britain was making foreign cities of the shipping ports, and that the French were getting a great expanse of territory under her control. And they wondered what was going to be the outcome, and gradually the advisors succeeded in getting the Dowager Empress to understand the necessity of education, with the result that a proclamation was issued in 1905-6 to the effect that higher schools should be established through the country, so that China could cope with foreign powers. Well, the Chinese people have never done anything in a hurry, but in one year schools were established throughout the province, and at the same time there was a great rush of students to the Mission school. All this time Missions were pretty well established throughout the Empire and they did what they could to further the cause of education. But everyone wanted to study English, so a treaty was sent abroad asking for teachers. When we of the Victoria College went out, we found the conditions had gone back to their original state, as they realized that they could not learn the western language and customs in a year. When we arrived in China there were left in these schools only those who were keen on getting a western education, and it was not long before the Chinese realized that the education obtained in Missionary schools was better than that obtained in Government schools.

Just outside Chengtu, we have purchased five English acres of land, and have permission to purchase fifty-five more. This, we hope ultimately, to use for a University. At the present time we are carrying on on this property work of a middle school. In this middle school the average has been about one hundred students, and it is a pleasure for me to say that they evince the same desires and ambitions as others.

Then the revolution came along. This system of education commenced in 1906, has made it possible to discuss this revolutionary movement, but it came just six months before the students were ready for it.

You may ask what will be the result. I would that I could tell you. It does not seem that the Chinese nation was ready for the movement which has just taken place. The students after all, are only a very small percentage of the Chinese nation. But they thought that as long as the Manchus were in power foreigners would outdo the Chinese nation, and nothing would be satisfactory except the abdication of the Manchus and the establishment of a Republican government. At the present time it does not seem that anything will result except anarchy for a certain length of time.

There is no one who has the interest of the Chinese at heart but who will pra ythat it may be made possible for the Chinese people to be kept intact and be allowed to work out their destiny, and that the Christian church which has been established in that country will assist under the present circumstances and that the lives of the Missionaries will be able to exert such an influence as will lead to the establishment of a religion that will mean something to the Chinese people.

Three Things Dearest To A Woman . . .

WE can't very well talk to you here about the first two, but we have an interesting word to say about your home.

Just this.

No matter what "fixings"; no matter what embellishments; no matter what expense you have gone to in furnishing, the COMPLEXION of your home is controlled by the wall papers.

They either make or mar the harmony of the whole.

And so they should be chosen with that regard for artistic consistency that marks the woman of refinement and good taste.

We would like to have you make use of our experience and suggestions in the deciding of your home's new dress. We have prepared a colored portfolio which may help you to make up your mind.

Your copy is waiting for you at the store, or will gladly be mailed you free on request.

Special to The Examiner.

ROCHESTER, APRIL 10.—Balloting has not yet taken place at the Republican State convention here today and it is still in doubt who will carry the day. Elihu Root made an impassioned appeal for Taft. Senator Prendergast declared Taft should be defeated and Roosevelt made Republican candidate. In view of the failure of Taft's reciprocity treaty with Canada, Taft would never more be elected president of the United States, he said.

Said About Womankind

Women ,cats and birds are the creatures that waste most time on their toilets.—Chares Nodlier.

The merest trifles will affect the mind of a woman.—Titus Livius.

Women's love, like lichens on a rock will still grow where even charity can find no soil to nurture itself.—Bovee.

If a fox is cunning a woman in love is a thousand times more so.—Proverb.

She who makes her husband and her children happy, who reclaims the one from vice, and trains up the other to virtue, is a much greater character than ladies described in romance, whose sole occupation is to murder mankind with shafts from the quiver of their eyes.—Oliver Goldsmith.

At the age of 60 to marry a beautiful girl of 16 is to imitate those ignorant people who buy books to be read by their friends.—Antoine Ricard.

The woman who loves us is only a woman, but the woman we love is a celestial being, whose defects disappear under the prism through which we see her.—Emil de Girardin.

Why Should a Chicken Lay a Soft-Shelled Egg?

Because, Willie, the chicken don't know how to create a hard shelled egg unless it has some food with lime in it.

So chicken-raisers often provide lime-stone gravel, broken oyster shells or some other form of lime.

Let the chicken wander free and it finds its own food and behaves sensibly.

Shut it up and feed stuff lacking lime and the eggs are soft-shelled.

Let's step from chickens to human beings.

Why is a child "backward" and why does a man or woman have nervous prostration or brain-fag? There may be a variety of reasons but one thing is certain.

If the food is deficient in Phosphate of Potash the gray matter in the nerve centres and brain cannot be rebuilt each day to make good the cells broken down by the activities of yesterday.

Phosphate of Potash is the most important element Nature demands to unite albumin and water to make gray matter.

UNITED SUNDAY SCHOOLS ASSOCIATION TO MAKE A CANVASS OF THE CITY

(Written for The Examiner by Roy Gilray)

In unity there is strength. If the churches will not unite the Sunday schools, at least, are co-operating for aggressive work.

One of the outstanding questions confronting every Sunday school, particularly those of the cities, is the boy problem: "Does the boy attend Sunday school by reason of his own choice? If not, why not?" Some of the greatest authorities on this class of church work have offered various solutions.

In attempting to answer this question one writer says: "When you were a boy did you go to Sunday school just because you wanted to, or because somebody encouraged you in the habit? The boy of to-day isn't any different from you in your day. You know you never were as much interested in the Sunday school as you think your boy ought to be, and you know why. It did not have the same pull on your heart strings that the birds and the flowers and the swimming hole and the flat boat down by the bridge used to have. It needn't trouble you to-day if a normal, red-blooded boy needs to be encouraged to go to Sunday school. If you will give him a good time when he gets there—a time that will interest him—if you are wise enough to shape the policy of the school for the benefit of the scholar rather than according to the whims of a few of the teachers who have forgotten their boyhood and girlhood, you will make the boy want to come a great deal more than you ever wanted to yourself."

Realizing the great importance of this phase of their work, representatives of the various Sunday schools of the city have been quietly but effectively organising for a campaign; the result has been the formation of "The United Sunday Schools Association" (in the interests of the boys) officered as follows:

President, J. J. Hartley,
Vice-president, J. Edgar,
Secy.-treas., Sanford R. Hall, the membership consisting of representatives from the Sunday schools of the city.

They are approaching the work in a most systematic and business-like manner, and have decided to take a census of boys between the ages of 10 and 18 who are or should be attending Sunday school.

The city has been divided into 46 districts, and workers from the various schools will secure the desired information on the 23rd of April on specially prepared cards containing such questions as: Name, address, parents or guardians, church attended, been at S.S. this year, if not, why not, day or night school attended or if working, where? In short, such data that will enable a Sunday school to keep in touch with the boy it seeks to benefit, for every true worker knows that religious faith is the foundation of all that is the noblest and best in human character, and it is the Sunday school which gathers in the youth and impresses this faith upon them while they are still susceptible to its purifying influence.

DEATH FOLLOWS THE SURGEON'S KNIFE

Surgery is the fad in medical treatment, and many doctors still recommend a surgical operation for piles. Too often the results are fatal to the patient, and even when the operation is a success there is not always a cure.

There is a safer way to cure piles, a less risky and less expensive way. You are certain of obtaining relief by using Dr. Chase's Ointment, and if you persist in this treatment you can also be fully cured.

It is worth while to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, even if you have been told that an operation is necessary. Many have escaped the knife by using this ointment, others have been cured by its use after operations had failed.

Relief from the itching, stinging sensations which make the suffering from piles so hard to bear is obtained almost as soon as Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied.

THE PASSING OF OLD FAVOURITES

Some of the Old Standbys That Have Gone Into the Discard

Well, what has become of the moustache cup, for instance? Those china affairs made especially so gentlemen would not soil their lip adornments on the coffee. It seems only yesterday that Aunt Lizzie was sending them to all her best beaux for birthday presents. It was because I missed them the other day that I tried to find out how many other dear relics of the near past have disappeared.

What's become of the mud scrapers on the doorsteps and the mats with the large "Welcome" on them that used to greet us all wherever we entered the door? What's become of all the red and white barred stockings all the little girls used to wear? I can remember hundreds of little girls who used to run around with their legs looking like sticks of peppermint candy, but now I never see one. And the knitted mufflers around the neck. And oh yes—what's become of the big mitts we used to wear with strings attached around our necks? I recall now that I didn't see a linen duster last summer, and I didn't see one of those straw derby hats we used to wear. What's become of them? And where are boys' red-top boots, the boots with the little brass protectors, the boys' shoes with the big horseshoe nail at the bottom of the heel?

What's become of the lady barbers? And what's become of all the coloured barbers, the sealskin caps and the bluing balls mother used to use in washing?

What's become of the hand-painted neckties; the whatnots that used to adorn the parlour furniture, the old plush piano stool with the fringe on it, and the iron animals in the front garden?

Then there are the plush picture frames, the worsted mats for the lamp, made with a spool and four pins; strange glass cones that hung up in the parlour with coloured water inside. What's become of them? What, too, of the big glass marbles with the little silver lamp inside that was the last word in knick-knacks in every well-conducted American home? Also, the stuffed doves under the round glass case that used to stand just at the side of the door, and the everlasting flowers. And what's become of the knitted wristlets you used to see along Broadway or any main street, and what's become of the old hand-knitted stockings for men, the sealskin collars that never had a lining—and, last, the case on the mantelpiece with the wax figures?

Mother's canned preserves with the red sealing wax on top—are there any more anywhere? The old wooden wardrobe in the bedroom, and the six-day go-as-you-please races; the white homemade bread; the little candy hearts with mottoes and mushy sayings on them, and the sheaves of wheat and coloured pampas grass in the best room—where?

Don't you remember the butter dish in the shape of the hen sitting on eggs and the milk pitcher built in the shape of a cow? You never see them now. And how about those elegant tidies the girls used to move around so they would always not be back of our heads when we sat on the chairs and sofas

Did you ever see the alligator cuspidor? It was a weird looking apparatus, and maybe you're lucky to forget it. But they used to be almost everywhere that the gentle habit was practised.

Of course, the storage battery did away with the pull-door bell knobs, but what made the horsehair ring, the horsehair chain, the cigar store wooden Indian, the whale-boned corset and the mottoes of "God Bless Our Home" sewed with coloured worsted through perforated cardboard disappear?

And what's become of the spring-heeled shoes for young ladies?

And the napkin rings?

Does anybody give a baby a silver cup with its initials cut in it nowadays? All my friends who have been having babies lately don't seem to have them—the cups, that is. What's become of son and heir's silver knife and fork with his name on them? None of these about, either.

Bustless, "spit-curls," frizzes can be accounted for on the grounds of changing fashion, but what's become of the hair pongs, and what on earth has become of the natural hair? Where's the Bolivar sandwich, which was made of a piece of cocoanut candy between two brown cookies, with scalloped printed jokes? Has anybody here seen Kelly?

Have you noticed that the little German band is almost whatshas-become-of-it?—Brooklyn Eagle.

JOHNNIE CANUCK TALKS ON TEMPERANCE METHODS

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Some two years ago, when local option failed to carry, it was claimed that the defeat of the measure was greatly due to the fact that it did not receive the percentage of the Catholic vote that the advocates expected. This may, or may not be true; I know not; but I do know that if the advocates expect to make gains in that particular quarter, some of them will have to change their tune. It can be well understood why some hotel-keepers, owners of hotel property, their friends, and those depending upon their patronage, politically and otherwise, encouraged this agitation against the Roman Catholic people that is conducted in our city. No doubt it will be claimed by those who have profited by those unworthy tactics, that this is all bosh.

We know that real estate dealers, railways, and others concerned, when they wish to advertise a locality as desirable and progressive, they show up the prosperity of the people, and the local option advocates will tell us that nothing is so injurious and, at the same time, so much prevents the progress of a people as an extensive trade in intoxicating beverages in a locality.

If local option, that is claimed to be a stimulant to prosperity and progress, meets the same fate next January, as it did before, do not blame the Catholics, but give credit where it belongs, to the spirit of bigotry we have amongst us. After the vile attacks that have been made upon every one and everything that a Catholic holds most dear and sacred, how can any one expect one of them, with the backbone of a caterpillar to mingle and co-operate in this campaign with the parties that are encouraging this deplorable work.

It is also claimed that the local Roman Catholic temperance organizations are nothing more than political machines, and persons making those charges will tell you that they can prove it by statements made by members, and others. We all know that every religious denomination has amongst their number men of little principle, who will not hesitate, when the opportunity presents itself, whereby they can profit, politically, in business or otherwise, from adopting the most slanderous and cowardly means to gain their ends. If any one will take the trouble to investigate this charge they will soon find that those ex-members and others of that faith, alluded to, are men whose business interests require that they stand in with the hotel-keepers and their following, if they want to get a portion of the work and patronage that they have to give out occasionally in their lines; and some others are fond of free booze—political healers and party adherents, who could not dictate to the members how they should vote.

Let us judge these people by the scriptural quotation: "By their fruits you shall know them."

Local option advocates will tell us that temperance advocates, who do not want to abolish the treating habit and banish the bar, are not consistent and with this we must agree. Let us examine and see what the Total Abstinence Societies have accomplished along these lines. In twelve years they have done so much towards stopping their people from frequenting the bar-rooms, that many of their faith who were in the business when they started out, and many others, who tried to make it a go, have given it up for a bad job. We know that when this noble organization was first begun there were thirteen hotels and three liquor stores kept by the people of that faith. Count them up to-day and note the change and I fully believe that if what is left had to depend on their own about one is all that could make it a go. It may be said that frequently one of the members of the society can be pointed out under the influence of liquor on our streets. Tell this to one of the faithful and conscientious members and he will tell you that you cannot point him out too often to suit him, and he may remind you that a drunk of that kind attracts more attention and is more likely to be pointed out than a dozen of another kind, for many good reasons. I have no doubt that the hotel-keepers and their followers would contribute generously towards a larger circulation of the Orange Sentinel as so nobly advocated by one who has been a stumbling block to any good cause in the past, and who gives every promise of keeping up his reputation.

Johnnie Canuck.

WITH THE RANK AND FILE

The third weekly drill of the season for the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, passed off uneventfully last evening. There was a good turnout and keen interest was manifested in the drill.

A large number of new recruits have been added to the different companies this year, and it is expected that before the season is far advanced all companies will be up to full strength. The newcomers are well up to physical standard, and so far, have had only one or two drills, but owing to the keenness and attention shown, it was noticed last night, that good progress was being made.

A new supply of uniforms were served out to those who were on hand to receive them, last evening. At the conclusion of the parade the companies adjourned to their respective quarters, where the trying-on process was indulged in. The Regiment will present a spick and span appearance on the occasion of the first march-out of the season.

No. 6. Company, in charge of Captain McLean, had the largest squad on parade last evening. No. 7 Company (Captain Higgins) came a close second. No. 8 Company, in command of Captain McPherson, was the smallest on parade. The number in the Company did not exceed fifteen.

Nothing new in the way of orders was issued to the Regiment while on parade last evening.

As the marching out season will soon be here, it is not out of place to draw attention to the carefulness that should be given to the care of the feet.

To avoid bad feet when on the march, as every old soldier well knows, he must wear thick soled and comfortably fitted boots, these can be kept soft with Dubbin or castor oil.

The next thing to do is to avoid the wearing of cotton socks. White or grey worsted socks should be worn. These should fit the feet properly, as many sore feet are caused by the carelessness in wearing socks too long or too short for the feet. For those who need it, foot powder can be obtained at the druggist. Most old soldiers who suffer from poor feet, turn their socks inside out and thoroughly soap them.

The feet being covered in grease may not appeal to some people, but the fact remains that it saves many a man's feet going out of gear, and is largely resorted to. The Russian infantry grease their feet with tallow and use bandages, and no doubt this is where the soap cure sprang from.

While talking of boots it might be suggested to the Militia authorities that now they are anxious to bring along reforms, one reform that would be very welcome is the issuing of boots to our militia by the department.

In camps at present all varieties of boots are worn from the backwood's type to the lady-killing fit-me-like-a-glove shoe with buttons.

The Ladies of Peterborough May Now Grow Beautiful Hair

SALVIA destroys Dandruff in ten days.

The roots of the hair is so nourished and fed that a new crop of hair springs up, to the amazement and delight of the user. The hair is made soft and fluffy. Like all American preparations SALVIA is daintily perfumed. It is hard to find an actress who does not use SALVIA continuously. A large bottle for 50c.

Also sold at Payne's Drug Store.

RAILWAY NOTES

The recent coal famine in the United States, which has only just been got somewhat under control, has been the means of adducing strong evidence from an unexpected source as to the difficulties under which the railways of the country have been striving to keep abreast of its rapidly growing transportation needs, particularly with regard to freight. The President of an important manufacturing company in Michigan writes to the Grand Trunk Railway that the Mayors of the cities of that State should wake up to the fact that something must be done to relieve the railroad situation. That there has been a constant demand for increase in wages and decrease in rates both of passenger and freight—and this together with the increased cost of ties and other commodities, has put the railroads in a bad hole. The letter further states that, as traffic continues to grow, the railroads are so held down by legislation that they are not able to expand and keep up with the normal growth of business. Such a frank communication, coming from such a source offers no little encouragement to transportation officials, as it shows them that some of the shippers are finally beginning to realise the situation from a railroad point of view, and to see the necessity of changing promptly some of the adverse circumstances that certainly militate against efficient service.

Entertainment At Bensfort

Special to The Examiner.

A very successful entertainment and basket social under auspices of the Public school Lit. Society was held in Bensfort school on Thursday evening, April 4th. The President, Karl Huggins, occupied the chair in a most acceptable manner. A splendid programme consisting of choruses, songs and recitations was given by pupils of the school. Instrumentals were also given by the Buckham family, Mr. W. McAllister and Mr. Harold Wood.

A debate, "Resolved, that woman is of more use in the world than man," was ably handled by four of the pupils, Elva Emberson and Lottie Nicholson on the affirmative, while George Morrison and Gladdie Finnie upheld the negative cause. Both sides were well contested, but resulted in favour of the affirmative.

At the conclusion of the programme Mr. John Emberson was called upon to act as auctioneer and by his genial manner proved himself quite equal to the task. A large number of beautiful baskets were sold, each one testifying to the fact that the ladies of this community are adepts in both art and first class cooking.

The proceeds, amounting to $25, is to be devoted to the purchasing of a new library.

A pleasing feature of the evening took place during the programme, when Miss Kerr, the popular teacher of the school, was called to the front and was presented with a handsome music cabinet, from the pupils of the school.

The address, which was expressive of the high esteem in which Miss Kerr is held by the pupils and their friends, was read by Miss Elva Emberson.

Miss Kerr, who was taken completely by surprise, made a suitable reply, thanking the pupils for their expressions of good will and for the beautiful gift.

CLAIMS CREDIT FOR DISCOVERY OF MINT

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I read in your paper on Saturday last that Mr. Robt. Cotton stated that he found the body of the late Mr. H. Fairweather. Now, I wish to state that this is wrong, for my two sons were the first to see it on Friday morning about 300 yards above the spot where I found it. I was out in a canoe on Friday morning and had taken wood from almost the exact spot where I found the body not more than five minutes before I saw it. So that when Mr. Cotton states that he saw it on Thursday afternoon in that spot, he must surely have been mistaken. My two boys on Friday morning saw it floating down about two hundred yards above the spot where I found it.

On Friday morning I saw Mr. Cotton and was speaking to him before I saw the body. He asked me if I had seen anything of it and I told him no. He said he had been looking for it and had not seen it either. He walked down towards the power house and I started to cross the river, going up stream with a log of wood. When I got about half way across I saw the body lodged against some flood wood. I called to Mr. Cotton and told him I had found it. He came back and asked me to come and take him into the canoe and he would help me tow it to shore. He said he had been well acquainted with the man and offered to phone the coroner and have it seen to right away. These are the facts of the matter just as it occurred.

Yours respectfully,
A. B. DOWNER.

A Fine Specimen

The Examiner has to thank Mr Hal Choate, of Warsaw, for a beautiful and fully developed stalk of the orchid, surmounted by the delicate pink spheroid petals of the flower in full maturity of bloom alongside a swelling bud ready to unfold. Mr. Choate is an amateur florist of large enthusiasm, and last autumn planted in a tub of rich soil, covered by sphagnum, a large number of the bulbous roots of the cypripedium (the generic botanical name of the orchid). The tub was kept in the cellar of his house, till recently, when it was brought into the living rooms, and the plants, which have grown thriftily, are breaking into splendid bloom. It would be interesting to know the various stages of the process by which Mr. Choate has achieved the rare accomplishment of house-blooming orchids. It is something the local florists do not attempt, much less accomplish. They have to depend upon the Dale greenhouses at Brampton, where the orchid bloom is successfully produced, for their supply of orchid blooms.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Choate will release the secret and then we can enjoy in our own homes the pleasure of gathering orchids, without borrowing thigh boots of rubber and plodding laboriously through the intricate tangle of dismal swamp, where the modest orchid unfolds its deliciously delicate bloom that glows among its dreary surroundings, "like," as Shakespeare says, "a good deed in a naughty world."

A PROBLEM FOR THE GROCER

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I do not know whether it is with the intention of lessening the prevailing high cost of fuel and thus counterbalancing the heavy price of dairy produce that the farmers are selling us eggs already hard boiled. I purchased a dozen yesterday from a storekeeper who had obtained them from a certain farmer. Two of these eggs were discovered to be already cooked, however, and were useless. It would not be so bad were they sold to us "ready cooked" for then we should know what we were buying. As it is I would suggest that they give their "spares" to their hired man.

Yours, etc.,
A Victim.

WILL AMEND LIQUOR ACT

Two Gallons Limit to be Held by Persons in Local Option Districts
—Protect Travellers

MAY EJECT UNDESIRABLES

Toronto, April 11.—The storage of liquor in local option districts is to be prevented by Hon. W. J. Hanna's bill to amend the Liquor License Act, which received is second reading in the Legislature last night. The amendment provides that in a municipality in which no tavern or shop license is in force, no liquor shall be stored or kept by any brewer or other person whatsoever, for future delivery to any customer or other persons, even though the liquor was previously ordered. Liquor not actually delivered into the possession of the person for whom it was intended in any local option municipality, shall be deemed to be kept for sale by the person in whose possession the liquor is found. Any person in these districts allowing liquor to be stored on his premises shall also be guilty of an offence against the act.

Two gallons is the limit that is allowed for any one person to have in his possession in local option districts except with regard to chemists or others expressly authorized to keep liquor.

Forcible removal of any person who has come upon licensed premises, apparently for improper purposes and refuses to leave, is also permitted by one of the amended clauses. This applies even if the person is not of notoriously bad character. Hon. Mr. Hanna explained that hotelmen usually know who should be put off their premises in this regard, but haven't hitherto had the authority to ask such persons to get out.

The traveling public is also provided for by a clause giving provincial license inspectors the power to report to the Minister any hotel which falls below the standard of accommodation usually provided in licensed hotels.

Authority is given the Lieutenant-Governor-in-council to issue a proclamation forbidding the sale of liquor within the limits of any place where the construction of any public work is going on. The license in hotels in that district shall be suspended while the proclamation is in force. This clause refers to the building of any railway, canal, road, bridge, or any lumbering or mining operation carried on by the Government, or by a municipal corporation or even private enterprise. A penalty of from $100 to $500 is imposed for breach of this clause.

Another clause in the act is amended increasing the fine for keeping liquor for sale from $200 to $500.

Mr. Rowell wanted to know why the Government hadn't inserted a clause in the bill to do away with the treating system.

"There is a semblance of something in my hon's friend's remarks," said Sir James Whitney. "But what a strange thing it is. It almost passes understanding that not a whisper, or the shadow of even the baseless fabric of a dream, was even heard upon the question of treating until the majority of this House declared against it."

HOME RULE BILL TO-DAY

It is Expected to Parallel Gladstone's Proposed Act

CELEBRITIES ARRIVING

London, April 11.—The members of the British Cabinet yesterday put the finishing touches to the home rule bill, which Premier Asquith is to introduced in the House of Commons to-day. The members of the Government and the few Nationalist members who have been taken into their confidence have kept the secret of the details of the measure well, but with the exception of the clauses relating to the control of the excise and customs and the numbers of the Irish representatives to be retained at Westminster, the general outlines of the bill are pretty well known.

The measure is expected to follow closely that which was proposed by the late William E. Gladstone. Until quite recently the Nationalists have shown no opposition to the suggestion that the Irish excise and customs should remain under the control of the Imperial Parliament, but there has been lately a strong movement in Ireland in favor of securing control of this revenue by the Irish Parliament. One reason advanced for this is that Ireland desired to make a tariff agreement with the United States.

Among many forecasts, that which suggests that the Imperial Government should retain control of the customs and excise of Ireland for a certain number of years, after which it should pass to the Irish Parliament is generally accepted.

It is certain that Ireland will continue to be represented in the House of Commons at Westminster, but by a reduced number of members.

While the interest in Premier Asquith's speech does not compare in any way with that aroused by the late Mr. Gladstone's efforts, there will be a full attendance of members and the public galleries of the House of Commons will be filled to their utmost capacity. Thousands of applications have been received for seats, but outside of the distinguished strangers' and peers' galleries, there is room for only a very limited number of people.

A big contingent has come over from Ireland, including several bishops, who will be seated in the distinguished strangers' gallery if the Irish members are successful in the ballot for seats in which members take part.

With the exception of two members who are now in Australia, the Nationalists, who have arranged to meet before the opening of the House, so as to settle the order of their speakers in the debate, will be present in full force.

The Premier is a master of condensation, and in all probability will take less than two hours to state his case to the House. He does not need to fear the defections in the Liberal party from which Mr. Gladstone suffered. There are only two Liberal members who are known to be opponents of home rule. There are Thomas Charles Reginald Agar-Robartes and Sir Clifford John Cory, members from Cornish constituencies, where the Protestant element is strongest.

At the conclusion of the speeches of the Liberal and Unionist leaders to-day, the debate will be adjourned until Monday, and the division of the House will be taken on Tuesday. The second reading will take longer, and the committee stage of the bill is expected to occupy at least six weeks. The introduction of the closure will be a necessity, however, in order to conclude within that time, as the Unionists are determined to obstruct the measure in every way possible.

John Redmond, the leader of the Nationalists, last evening said that the demonstration in Ulster on Tuesday had not affected the bill in the least, and that the Nationalists were just as hopeful as ever of securing what they had fought for so long.

Truth After Expatriates.

London, April 11.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Truth says that for some time past there has been irritation in Canada, to which expression was given in the more independent newspapers, at the ready acceptance at political headquarters in London of Canadians who have domiciled themselves in England after doing little to make themselves believed in their native land. Several of these send, it is understood, have offered themselves at the headquarters of the Unionist party as Parliamentary candidates.

Maybe with the payment of members, some local candidates will offer themselves at the next general election, therefore, the organization will not be able to avail itself of offers from these "carpet-baggers."

Chicago Smites Women Suffrage.

Chicago, April 11.—With the decisive defeat of the "votes for women" proposal at the special supplementary primary, the women suffragists yesterday declared that defeat will spell ultimate victory for the agitation, for submission of the question to the voters will now be carried forward in every section of the state. Chicago gave an emphatic negative answer on the suffrage question. With two-thirds of the vote compiled the vote stood: For suffrage, 54,807; against suffrage, 109,636.

TO BIND EMPIRE.

West Indian Pact is First Step, Says Hon. Geo. E. Foster.

Toronto, April 11.—Hon. George E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, was the guest of honor last night at a banquet in the National Club, given by the Toronto Board of Trade and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, to the representatives of the West Indian Governments. In his address, Hon. Mr. Foster told of the advantages that will accrue from the extension of trade with the comparatively small British dependencies in the Atlantic.

"It is a perfect agreement that we arrived at; there is no dissatisfaction whatever between the two parties," said Mr. Foster. "In 1896, 22 years ago, I went down to the West Indies to get information regarding the possibilities of reciprocity. Shortly after we were turned out of office and this even intervened. But to-day the thing is done and we see all glad. I put my whole heart in the work."

Hon. Mr. Foster said that it was in the interests of the homeland to look after the needs of the West Indies, and he was certain that Canada would put forth an extraordinary effort to benefit the islands and this country. "Canada stands willing, to do a third and even more, if necessary, to bring about better communication by steamship and cable. The Governments should establish a direct water route."

R. S. Gourley, vice-president of the C. M. A., said that there was not a manufacturer in the country who did not welcome the extension of trade with the West Indies. The great fault of Canadian manufacturers today was the fact that they did not go out of their own country for business. In proposing the toast to the "Federal Government," he said he was proud of what had been achieved. The legislators were men of character, fidelity, purpose and large vision.

T. L. Roxburgh, C.M.G., St. Kitts, expressed gratification for the entertainments the representatives had received in Canada.

E. J. Cameron, C.M.G., administrator of the colony, St. Lucia, said that Canada apparently knew very little about the islands. Toronto, however, has shown some intelligence in regard to their geography. He considered that in the adoption of reciprocity a good deal had been done for both sides. "We have desired for a long time a closer trade connection with Canada," he said.

PEACE NOW IN PROSPECT

U. S. Hard Coal Miners and Operators to Talk Over Differences

SPECIAL BOARD CHOSEN

Philadelphia, April 11.—Prospects of peace with an early resumption of anthracite mining grew much brighter yesterday after the miners and operators decided to sit down together and talk over their differences. When the negotiations, broken off on March 18, were resumed in the Reading Terminal here yesterday afternoon, Geo. F. Baer, president of the Reading Co., proposed on behalf of the operators to arbitrate their differences; that is, to let the anthracite coal strike commission, which settled the strike of 1902, investigate present conditions and decide whether any notification of the commission's award is necessary at this time.

In the discussion, the miners practically threw this offer aside and the conference agreed finally to appoint sub-committees to take up the demands of the miners with power to make recommendations for adjustments. The sub-committees were immediately appointed and after a brief joint session they adjourned until this afternoon.

Alvin Markle of Hazelton, an independent operator will act as chairman of the joint conference, but will have no vote.

The miners representatives said yesterday they fully expect a ten per cent. increase in wages. Aside from the wage demand that of the recognition of the union appears to be the stumbling block in the way of an agreement.

Noblemen To Farm.

New York, April 11.—Lord Somers and Lord Hyde, both young men, came over in the Olympic to start their two hundred acre truck farm at Pickering, near Toronto.

Lady Hyde came with her husband, bringing her three children. They will spend their summers on the farm and their winters in England. Lord Hyde said his becoming a truck farmer is an experiment, and that if it proves successful he and Lord Somers may enlarge their holdings.

Lord Hyde is the only son and heir to the fifth Earl of Clarendon, and was born in 1877. In 1905 he married Adelina Verona Isabel Somers-Cocks, sister of the sixth Baron Somers. The latter who has come with them to Canada, was born in 1887 and succeeded his great-uncle, the fifth baron, in 1899. He is unmarried.

Lenses Must Be Changed

Lenses do not wear out, but eyes do. Every part of the body changes with advancing years, and our eyes in common with the rest of our physical being show the effects of age. We must therefore meet the changed conditions of the eyes. The glasses that you have been using, or even those you have worn, are not glasses for your eyes. Use proper spectacles. As the eyes and vision of your boy or girl grow, your lenses should be made stronger or weaker to correspond to your failing vision.

I will be pleased to have you call and let me explain the advantages of Toric or curved lenses over the old style flat form. I can also do examination and treatment, because I have every modern convenience for Optometric Eyesight Testing. I have the largest and most up-to-date Optical Stock in the city to choose from.

Toronto, April 11.—The storage of liquor in local option districts is to be prevented by Hon. W. J. One reason advanced for this is that Ireland desired to make a tariff agreement with the United States.

Among many forecasts, that which suggests that the Imperial Government should retain control of the customs and excise of Ireland for a certain number of years, after which it should pass to the Irish Parliament is generally accepted.

It is certain that Ireland will continue to be represented in the House of Commons at Westminster, but by a reduced number of members.

While the interest in Premier Asquith's speech does not compare in any way with that aroused by the late Mr. Gladstone's efforts, there will be a full attendance of members and the public galleries of the House of Commons will be filled to their utmost capacity. Thousands of applications have been received for seats, but outside of the distinguished strangers' and peers' galleries, there is room for only a very limited number of people.

A big contingent has come over from Ireland, including several bishops, who will be seated in the distinguished strangers' gallery if the Irish members are successful in the ballot for seats in which members take part.

With the exception of two members who are now in Australia, the Nationalists, who have arranged to meet before the opening of the House, so as to settle the order of their speakers in the debate, will be present in full force.

The Premier is a master of condensation, and in all probability will take less than two hours to state his case to the House. He does not need to fear the defections in the Liberal party from which Mr. Gladstone suffered. There are only two Liberal members who are known to be opponents of home rule. There are Thomas Charles Reginald Agar-Robartes and Sir Clifford John Cory, members from Cornish constituencies, where the Protestant element is strongest.

At the conclusion of the speeches of the Liberal and Unionist leaders to-day, the debate will be adjourned until Monday, and the division of the House will be taken on Tuesday. The second reading will take longer, and the committee stage of the bill is expected to occupy at least six weeks. The introduction of the closure will be a necessity, however, in order to conclude within that time, as the Unionists are determined to obstruct the measure in every way possible.

John Redmond, the leader of the Nationalists, last evening said that the demonstration in Ulster on Tuesday had not affected the bill in the least, and that the Nationalists were just as hopeful as ever of securing what they had fought for so long.

Truth After Expatriates.

London, April 11.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Truth says that for some time past there has been irritation in Canada, to which expression was given in the more independent newspapers, at the ready acceptance at political headquarters in London of Canadians who have domiciled themselves in England after doing little to make themselves beloved in their native land. Several of these used, it is understood, have offered themselves at the headquarters of the Unionist party as Parliamentary candidates.

Maybe with the payment of members, more local candidates will offer themselves at the next general election, therefore, the organization will not be able to avail itself of offers from these "carpet-baggers."

Chicago Smites Women Suffrage.

Chicago, April 11.—With the decisive defeat of the "votes for women" proposal at the special supplementary primary, the women suffragists yesterday declared that defeat will spell ultimate victory for the agitation, for submission of the question to the voters will now be carried forward in every section of the state. Chicago gave an emphatic negative answer on the suffrage question. With two-thirds of the vote compiled the vote stood: For suffrage, 54,067; against suffrage, 108,[illegible]

TO BIND EMPIRE.

West Indian Pact is First Step, Says Hon. Geo. E. Foster.

Toronto, April 11.—Hon. George E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, was the guest of honor last night at a banquet in the National Club, given by the Toronto Board of Trade and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, to the representatives of the West Indian Governments. In his address, Hon. Mr. Foster told of the advantages that will accrue from the extension of trade with the comparatively small British dependencies in the Atlantic.

"It is a perfect agreement that we arrived at; there is no dissatisfaction whatever between the two parties," said Mr. Foster. "In 1890, 22 years ago, I went down to the West Indies to get information regarding the possibilities of reciprocity. Shortly after we were turned out of office and this even intervened. But to-day the thing is done and we are all glad. I put my whole heart in the work."

Hon. Mr. Foster said that it was in the interests of the homeland to look after the needs of the West Indies, and he was certain that Canada would put forth an extraordinary effort to benefit the islands and this country. "Canada stands willing, to do a third and even more, if necessary, to bring about better communication by steamship and cable. The Governments should establish a direct water route."

R. S. Gourley, vice-president of the C. M. A., said that there was not a manufacturer in the country who did not welcome the extension of trade with the West Indies. The great fault of Canadian manufacturers today was the fact that they did not go out of their own country for business. In proposing the toast to the "Federal Government," he said he was proud of what had been achieved. The legislators were men of character, fidelity, purpose and large vision.

T. L. Rexburgh, C.M.G., St. Kitts, expressed gratification for the entertainments the representatives had received in Canada.

E. J. Cameron, C.M.G., administrator of the colony, St. Lucia, said that Canada apparently knew very little about the islands. Toronto, however, has shown some intelligence in regard to their geography. He considered that in the adoption of reciprocity a good deal had been done for both sides. "We have desired for a long time a closer trade connection with Canada," he said.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Union carpenters will strike in Guelph on May 1 for 25 cents an hour. Contractors refuse this to all, but will pay it to first-class men.

Thousands of persons have been killed and whole Indian village swept away by the eruption of Chiriqui Peak, near Bocas del Toro, in Honduras.

The Government of New Zealand has decided to send a detachment of twenty senior cadets to compete at the Canadian Exhibition in Toronto. Australia will also be represented.

Walter Thorogood struck Joseph Solina in the pool-room at 319 Yonge street, Toronto, on Friday night in self-defence, according to the jury which investigated the case yesterday.

Mrs. D. L. Cruickshank, of St. Catharines, while arranging her hair in her room shortly after supper last evening, dropped dead, from heart failure. Her husband, daughter and two sons survive.

A new record for steamship service between Canada and the old country has been established by the steamship Royal Edward. It has made the return trip between Bristol and Halifax in exactly 17 days.

A motor-bus, crowded with tourists, collided with another vehicle on a high cliff near Oporto yesterday, and plunged 120 feet to the bottom of an abyss. Nine persons were killed and seven others seriously injured.

Sneak thieves entered St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, yesterday, smashed open the poor box and took the contents. At Sand's pool-room thieves smashed open the slot on the gas meter and made off with the contents.

Mine Explosion In B.C.

Nanaimo, B.C., April 11.—A mine explosion at Departure Bay, Vancouver Island, yesterday morning, is reported to have killed the superintendent and created havoc in the workings.

PEACE NOW IN PROSPECT

U. S. Hard Coal Miners and Operators to Talk Over Differences

SPECIAL BOARD CHOSEN

Philadelphia, April 11.—Prospects of peace with an early resumption of anthracite mining grew much brighter yesterday after the miners and operators decided to sit down together and talk over their differences. When the negotiations, broken off on March 15, were resumed in the Reading Terminal here yesterday afternoon, Geo. F. Baer, president of the Reading Co., proposed on behalf of the operators to arbitrate their differences; that is, to let the anthracite coal strike commission, which settled the strike of 1902, investigate present conditions and decide whether any notification of the commission's award is necessary at this time.

In the discussion, the miners practically threw this offer aside and the conference agreed finally to appoint sub-committees to take up the demands of the miners with power to make recommendations for adjustments. The sub-committees were immediately appointed and after a brief joint session they adjourned until this afternoon.

Alvin Merkle of Hazelton, an independent operator will act as chairman of the joint conference, but will have no vote.

The miners representatives said yesterday they fully expect a ten per cent. increase in wages. Aside from the wage demand that of the recognition of the union appears to be the stumbling block in the way of an agreement.

Noblemen To Farm.

New York, April 11.—Lord Somers and Lord Hyde, both young men, came over in the Olympic to start their two hundred acre truck farm at Pickering, nbar Toronto.

Lady Hyde came with her husband, bringing her three children. They will spend their summers on the farm and their winters in England. Lord Hyde said his becoming a truck farmer is an experiment, and that if it proves successful he and Lord Somers may enlarge their holdings.

Lord Hyde is the only son and heir to the fifth Earl of Clarendon, and was born in 1877. In 1905 he married Adelina Verona Ishbel Somers-Coetts, sister of the sixth Baron Somers. The latter who has come with them to Candas, was born in 1907 and succeeded his great-uncle, the fifth baron, in 1899. He is unmarried.

The Daddy of Good Shows

I have made a business of attracting the public to shows for 10 years and have never made a failure in all my life. I apply business methods to an amusement enterprise and the result is the same as if applied to any other legitimate business. You may have a good show shop or travelling attraction and yet fail to get the business you deserve, all on account of slip-shod methods of getting your show properly before the public. This is right where I shine.

I have secured a program for

Rushing G.T.P. In West.

Winnipeg, April 11.—The great "Pioneer" track-laying machines of the Grand Trunk Pacific start work to-day, one on the Regina Boundary section, and the other on the Calgary-to-Field section. Double shifts will probably be worked on the first named, a stretch of 16 miles, with four hundred men to a shift and a capacity of five miles single and eight miles double shift per day. A little grading remains to be done on the Calgary section of ninety miles, but track-laying will go on simultaneously.

Three Months For Assault.

Chatham, April 11.—Thomas Griffith yesterday morning pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and wounding before Mr. Justice Falconbridge at high court and was sentenced to three months in jail. Originally Griffith was charged with manslaughter but the charge was reduced.

The assault took place last July on Griffith's brother-in-law, Orlando Arnold. Arnold died the following September but it was not proven that he died as a direct result of the injuries received in the assault.

Jumped to His Death.

Cincinnati, O., April 11.—The body of Isaac Sturm, a well-known insurance man of this city, was found a mishapen mass on the roof of the one-storey annex adjoining the First National Bank building yesterday. In an office on the thirteenth floor a note was found from Sturm, saying simply that he intended to jump out of a window on that floor.

Lenses Must Be Changed

Lenses do not wear out, but eyes do. Every part of the body changes with advancing years, and our eyes in common with the rest of our physical being show the effects of age. We must therefore meet the changed conditions of the eyes. The glasses that you bought last, or even three years ago, are not giving your eyes the proper assistance. As the eyes are wearing out year by year, your lenses should be made stronger or weaker to correspond to your failing vision.

I will be pleased to have you call and let me explain the advantages of Toric or curved lenses over the old style flat form. I can add do genuine satisfaction, because I have every modern convenience for exact Optometric Testing. I have the largest and most up-to-date Optical Stock in the city to choose from.

SHE SUFFERED TEN MONTHS

Mrs. Blankenship Tells of Her Restoration to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Hilston, Va.—"I feel it my duty to express my thanks for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a sufferer from female troubles, and had been confined in bed over one third of my time for ten months. I could not do my housework and had fainting spells so that my husband could not leave me alone for five minutes at a time.

"Now I have been restored to health and it has come from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Whenever I see a suffering woman I want to tell her what this medicine has done for me and I will always speak a good word for it."—Mrs. ROBERT BLANKENSHIP, Hilston, Va., Montgomery Co.

Was Helpless—Now Well.

Trenton, Mo.—"About two years ago I had female trouble and inflammation so bad that I was literally helpless and had to be tended like a baby. I could not move my body or lift my foot for such severe pains that I had to scream. I was very nervous and had a weakness.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me to such an extent that I think there is no medicine like it for female troubles. I am up and able to do my work again and I give you full permission to publish my letter for the sake of other suffering women."—Mrs. W. T. PURNELL, 820-10th St., Trenton, Mo.

NASAL CATARRH

Medicated Air Will Cure

These are common diseases, but no less dangerous and difficult to cure on that account. In our climate the weather changes quickly. We are careless. Disease attacks us before we know it. A large majority of our people have nose, lung, or throat troubles, and find it hard to get cured.

It's remarkable with what tenacity both the medical profession and the laity adhere to the old theory that these diseases can be reached and combated by dosing. And this despite the fact that failure to cure in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred attends this mode of treatment.

STOMACH MEDICINE CAN'T CURE

At best it is a roundabout way of trying to reach the disease which is in the air passages of the throat, nose, bronchial tubes and lungs. Leave the stomach alone—use a remedy that all will carry into the minutest air cells into the tiniest cavities of the affected organs.

LIQUID REMEDIES DANGEROUS

Doctors say only "Catarrhozone" can cure—you inhale it along with the air you breath—it goes where the living disease germs are gnawing into your system—it kills these germs—heals, soothes. It CURES.

CATARRHOZONE GUARANTEED.

Wouldn't it be wise to use Catarrhozone now—to-day—and be cured permanently?

You can send the soothing vapor of the pine woods, the richest balsam and healing essences, right to the cause of your trouble by inhaling Catarrhozone.

Little drops of wonderful curative power are distributed through the whole breathing apparatus in two seconds.

Like a miracle, that's how Catarrhozone works in bronchitis, catarrh, colds, and irritable throat. You simply breath its oily, fragrant vapor and every trace of congestion and disease flees as before fire.

So safe, infants can use it; so sure to cure, doctors prescribe it, so beneficial in preventing winter ills no person can afford to do without Catarrhozone Used in thousands of cases without failure. Try it yourself 25c. 50c. $1.00 sizes. Sold by all dealers or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

Colds Most Fatal At This Season

This is the time of year when colds seem to turn into pneumonia or quick consumption and to prove more generally fatal than at any other season.

With many people one cold follows another during the winter months until finally the human body becomes so run down that it can no longer resist the attack of the germs which cause lung trouble.

The best rule is to never allow a cold to get farther than the throat, and this you can do by the prompt use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Do not wait for chest colds and bronchitis to develop. Keep this well-known medicine at hand for use in case of emergency.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine loosens a cough, aids expectoration, and soothes and heals the irritated and inflamed membranes.

When Berry Time Comes

Did you ever try fresh berries and Tillson's Rolled Oats for breakfast?

The combination is delicious.

Strawberries, raspberries, huckleberries, each in their season, and Tillson's, enable you to prepare a breakfast dish that can't be resisted.

No trouble at all to prepare. Just pour the fruit over the plate of freshly made porridge. Sprinkle with cream and sugar, and then!

"My Business is Unique"

WE are told by the old-time circus men and dime-museum operators that good freaks used to command large salaries. Barnum's "dog-faced boy" is said to have drawn $200.00 a week—you see he was the only dog-faced boy in the world—he was unique.

Most of us—even if we could be freaks—would prefer to make our livelihood some other way. And, anyway, the "freak" stunt is about played out—even in the circus business.

It is surprising to find an otherwise hard-headed business man who takes a strange, abnormal joy in posing as a freak. He doesn't call it that, of course. He doesn't even know he is posing. Ponderously in earnest, he would not dream of describing his business as "freakish"—but delights in saying it is "unique"—which really amounts to the same thing.

Some manufacturers "play freak" only when talking to an advertising man. They keep that word "unique" tucked back under the tongue all ready for use whenever anyone suggests that they should advertise. "Oh, my business is unique—it cannot be advertised successfully."

Haven't you often heard it? Have you ever said it yourself?

Let us not try to qualify for the dime museum. Let us get down to selling goods. And selling goods—no matter what the goods are—is easier if the goods are advertised.

You say your proposition is "different"?

Very well, advertise it in a "different" way.

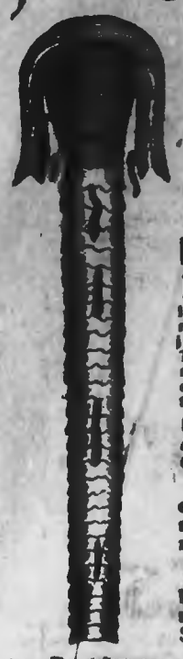
An Actual Experience That Completely Routs The "Unique" Theory

They market a product which their sales manager was wont to refer to as "the hardest thing in the world to advertise." But a persistent advertising man kept hammering at the door of skepticism, and he finally agreed to "test out" an advertising campaign. A twelve months' trial was agreed upon. To-day, at the end of 18 months, this firm is advertising on a much larger scale. Direct orders for the "hard-to-advertise" line are coming in steadily, and the advertising is looked upon by that sales manager as an all-important factor in his business-building.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any good advertising agency, or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Building. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write, if interested.

HUMAN HAIR ROOT

Showing Dandruff Germs At Work



WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY

Kills the Dandruff Germ and Makes the Hair Grow

Restores Gray Hair to Natural Color

FEW people are aware of the number of Dandruff Germs that infest the human hair and scalp. The germs which locate themselves in the follicle or sack which envelopes the root of the hair, spend a lazy existence in sucking up the juices which should go to keep life and strength in the hair. These germs cannot be seen by the naked eye, but with a magnifying glass of from 300 to 400 diameters the sporez of this hair destroyer may be seen in masses, clinging to the hair.

DANDRUFF, ITCHING OF THE SCALP AND FALLING HAIR ARE A SURE SIGN OF DESTRUCTIVE GERMS.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy not only kills the dandruff germs and prevents baldness, but it also restores faded and gray hair to natural color.

Don't Experiment With Old Fashioned Hair Dyes

but save your hair and restore it to natural color and luxuriance by using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy.

Druggists are authorized to sell Sage and Sulphur under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

When The Food Ferments

Chronic dyspepsia is essentially a disease of the intestines rather than of the stomach. The trouble is caused by the food passing too slowly along the alimentary canal and fermenting instead of being digested.

It will be found that the liver is sluggish and the bowels constipated. The fermenting food gives rise to gas, which crowds the lungs and heart, gives rise to belching wind and to smothering sensations. The stomach gets sour, the food repeats and leaves sour taste in the mouth; you feel out of sorts and are unfit for work or pleasure.

By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you can get rid of this congested condition of the digestive organs in quick time. The liver is awakened at once, the bowels are regulated and the system is thoroughly rid of the poisonous waste matter which has been causing so much trouble.

FATE'S AWKWARD WAY

(Short Story.)

"I beg your pardon," stuttered young Gintle.

The fact that there was not the slightest reason for his begging anybody's pardon had nothing whatever to do with it. After he had spoken he was quite as much aghast as was the young woman.

She stood now in the drug store door an instant, surveying him with wide eyes. Her pose suggested that she was ready to be just as indignant as the situation warranted, whatever the situation might prove to be. Evidently there was nothing in young Gintle's face nor in his gaze to offend her. Somewhat doubtfully she stepped by him and down the street.

Young Gintle, dashing madly into the drug store, bought a bottle of camphorated oil and an expensive hair brush because those were the first objects on which he laid his eyes. He already owned three hair brushes and he never needed camphorated oil on his throat.

He headed for the drug store on the next corner to get the cigars which he had wanted in the first place. As he stepped inside the door there was the girl just coming out. A flush shot across her cheek and her eyes were lowered as she hastily escaped.

"I—I want—give me a package of that gum!" young Gintle roared at the surprised clerk, because he could not remember what he really had wanted.

It was the third time that evening that young Gintle had stepped into a store and confronted the girl coming out. It was enough to perturb any man—delightfully, of course, for she was entirely charming in young Gintle's eyes.

He had fallen a victim when he first saw her on the car a few days before. He had seen her on the street twice since that time and once she had caught him staring at her. Then this evening—

"Tarnation!" young Gintle exclaimed wrathfully. "She'll think I did it on purpose! She'll think I tagged after her! And she's so dog-gone pretty!"

Communing sadly thus with himself, young Gintle pursued his way down the street. He stepped into the little tailor shop to order some clothes pressed and he opened the door so sharply that it nearly struck some one in the face.

It was the girl! As usual, she was just coming out.

The horror on young Gintle's countenance was balanced by the wrath on hers. He observed for the first time that large blue eyes can change to the colour of steel and glitter like polished metal. This time he was too paralyzed to beg her pardon. His lips moved, but no sound came. The girl swept by him with her head in the air.

"Did you want something?" asked the tailor, deferentially.

Young Gintle stared at him hostilely, passed a hand across his brow and then shook his head. "I—I did," he admitted at last. "But I don't recall what it was. It doesn't matter, anyway."

He felt decidedly abused. It was hard lines when one had the best intentions in the world—no intentions whatever, in fact—to be set down in a girl's mind as a cad. And she certainly was pretty! He had half hoped, when he saw her the second time, that he might meet her eventually, inasmuch as she seemed to live in that neighbourhood. But now!

Young Gintle walked into the hallway of the apartment building where he lived, feeling entirely subdued. Before him stood the girl, fishing in her ridiculous bag for a key. For an awful instant he thought she was going to throw the bag at him or else scream for the police.

Haughtily he marched by her, ostentatiously pulling out his own ring of jingling keys as he passed.

"I'm glad you came back early," said young Gintle's mother, "for I want you to run into the Kulpits' with me this evening. You've just got to, because they've called here so frequently."

"All right," young Gintle growled. He felt that he might as well be miserable at the Kulpits' as on his own premises.

"We'll just step across by the back porch," said his mother. "I know Mrs. Kulpit so well that it won't matter and it'll save our going down and up three flights of stairs. They've got a young niece visiting them that—my goodness!"

The Kulpits' back door had opened just as they reached it and in the bright rectangle, milk bottle in her hands, stood the girl.

Even young Gintle's mother sensed tragedy as the two stared at each other. But young Gintle showed the stuff of which heroes are made. He did not flee under the young woman's baleful gaze. Instead he took her gently by the arm and turned her back into the Kulpits' flat, himself following.

"Now," he said, firmly, "I'm going to get introduced to you or die in the attempt! If I manage to survive I am going to do my best to explain."—Chicago News.

WHAT HE WANTED.

He obtained board at the local hotel until a remittance arrived to take him back to dear Broadway. As he had no funds for tipping purposes he got scant attention from the servants.

One day he pushed and pushed the push-button in his room without getting an answer. Then he got out of bed, put on his trousers and overcoat, turned the coat collar up about his bare throat, and ventured through the hallway until he came to the rotunda opening down upon the office floor.

"Watcher want?" answered back the menial impertinently.

"Bellboy," said the Thespian with much dignity, "I desire that my laundry shall be brought to me forthwith!"

"G'wan!" said the boy. "You didn't have but half a shirt when you hit this town."

"That," said the actor, "is the laundry to which I refer."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

PNEUMONIA.

Doctors Said He Would Not Live.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP Cured Him.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that when a person catches cold it must be attended to immediately, or serious results are liable to follow.

There is only one way to prevent pneumonia, and that is, to cure the cold just as soon as it appears.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this quickly and effectively.

Mr. Hugh McLeod, Esterhazy, Sask., writes:—"My little boy took a very severe cold, and it developed into pneumonia. The doctor said he would not live. I got some of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and he began to improve. Now, he is a strong healthy child, and shows no sign of it coming back."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees is trade mark; price 25 cents.

FAMOUS TRAGEDIES that BALKED SOLUTION

The Brutal Murder of Little Susie Martin, a Crime That Was Never Solved—Who Was the Pretty and Fine Looking Woman Found Dead Under a Tree at Hempstead, Long Island?

LITTLE Johnnie and Carter Smithers were hiding from Ned Wilson, who was playing "it" in a game of "hide-and-seek" on the Smithers farm at Hempstead, Long Island.

Ned buried his face in his hands against the side of the barn so that he could not peek at where the other boys ran to. There was a big oak tree a hundred yards from the barn, and as the boys were playing with "water bounds" this tree was a legitimate place to hide. Down the knoll in back of the stables they scampered, through a little pigeon grove, and round the trunk of the great tree to pull themselves up by the lowest limb.

So intent were they in the game that they did not notice a big picture hat lying on the ground near their "bunk," but as they rounded the oak they came abruptly on the figure of a woman leaning comfortably back against the tree. She was just in a position to prevent them swinging up to the branch, and they were about to run in search of some other hiding place when something in the appearance of the woman impelled them to steal closer and look at her.

"She's asleep," whispered Johnnie.

"She looks awful scarey like," said Carter in an awed tone. The two boys huddled close together and crept toward the strange woman. There was something about her which they could not explain afterward, but which frightened them. In her lap lay a leather chatelaine bag with silver mountings. The feather of her picture hat on the ground danced merrily in the breeze. She was very pale, and her prettily shaped head, with an abundance of auburn tinted hair, was bent far forward.

Ned Wilson, meanwhile, had counted five hundred by fives and was looking for the other boys. Suddenly he heard a startled, terrible scream, and John and Carter burst upon him, running pell mell for the house.

"She's dead! She's dead!" they were screeching.

The Terrible Discovery.

Ned did not know who was dead, but he, too, ran for the house, where Mrs. Smithers pacified the boys and called a hired man, who returned to the old oak tree with her. The woman, dressed all in black, was dead. The Coroner was sent for, and he and the Sheriff examined the body.

Close by her side was a bottle which the boys had not noticed. It was tightly corked, and in the bottom were a few drops of carbolic acid. In the chatelaine bag they found a rosary, three printed leaflets bearing the words of conventional Catholic prayers, and a short unsigned note, which read:—

"Dear Mother and Father—Please forgive me for taking my life. Its only value is the affection you bear for it, so if you will forgive me I am sure it will be all right. I pray that God may forgive me too, and I think He will. You know the terrible reasons for this act."

It seemed to be a clear case of suicide. The only question which the Coroner thought he would have to solve was the identity of the young woman. But in moving the body, its beautiful reddish hair, which was low over the brow, fell backward and revealed, straight across the forehead above the left eye, a deep clean cut. This led to a closer examination, and Dr. Archer B. Wallace, the Coroner, found a wicked looking welt across the right ear.

Even so, the theory of suicide was not entirely disproved. If murder had been committed there were no signs of the usual struggle. The grass about the tree was untrampled, and the minutest examination failed to disclose footprints other than those of the girl. The fact that there were no stains on the girl's face or on her clothing seemed to indicate that the wound on the forehead had been received either after death or when circulation was so nearly at a standstill that life was practically extinct. The cursory examination of the wounds which was possible on the spot did not even indicate that they might not have been received some time before death and healed to some extent before the suicide.

The Coroner was still of the opinion that the young woman, who was evidently a person of means and position, had taken her own life. Her clothing, every article of which was of expensive material and such quality as would be worn only by a woman of refinement and excellent taste, was carefully searched. Every mark of the maker or of a laundry had been carefully cut out. The shoes, which were of extremely fine quality, were almost new, but the name of the manufacturer had been scraped from the arch of the sole with some keen edged instrument or a piece of glass. The whole affair was baffling, but the police were confident that as soon as the girl was missed by her family and friends and the matter was given publicity her identity would be learned.

At the post-mortem examination the case was given a new twist. The Coroner was surprised to learn that the wound in the temple was sufficient to cause death. Some person must have treated it after it had been inflicted, for the girl herself would have been unable to do so. With this wound it would have been impossible for her to go alone to the tree in the fields, some distance from a highway, swallow the carbolic acid and replace the cork in the bottle. The amount of acid which she was shown to have taken would have meant almost instant death alone. Here were two causes of death, either one of which would have worked almost instantaneously, and it did not seem possible that either one of them could have been self-inflicted after the other had been received. Those investigating the case were confronted by the questions:—Which had been first, the acid or the bullet? Was it suicide or murder? Who was the stylishly dressed, handsome woman?

It was not until the day following the finding of the body that a fountain pen was found in a clump of weeds near the oak tree. The pen was an expensive one and was marked with the initials "O. M.," engraved on a gold band which circled the cap. It was the only clew which could serve to identify the woman or any other person connected with the crime. The police of the country were questioned as to the disappearance of any woman whose initials were O. M., but with no result.

Suspicions Aroused.

When all was at a standstill came a sensational development in the case. Coroner Wallace received a letter posted from Hoboken. It was not signed, but the writer averred that he was a friend of the dead girl. He was acquainted with the reasons for her death, he wrote, and he was acting in the interests of the girl's family, who were satisfied, for certain reasons, to have her drop out of sight without any publicity. The writer of the anonymous letter begged the authorities not to push the inquiries as to who the suicide was, and assured the Coroner that such a proceeding would be useless, as the family was ready to spend any amount of money to keep their secret.

Nevertheless the Coroner and others interested redoubled their efforts to explain the crime. The fountain pen was the only tangible clew they had, for all attempts to trace the origin of the letter failed. From the manufacturers of the pen, whose firm name was learned from the instrument itself, the investigators obtained a list of the agents in New York and Brooklyn who sold that particular make of pen. It was almost an endless task to canvas all these stores in search of one which had sold the pen in question, marking it O. M. It was quite possible that the store which sold the pen had not engraved it, which would add to the difficulty of developing the clew.

While this investigation was in progress Dr. Denton, a friend of the Coroner, received another letter bearing on the case. It seemed to be in a different handwriting from the first letter. Enclosed was a crisp one hundred dollar bill to cover the funeral expenses for the dead girl. The writer requested that she be decently buried under the name of Martha Laimbeer.

There seemed to be no use in longer holding the body, so the girl was buried as Martha Laimbeer. Death had occurred April 14, 1904. It was four months later that Dr. Wallace learned that a few days before the discovery of the tragedy in Hempstead Margaret Lynch, a Brooklyn girl, had disappeared. The initials were the same as for Martha Laimbeer, and the authorities wrote to the Lynch family explaining the circumstances of the finding of the girl's body and describing her.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynch went to Hempstead. They at first scouted the idea that the dead woman could be their daughter, but finally consented to view the body for identification. It was exhumed, and after exhibiting considerable doubt Mr. and Mrs. Lynch said that it was Margaret. They acted rather strangely, but not more so than would be expected under the shocking circumstances. They could not explain the girl's death, but seemed to take for granted that it was suicide.

Now, during this time it had been learned from a department store in Brooklyn that the fountain pen had been purchased by a daughter of Oswald Maune, head of a Brooklyn printing firm, and that it had been delivered at the Maune residence in his name at Christmas, 1903. This information was furnished to Coroner Wallace, and he bluntly asked Mrs. Lynch:—

"Who is Oswald Maune?"

Mrs. Lynch broke down, and afterward told a strange story of her daughter's relations with the Maune family. At the second coroner's inquest, which was held after the identification of the body, she and her daughter testified that Margaret Lynch had been engaged to marry Oswald Maune, Jr. Two days before the marriage was to have taken place her fiancé went suddenly and violently insane. Margaret's nerves were shattered under the shock, and it was feared that she would not recover.

The Maune family were extremely fond of her, and with them she went to the Woodcleff Inn, at Freeport, Long Island, to spend the summer. She seemed to be happiest when she was with some member of the Maune family, who were dear to her fiancé. Oswald Maune, the father, was particularly kind to her, and she spent much of her time in his company alone. His attitude toward her always seemed to be that of a father to a daughter, and he was not more affectionate and kind to his own girl than he was to Margaret Lynch.

For a time Margaret recuperated and seemed to be gaining strength. Then she became moody, melancholy, and appeared to be continually brooding over something. Her eyes took on a hunted look, and she would glance furtively about at the slightest sound. Something seemed to be preying on her mind. She returned home that autumn with her hair streaked with gray and the manner of a hunted animal. What was haunting her? That question has not been answered, but if the testimony at the coroner's inquest was true the police allege that Oswald Maune had a motive to be rid of Margaret Lynch.

According to her mother, she wrote to her a few days before her disappearance, telling of the sin she had been betrayed into committing and saying that she would go to an institution. At a hospital she was received as Margaret Lawrence, but after a few days she left the institution, saying that she was going to friends.

The hand of guilt pointed directly at one man, and the police net began to close about him. Although to the casual observer they did not appear similar, handwriting experts testified that the writing of the note found in the chatelaine bag and the two letters received by Dr. Wallace and Dr. Denton was the same. Specimens of the handwriting of the suspected man were obtained and an attempt was made to show that the same hand had written the three notes. Experts disagreed on this point.

In the midst of the proceedings Coroner Wallace caused a sensation by swearing that Margaret Lynch had been seen alive after the body of the woman had been found under the oak tree. Mrs. Lynch stuck to the statement that the dead girl was her daughter, but the time which elapsed between the death and the identification made a mistake quite possible. It is not uncommon for the nearest relatives to make such mistakes under circumstances so trying, and it could not be positively proved that Margaret Lynch was the girl whose body had been found in Hempstead.

The fountain pen was a bit of evidence which tended to show that it was Margaret Lynch, but, even so, the investigators were at a loss to determine whether Oswald Maune had been on the spot and dropped the pen himself or whether he had at one time given it to Miss Lynch. It was even possible that the girl was not Margaret Lynch, and that the pen with the initials "O. M." was only a strange coincidence, a freak of circumstances.

It was supposed that murder had been committed and that the body had been carried to the oak tree and left there with artificial evidences of suicide.

There are many questions still unanswered regarding the mysterious tragedy in Hempstead. Who was the pretty, extremely refined looking girl found dead under the oak tree? Whose was the fountain pen found at her side? If it was Oswald Maune's, how did it come there? Who wrote the notes from Hoboken? Is Margaret Lynch still alive?

"She's Asleep," Whispered Johnnie.

SUSIE MARTIN CASE.

ON March 9, 1894, there were posted in the police stations of New York city bulletins which read:—

"Look for Susie Martin, eleven years old, medium build, slim; dark complexion, hair and eyes; blue striped calico dress, brown cloth coat with yellow stripes and trimmed with fur; blue cloth skirt; blue cloth girl's cap; black stockings; buttoned shoes."

Susie was well known to most of the policemen in the precinct in which she lived and was a great favorite with them, so that her disappearance caused an extraordinarily thorough search. Each night as the men gathered at the police station when they were relieved they would ask one another:—

"Have you seen Susie?"

The answer was always "No."

About two weeks after the mysterious vanishing of the little Martin girl two old women discovered a heap of rags and some bones in a cellar in the basement of No. 517 West Thirty-ninth street while they were hunting for kindling wood. Under the rags and bones they found what seemed to be a portion of a human torso. Frightened, they sent for a policeman, who carried the ghastly find to the West Forty-seventh street station. Fear that Susie Martin had at last been found proved true when a distracted mother identified the rags and two or three trinkets as belonging to the lost girl. It seemed that on the evening of her disappearance Susie, who cared for her younger brother and sister while her mother was away during the daytime, had asked if she might remain in the street an extra half hour to play with the children.

Her mother had given her consent, but at the end of the half hour, Susie could not be found. A thorough search of the cellar resulted in the finding of the greater part of the girl's body with the exception of the skull and the lower part of the limbs. Careful examination of the body by medical experts failed to reveal any sign of motive for the crime. It was positively shown that whoever had killed Susie Martin had not been actuated by the motive common in the murder of children.

The terribly mutilated condition of the body seemed to be merely an attempt to better hide it. It had even been boiled, and there were marks on the bones which had evidently been made by a saw. Scientific measurements of these marks were taken to determine the width of the blade of the saw and the distance between the teeth. This was the only clew which the investigators had to work on. The only circumstance of the murder itself which was furnished to them was that it had not taken place in the cellar where the body was found. Analysis of the stains on the floor, wall and pieces of wood in the cellar established this fact. The lack of motive for the crime was baffling.

The lengths to which the murderer had gone to conceal his act seemed to indicate that he was overwhelmingly terrified at what he had done, and it was generally conceded that perhaps he had intended to kidnap the girl. She had probably struggled and had received injuries resulting in death. But then the question rose as to why any person should wish to kidnap Susie Martin. Her mother was not poverty stricken, neither did she have any considerable sum of money, though it was rumored about the neighborhood that the Martins were hoarding what money they made in order to educate Susie and some day to send her to college.

Along these lines it was neighborhood gossip that Susie had wealthy relatives, and that some day she would come into a comfortable fortune. It was because of this, people said, that her mother wanted Susie to be well educated. These stories were never shown to be true, nor were they disproved.

Thomas Byrnes, then Chief of the Detective Bureau, and twenty of his men worked untiringly on the case. The police dragnet was spread, which encompassed the stable yard of a brewery where a notorious band loafed and an abattoir where it was thought the body might have been boiled. Several members of the band were arrested, but all proved alibis which were indisputable. A man who had disappeared a day or two before Susie Martin did was hunted down, but it was shown that he had been a passenger in a second class train en route for the Pacific coast on the very day in which the girl was lost.

Every load of ashes which was carried away from the brewery was thoroughly searched for the weapon with which Susie had been killed, or for any portion of her body. It was labor lost. The search was practically given up as hopeless.

Just one day less than a year after the murder of Susie Martin was discovered a janitor found a number of bones in the cellar of No. 459 West Forty-sixth street. He had long since forgotten the case of the little girl who had been so mysteriously killed, but the bones excited his suspicion that some crime must have been committed on the premises. He turned them over to the police, who submitted them to Dr. Cyrus Edson and Dr. Frank Ferguson, who declared all but one small fragment to be the bones of lower animals. The one piece which seemed to be from a human body was compared with the bones known to be Susie Martin's, and it was found that a nick from a saw blade in the new fragment was exactly similar to the nicks in the murdered girl's bones. The width of the saw blade was evidently three millimetres and the teeth were the same distance apart in both cases, as nearly as could be determined.

Balked by Death.

The police searched the cellar and found a skull which seemed to be that of a girl about Susie Martin's age. The family had been broken up and greatly scattered, but Mrs. Martin was brought to New York from a small town in New Jersey and identified the skull as that of her daughter. A dentist who had done work for the girl recognized certain gold fillings which he had put in. Other clews made it certain to the police that the murder had taken place in the cellar where the skull was found. The investigators had a fresh start and the search for the man who had committed the crime was renewed and pushed relentlessly. Slowly, but it seemed certainly, circumstantial evidence pointed to Fritz Bensinger, who had been janitor of the building in West Forty-sixth street when Susie Martin disappeared, as a man who could throw light on the crime. He had been a butcher but had made a little money and had given up active business.

Friends said that because he did not wish to be idle he had taken the position of janitor in the apartment building where he lived, though he did not do the very heavy work, paying a younger man a small sum to help him with the furnace and the ashes.

Bensinger had some sort of a cooking paraphernalia in the cellar, it was said, and the neighbors who remembered him were under the impression that he boiled meat and made sausages there. When he left the Forty-sixth street house he sent away by express a large cauldron, oval in shape and about two and a half feet long. From what the police could learn, if Bensinger had killed Susie Martin it must have been because of some ulterior motive, for his life and actions seemed to have been exemplary. It was generally supposed that the crime had been committed by some other person in Fritz Bensinger's cellar, that he had known of it, or learned of it later, and that fear had sealed his lips.

He had moved shortly after Susie's disappearance, and it was learned that since that time he and his wife and three children had not remained in any one building for more than a few months. His nature seemed to have changed. He had had little to do with his neighbors, although previously he had been considered jovial and a good companion. It was evident that something was preying upon him. Yet he seemed to be living happily with his family, and his children were healthy, clean cut, lovable boys and girls.

All this was learned from those who had been temporary neighbors of Bensinger while the police were tracing his movements.

From one woman they learned that he and his family had moved just three weeks previously and the new address was furnished to the police. They went there and found crepe on the door. Fritz Bensinger was dead, and with him was buried the last hope of solving the mystery of Susie Martin's death.

Little Stories of Fact and Fancy

ONE of the queer freaks of nature that may be seen along the coast region of Peru are the moving sand dunes. They are composed of fine gray sand and most noticeable on the edge of the Desert of Islay, bounded by the Andes, the Pacific and the rivers Vitor and Tambo. Scattered over this great plain are hundreds of the gray sand dunes, from two hundred to three hundred feet broad and from ten to twenty feet in height.

These sand dunes are moved along by the wind so perfectly that not only is their crescent form preserved, but none of the sand is left behind to mark their passage. Another interesting fact is that on the surface of the pampa little, if any, of the sand which composes the dunes is found, though by digging below the surface the same variety may be detected. This leads to the conclusion that all the available surface sand is collected by the wind into these heaps, and unless the surface is disturbed by some convulsion of nature the dunes may all finally disappear among the hills to the north of the desert.

The rate of motion of these hills of sand is from one to thirteen feet a month, or from less than one-half inch to nearly six inches a day. In the progress of its movement the crescent shape of the sand dune is well preserved except where the force or direction of the wind is affected by some adjacent object. For instance, two dunes may approach each other so closely that the free action of the wind is interfered with, and this brings about some irregularities in form.

The sand dunes are formed in various parts of the desert, and they move slowly across it until they reach the hills on the northern border. These low hills are the burial places of the dunes. They go to pieces as soon as they touch the irregular formations, and then they become mere confused heaps of sand. Assuming the average journey which they travel to be twenty-five miles, since the mean yearly motion is about sixty-one feet, the life of a sand dune must be about two thousand years.

TWO interesting relics of former activities on the Isthmus of Panama are two large wrought iron anchors with fourteen foot shanks that are now stored at Mount Hope awaiting further orders. One of the anchors was found in a village about three hundred yards from the river and the other was discovered close to the trail through the jungle, about four hundred yards from the river.

Various people on the canal zone have sought in literature for some explanation of the presence of these anchors and why they were brought to Cruces. Cruces, or as it was originally called, Venta Cruz, is on the Chagres River, a distance of thirty-six miles by waterway from the Caribbean Sea.

It is known that Nombre de Dios was founded in 1519 and that a line of posts was run across the isthmus from that port to old Panama. Soon afterward a road was constructed between the two settlements along the line of posts. In 1534, or soon after that date, a route by water for boats and light draft vessels was established from Nombre de Dios along the coast and up the Chagres to Cruces. This was accomplished by removing the obstructions in the river. It is known, also, that early in the sixteenth century ships were taken apart on the Atlantic side and the parts were transported across the isthmus, and assembled again on the Pacific side. The heavy freight was taken over the trails.

There is a legend that the anchors were brought up the Chagres on boats and unloaded at Cruces for transport overland to Panama. Forty men were carrying one anchor when one of them stumbled and fell. The others were unable to stand the weight and the anchor fell, crushing seven of them. The point at which the anchor rested is called Matasiete, which is Spanish for "kill seven."

JULIUS, a negro, who lived on a plantation at a distance from town, confided to his master that he wanted to get married and asked if he would get him a license.

"Oh, yes, Julius; I will see to that." But when he went to the court house to get the license he did not know the name of Julius' intended bride. He thought, however, that he had noticed the man paying attention to a certain girl and had the license made out in her name, Martha.

"You-all didn't forget that license, did you?" asked Julius, anxiously, as soon as his employer returned.

"No, Julius; but you didn't tell me the girl's name. Was it Martha?"

"No, sah; it wasn't Martha, it was Eliza."

"Well, that's too bad. You will have to wait until I go to town again and I will get another license."

"How much dat license cost?" inquired Julius.

"Fifty cents."

"Well, I don' reckon dat's fifty cents' worth o' difference 'tween dem. Jes' gib me de license an' I'll marry Martha."

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

QUEEN'S FRITTERS.

Put three tablespoonfuls of butter into half a cupful of water over a fire; when boiling add a half cup of flour. Cool and add two eggs, beating thoroughly. The eggs are to be added one at a time. Fry the mixture by spoonfuls in smoking hot fat.

APPLE FRAPPE.

Wash, quarter and core a quarter peck of tart red apples; put into a shallow pudding pan with just enough water to cover; put on back of range (if gas stove, put on simmer), boil very slowly until the apples are tender. With a spoon press each quarter and put all into strainer over night; there should be three and one-half cups of apple juice. Add to the juice one cup of sugar and one teaspoon lemon juice, put into freezer and churn ten minutes. Pack refrigerating materials around the freezer. The apple is mashed through the strainer or colander and sugar added to taste.

SPONGE DROPS.

Beat the whites of three eggs until thick and lemon-coloured; add gradually, beating constantly, a third of a cup of powdered sugar; add the yolks of two eggs, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, a third of a cup of flour, vanilla to flavour. Drop on buttered tins to bake. Sprinkle with powdered sugar.

CHERRY TAPIOCA.

Soak a cupful of tapioca over night in cold water; in the morning add two cupfuls of hot water and cook in a double boiler until clear. Sweeten to taste, add a pinch of salt and stir in two cups of pitted cherries. Pour into a serving dish, chill thoroughly and serve with sugar and cream.

BEEF BROTH.

Purchase one and one-half pounds soup meat and have the butcher give you a soup bone. Wipe the meat and put on the first with two quarts cold water, a small piece of onion, a small piece of carrot, a small piece of bay leaf, one teaspoon salt and a little pepper. Cook slowly two hours. If it has boiled down any add a little water. There should be one and one-half quarts of stock. Strain through cheese cloth and set aside to cool. Then next morning remove all the beads of fat. Heat and serve in cups.

SPANISH BEEF LOAF.

Ten cents' worth of Hamburg steak, one cup of bread crumbs, one cup of cold mashed potatoes, salt and pepper as required. Mold into a loaf. Put one tablespoon of dripping in roasting pan, add loaf and pour over it one cup of canned tomatoes, one small onion, and one mango pepper chopped together. Bake for about forty minutes in hot oven.

SOFT GINGERBREAD WITHOUT EGGS.

One cup of New Orleans molasses, one cup of brown sugar, one-half cup of shortening, three cups flour, one teaspoon of baking soda, one-half teaspoon of cinnamon, same amount of ginger and salt, and one cup of boiling water. Put the molasses, shortening and sugar into bowl; mix until creamy; add spices, salt, and baking powder, which has been dissolved in the boiling water; then the flour, which has been sifted. Bake in muffin tins or in cake pans.

GRAPE FRUIT SALAD.

Peel and separate one large, firm grape fruit into sections, remove all skin and membrane, keeping sections whole as possible. Prepare an equal quantity of celery by cutting it into half-inch pieces and an equal quantity of tart apples, cut in small cubes. Arrange on crisp lettuce leaves and garnish with mayonnaise dressing.

CARAMEL CAKE.

One-half cup of butter, one and one-half cups of sugar, one cup of cold water, two eggs, two and one-half cups of flour, two heaping teaspoons of baking powder, five teaspoons of caramel and one of vanilla. To make caramel, brown one-half cup of granulated sugar on the stove, then add one-half cup of boiling water.

FRUIT GELATIN.

One glass currant jelly, half package granulated gelatin, one-half pint cold water, one-half pint pineapple juice, one-half cup sugar. Steep the gelatin in cold water one hour, add sugar, pineapple juice and jelly, then very hot water; mix, strain and allow to cool slowly. Prepare the day before it is needed. This quantity will serve the family twice. Keep in a cool place. Serve with whipped cream.

SEEN IN THE SHOPS OF PARIS

The "Wilhelmina" is the latest novelty in a more elaborate evening arrangement of the small Dutch cap.

The white lace waist models have come to the front and will be seen more and more as the season advances.

Hat brims, even in the widest hats, are being faced with satin or velvet. Colored velvets are often employed.

One of the French milliners is using a new red ,called a primrose red, but it seems to be a combination of wine, fraise, graseille, and cerise shades. These combined tints are more artistic than a distinct colour.

The return of the sash to full favor gives ribbon an important part to play in the spring and summer fashions.

Malines on hats serve as a foundation on which to rest small flowers and berries, which are more attractive than ever.

The wide shawl-like lace collars which fall over the shoulders and the fichus of fine linen or net are much in vogue.

A novelty in millinery this season is the crown of one color and brim of another. The quality of the straw may also vary.

Nearly all the handsome lingerie dresses are pure white; that is, they show practically no coloured embroidery. The colour is added in the garniture of girdle, sash, tunic or coat.

A chief novelty note in lingerie dresses is the use of the bright coloured tunic of chiffon as an overdress. These tunics are usually short and in no wise cover the beautiful lace and embroidery of the dress underneath.

Notes From the World of Science

The coal consumption and indicated horse-power necessary to propel a vessel at a high rate of speed increase very rapidly with the speed. The rate of increase depends upon the form of the "lines" of the ship: the finer the form or lines of the hull, the less being the power required to obtain a given speed, other things being equal. If, however, the lines are at all full, the extra indicated horse-power required to obtain another knot is large, amounting in some cases to as much as 25 per cent. of the total power. The total consumption may, with sufficient accuracy, be taken as proportional to the indicated horse-power. Hence it is seen that the coal consumption expended in obtained an extra knot may be disproportionately large. In the case of certain ocean greyhounds the coal consumption is not the most important item, everything else being sacrificed for speed. If the speed were properly chosen the coal bill could be reduced by more than one-half.—Cassier's Magazine.

JILTING OF FAMOUS MEN

Stories of Women Who Scorned Love of Those Who Later Became Famous

"Oh, why did I not marry dear Charley? How happy we should have been!"

In this burst of confidence to a friend a beautiful American heiress regretted her jilting years ago of Charles Stewart Parnell, but there are not wanting admirers of the great Irish leader who affirm that the jilting was the best thing that could have happened to him. A happy married life would probably prevented him entering the political arena altogether.

As a young man—his brother, Mr. John H. Parnell, tells us—the Irish politician fell in love with a pretty Wicklow girl of good family, with whom he hunted a great deal, but the affair came to nothing, and Parnell remained heart-free until he visited Paris in 1870, and there met a young American heiress, to whom he became engaged.

They parted for a time, she to go to Rome and he to return to Ireland, and ultimately the girl wrote, saying she was returning to America, without mentioning anything about an engagement. Parnell folowed her to America, and the engagement seemed to be renewed, when Miss W—— suddenly told him she was not going to marry him, "making the excuse that he was only an Irish gentleman, without sufficient means to marry, with no name in public, and that she could not marry any one without a great public name."

This dumbfounded "Charley," who after trying his best to persuade her to marry him, gave up the heart-breaking job. To distract his thoughts Parnell plunged into politics, with what results the world knows. He never met the lady again, but, according to the authority mentioned, another American heiress in later years proposed to "Charley," who left Paris to escape her.

Chaplin Jilted.

This romantic episode of political life calls to mind the jilting of the well-known Unionist politician, Mr. Henry Chaplin, who years ago was engaged to Lady Florence Paget, a daughter of a former Lord Anglesey, one of thelovliest women in English society; in fact, she was known as the "Pocket Venus."

The engagement had been publicly announced and the day of the marriage fixed, when the startling news leaked out that Lady Paget had eloped with the late Marquis of Hastings, one of the most daring turf plungers the racing world has ever known. Under the pretext of shopping at a certain well-known emporium in the West-end, Lady Paget walked in one door and out of another, where she met the Marquis, with whom she immediately drove away. They were at once married.

Only a year or two after Fae gave Mr. Chaplin his revenge. His horse, Hermit, won the Derby at enormous odds—something like 66 to 1—and Lord Hastings was ruined. He died only four years after his romantic marriage, and his widow, who afterward married Sir George Chetwynd, also died a few years ago. It was something like twelve years before Mr. Chaplin recovered from the blow, and then he married Lady Florence Leveson-Gower, sister of the present Duke of Sutherland.

Dickens, Too!

The story of how Charles Dickens was jilted is particularly interesting. When he was eighteen Dickens became acquainted with the three daughters of George Beadnell, I Lombard Street banker. With one of them, Maria (the original of Dora in "David Copperfield"), who was a year his senior, he immediately fell in love, and Maria flirted with him very desperately. But the lovemaking of the future novelist was not treated very seriously, for he was not considered by any means an eligible party and even Maria herself adopted an attitude of amused tolerance.

For three years the affair went on, and then Dickens realized that his case was hopeless. He pleaded in vain with the girl, whose caprices maddened him alternately, for, as a matter of fact, Maria Beadnell was a wilful coquette. The end of it all was a reply that held out no hope, and so the parting came. For twenty years they saw no more of one another. Ultimately Maria Beadnell was married to Henry Louis Winter, and when Dickens met her again time had wrought sad havoc on his youthful ideal. Mrs. Winter wrote to her old lover, but Dickens did not care to renew a correspondence with his old sweetheart. Then Mr. Winter failed, and the chagrined wife appealed to the lover of her girlhood for help, but without avail, and the romance ended long before Mrs. Winter's death in 1898.

Ruskin's Affair.

A curious fact regarding the jilting of famous men is that through pique they have occasionally been led into marriages which have resulted in the utmost misery for both husband and wife. There was John Ruskin, for instance, who fell in love as a boy with the beautiful Rose de la Touche, whom he wooed with poems, romances and dramas and mute worship, receiving nothing in return but chilly indifference and lively ridicule. The result was that at the age of twenty-nine he married a lady of great beauty, Miss Grey, of a family long intimate with the Ruskins. The marriage, we are told, was a somewhat hurried act, and brought no happiness to either, and six years afterward it was dissolved.

Lord Byron Rejected.

Then there is the case of Lord Byron, who was led into his unhappy matrimonial alliance with Miss Milbanke, only daughter and heiress of Sir Ralph Milbanke, through being rejected by another young lady. He had proposed to the latter, and, as he held her letter of refusal in his hand, he said to a friend: "It seems that it is to be Miss Milbanke, after all." He sat down and wrote the fatal letter, handing it to his friend for perusal. "A very pretty letter," his friend remarked, after reading it; 'it is a pity that it should not go." "And it shall go!" exclaimed Byron, and thus opened one of the most tragic chapters of his chequered life-story.

Bismarck Jilted.

According to the biography of the "Iron Chancellor," published in 1900, Bismarck, when he was twenty-one years of age, paid ardent court to a charming English girl, a Miss Russell, to whom he ultimately became engaged. He first met Miss Russell at Wiesbaden in company with her uncle and aunt, the Duke and Duchess of C., and Bismarck made no secret of his tender fondness for the blonde of unusual beauty.

The engagement, however, was soon broken off, and those who have studied the life of Bismarck assert that Miss Russell, recognizing the differences in their life and station, threw Bismarck over. Proof of this seems to be furnished by the fact that Bismarck took the broken engagement very much to heart, and for a long time was very melancholy and depressed.—Tit-Bits.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

Immediately after applying a little Danderine all dandruff will disappear, all itching of the scalp will cease and there will be no more loose or falling hair.

If you wish to double the beauty of your hair in ten minutes surely try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil. In a few moments your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

If you care for beautiful, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter—A real surprise awaits you.

W. G. MORROW
MANAGING DIRECTOR

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Verdict Unimportant He Says.

Washington, D.C., April 11.—Representative McKinley, director of Taft's national headquarters, yesterday issued the first official comment from the Taft side upon the Presidential primary in Illinois yesterday.

"The result in Illinois was not unexpected to those familiar with the situation," said McKinley. "The issues which occupied the attention of the people of the State were so peculiarly local as to cause the Presidential issue to be lost sight of so far as President Taft was concerned.

"I say this advisedly, and for this reason: Mr. Roosevelt recently invaded the state and devoted the major part of his addresses to subjects which had no relation whatever, for the most part, to the issues on which the Republican party must meet the Democratic party in November.

"The result in Illinois has no bearing whatever on the outcome of the Presidential contest in the Republican party except in so far as it expresses the desire of Illinois based on purely local issues."

Couldn't Conquer Mount McKinley.

Fairbanks, Alaska, April 11.— (via Ashcroft)—The Fairbanks Times, Mount McKinley expedition, which left here Feb. 5, returned on Tuesday night, having been unsuccessful in the attempt to scale the mountain. The mountain has never been scaled, though Dr. Cook claims to have succeeded.

The Fairbanks' Times party succeeded in attaining an elevation of 10,000 feet on the north side of the mountain east of Peter Glacier. Further progress was barred by precipitous ice cliffs and lack of supplies, and the lateness of the season made it impracticable to renew the attempt by another route.

Not Boston's Style of Pleasure.

Boston, April 11.—Wonderland, an amusement park built at Revere Beach six years ago at a cost of $500,000, has just been sold to a real estate promoter for $50,000. Even free admission had failed to put the park on a paying basis.

Fatal Coyote Hunt.

Aberdeen, Sask., April 11.—While hunting a coyote, Roy Wolfe, a prosperous farmer who came from Montana a year ago, accidentally discharged his rifle and is dead.

No Salaries for Commissioners.

London, April 11.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the Commons yesterday, Hon. Mr. Harcourt, replying to Sir Gilbert Parker, said that no salaries will be paid to the United Kingdom's representatives on the Empire Trade Commission, but he granted traveling allowances and subsistence expenses. The dominions would pay the whole expenses of their representatives and a proportion of the secretarial expenses.

Sir Gilbert Parker declared himself as dissatisfied. He alleged that the United Kingdom's representatives were not impartial.

Roosevelt in Maine.

Bangor, Me., April 11.—At the state convention yesterday the four Roosevelt candidates for delegates at large were elected by a vote of 720 to 497 for Taft. They are Merill N. Drew, Portland; A. E. Stearns, Rumford; Charles H. Hichborn, Augusta, and H. P. Gardner of Patten.

While uninstructed by the convention, they are pledged to support Theodore Roosevelt.

Put Cartridges in Metal Pot.

Quebec, April 11.—H. Jobin, a stereotyper on L'Evenement, had a narrow escape while at work. Some alleged humorist placed two cartridges in the metal pot, and when the lead got heated one of the cartridges exploded, the ball passing close to Jobin's head.

Foster Off to Australia.

Ottawa, April 11.—Now that the negotiations for reciprocity with the West Indies have been brought to a successful conclusion, Hon. G. E. Foster, it is understood, will leave next month for Australia to carry on negotiations there for a preferential arrangement.

Million Fire at Butte.

Butte, Montana, April 11.—A fire, which started at noon in the warehouse district in the southern part of the city had caused loss of more than $1,000,000 at one o'clock and was spreading northward into the business section, fanned by a high wind.

Four business blocks and thirty residences were burned.

Grain Commission Appointed.

Ottawa, April 11.—The order in council appointing Prof. Magill of Halifax, W. D. Staples, M.P., and F. W. Gibbs of Fort William to the grain commission, was signed yesterday.

DEVELOPMENTS EXPECTED.

Friends of Rosenthal Closeted Yesterday With Police.

Toronto, April 11.—Startling developments may be expected any moment in the Rosenthal murder case. Several persons visited headquarters in the City Hall yesterday and were closeted with the detectives detailed on the case. Harry Rosenthal, son of the murdered man, has been almost constantly at the detective office and some of the officers who are giving their whole time to this matter, visited different parts of the city.

"The parties of whom I spoke yesterday as having information which they have not yet disclosed," he said yesterday, "have not yet come forward but we are getting closer to the facts which they are thought to know about."

The police are now sure that no one man committed the crime and are gradually narrowing down the clues in their hands. There is still a great mass of information to be sorted out and run down to its original sources, but any moment Dunkelman, who is steadily improving at the hospital, may be able to bring the matter to an abrupt termination and even without his aid, upon information which yesterday came to their hands, the police hope to be able to solve the mystery and apprehend the murderers.

Dunkelman's recovery is now practically assured and it is now confidently expected that this recovery will be mental as well as physical and that with returning strength will come coherent thought and recollection. It was at first feared that though the man might live his memory or mind would be so affected that he would be unable to tell a clear story of the assault upon himself and the murder of Rosenthal but as he continues to improve this fear is lessening.

Silverman, the man who with Rosenthal purchased a thousand pounds of brass and copper from the Hydro-electric, says that this was purchased by them three weeks ago from the purchasing agent at the William street storehouse who is the man empowered to sell this metal. It was not the superintendent at the Duncan street station who sold it as at first stated.

SHOULD TRAIN BOYS.

Principal Hutton Advances Reasons For Military Instruction.

Toronto, April 11.—"Just because this is not the age of militarism, military training should become part of our training," said Principal Hutton of University College, speaking on the "Strathcona Trust," before a joint meeting of the inspectors of public schools, physical training and hygiene departments of the Ontario Educational Association yesterday afternoon, "not to be used against the foreigner, but against ourselves.

"In all educational work we see a want of these military virtues of system, regularity of life. Literature produces every year a certain number of Bohemians, artistic blackguards, shifty dreamers. These are Rousseaus and Coleridges on every side, but more like them in their vices than in their virtues."

The opposite military virtues, said Principal Hutton, might not seem very intellectual; they might seem a very external way of preserving our self-respect, but the great philosophers of ancient Greece, who lived in the midst of a people who were too devoted to freedom to submit to control, had placed great stress on these very military virtues.

"We want," he said, "fixed thought as an attitude to free thought, discipline as an antidote to the open mind. In this day of democracy and liberty we need the antiseptic virtues of obedience and service."

Turning to the question of cadet training, he remarked that it was not, or had not been very popular in England in his time at least. This might have been because it was not as exciting, or because it was more onerous than athletic sports. Yet, if England needed to be saved, it would be saved by the men who could shoot straight rather than by the "flannelled fools and muddled oafs" of whom Kipling spoke. Our boys in Canada, he thought, were not yet demoralized by too much sports, and here we had the advantage.

General Booth is 83.

London, April 11.—General Booth, of the Salvation Army, was 83 years old yesterday. He has sent a message to the newspapers, in which he says:

"At the end of eighty-three years of my pilgrimage I testify to the faithfulness of God, to the true happiness of a life spent in seeking the benefit of others, to the grand possibilities of goodness which are ever the hope of humanity. The span of life which may yet be left to me I purpose to spend in this, the highest service I know.

"My sight has failed, but I am told that an operation I intend to undergo next month will much restore it, and although there must be some risk of total blindness, I shall go through it.

"Whether it succeeds or not, I hope to be spared to visit Canada and the United States during the year upon which I am entering, as well as to inaugurate further efforts for the spread of the work in European countries."

SHE KEPT HER WORD.

Timid Young Thing Failed to Awe Impudent Young Man.

With impudent daring the dashing young man, having carried on a merry conversation until the timid creature had not noticed how far they were straying from the house, turned to her and said:

"I believe I will kiss you."

"Sir!" she exclaimed haughtily, drawing herself up with an air of regal disdain. "How dare you?"

"It isn't a question of courage; it's a question of taste," he smiled nonchalantly.

"I positively forbid you to do such a thing!" she declared.

"And what good does your forbidding do?" he argued. "We are fully a mile from any one. We are away out here in the meadows. Listen to the joyous trilling of yonder birds that are billing and cooing. All nature suggests love-making and"—

"Sir, you are positively rude!" she interrupted, stamping her little foot.

"I should be rude, indeed, not to wish to kiss so pretty a girl in such lovely surroundings," he said, placing his arm firmly about her slender waist.

"I will not let you kiss me!" she asserted.

"You will not?" he laughed easily. "How will you prevent me? I am stronger than you. You cannot get away from me."

"I can still scream, thank heaven!" she answered determinedly.

With no further argument he placed his free hand under her dimpled chin, elevated it to the proper angle and kissed her.

Heard the "Sausage" Yelp.

In a little restaurant where the waiter insists upon slamming down your plate or saucer a man had ordered a sandwich and a cup of coffee. Then he decided to put an addenda to his order.

"Gimme a plate o' that country sausage too," he told the waiter.

Just then the accident happened.

Somebody stepped on the tail of a small, anemic looking yellow pup dog that had followed another customer into the restaurant. The dog gave three staccato yelps.

"Ah, just countermand that order for sausage," growled the man with the face. "I didn't know you had to go and make it!"—Los Angeles Herald.

A Woman's Reasoning.

"I suppose," she said with a heartfelt sigh, "there will be no cooks or maids to worry us when we get to heaven."

"No," her husband replied, "and no dressmakers or beauty shops or millinery establishments or"—

"Why, John, what are you thinking of? I've never seen a picture of an angel that didn't have on a robe of some kind, and of course every woman will need lots of feathers for her wings, won't she? Doesn't the Bible tell us to lay up treasures in heaven? Why would we need to do that if it wasn't going to be necessary to dress there?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Specialism is likely to run to seed. This story will serve to illustrate. A physician just graduated from the medical school was asked about his plans.

"I am to be a specialist on the nose."

Somehow his courage flinches,
For, though he much admires the lot,
He hasn't read three inches.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 10.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending April 8 were 850 cattle, 325 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 1600 calves. The offerings on the market this morning were 300 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 800 hogs and 1000 calves.

A fair trade was done in cattle, there being a good demand from butchers for small lots to fill actual wants, and, as the offerings were light, a firm feeling prevailed in the market and prices show no change. Choice steers sold at $7 to $7.25; good at $6.75 to $6.75, and the lower grades down to $5.50 per 100 pounds. The best cows brought $5.50, and the commoner ones from $3.50 to $5 per 100 pounds. Bulls sold from $3.50 to $5 per 100 pounds.

The tone of the market for hogs was strong, owing to the very light run, and prices scored a further advance, with sales of selected lots at $8 to $8.25, and $8.50 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars. The trade in calves was active, and, as the offerings were not excessive, prices ruled steady, with sales at from $3 to $9 each, as to size and quality. An easier feeling prevailed in the market for lambs, and prices declined 25c per 100 pounds, on account of the limited demand, and sales were made at $7 to $7.25 per 100 pounds, and the few sheep offered sold at $5.50 per 100 pounds.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, April 10.—Cattle—Receipts, 50 head; market steady; trade light; prime steers, $7.75 to $8.25; butcher grades, $6 to $7.25.

Calves—Receipts, 200 head; market active, 25c higher; cull to choice, $4 to $9.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 12,000 head; market slow, 10c to 15c lower; choice lambs, $8.25 to $8.35; cull to fair, $7 to $8; yearlings, $7 to $7.50; sheep, $5 to $6.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 7200; market slow, 10c to 15c lower; yorkers, $8.10 to $8.15; pigs, $7 to $7.10; mixed, $8.15 to $8.25; heavy, $8 to $8.10; roughs, $6.50 to $7.25; stags, $5 to $6.25.

Cornwall Man Found Dead.

Victoria, B.C., April 11.—The body of a man believed to be that of Hugh D. Willis of Cornwall Ont., was found on the beach at the foot of Menzies street Tuesday. The police have been unable to find out anything about the man. He was about 35 years of age.

Wanted—Two Good Murderers.

Some curious letters passed between Garrick and a man named Stone. The latter was employed to get recruits for the low parts of the drama, and one night he wrote to Garrick, "Sir, the Bishop of Winchester is getting drunk at the Bear and swears he will not play tonight."

At first sight this seems peculiar conduct for a bishop, but it should be explained that the communication only refers to the man engaged to take that character in the play of "Henry VIII."

On another occasion Garrick wrote to Stone: "If you can get me two good murderers I will pay you handsomely; particularly the sporting fellow who keeps the apple stall on Tower hill. The cut in his face is just the thing. Pick me up an alderman or two for 'Richard' if you can, and I have no objection to treat with you for a comely lawyer."

HOME RULE BILL IS ON

Every Seat in the British House of Commons Crowded When Asquith Introduced Measure

SUFFRAGETTES BARRED

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., APRIL 11.—Not for many years has there been such interest taken in any parliamentary event as that of to-day, when Premier Asquith rose to introduce his famous Home-Rule for Ireland bill. On the floor of the House even when every seat is crowded, there is not enough room for the members. As a consequence at 11 o'clock to-day every seat was preoccupied by a hat or card to indicate that the owners of the same would occupy this reserved space.

All who were admitted to the galleries had to be introduced and thoroughly identified, the Government taking no chances with Suffragettes.

The Commons chamber was crowded to suffocation when Asquith rose amid thundering cheers from the Liberals and Nationalists. He said he began where William Ewart Gladstone left off nineteen years ago, to plead the cause of Ireland and solidarity of British empire.

The cardinal principle of the bill, he pointed out, was the supreme authority of an Imperial parliament, while at the same time autonomy was conferred on Ireland ,in respect to Irish concerns. He outlined a form of Irish parliament, consisting of two houses, with power to make laws for the good government of Ireland.

Asquith was specific in pointing out that the bill excluded from Irish parliamentary control all Imperial questions. The whole effect of Home Rule would be to make Ireland a great solid unit in the British Empire.

Asquith laid particular stress on the fact that an Irish parliament would not have power to establish or endow any religion or have interference in any way with the worship of Papacy, past, present or hereafter established in Ireland.

Mr. Asquith concluded his speech by hotly denying Bonar Law's charge in Belfast this week that the government had sold itself for the Irish vote.

As this the government supporters rose in a body and there were cries of "Muzzle him, muzzle him." When order was finally restored, Sir Edward Carson replied to Asquith's speech. He declared that the bill was unworkable and traitorous and must result in the disruption of the Empire. He was still speaking at five p.m., London time.

Mrs. Rouclere Is A Wonder

Striking Tribute From Brockville Newspaper Man to Mind-reader Who Appears at Grand To-night

A striking testimony to the wonderful work of Mildred Rouclere, the mind reader, who appears at the Grand Opera House to-night and for the balance of the week, is furnished by the following letter received from a Brockville newspaper man yesterday:

Brockville, Ont., April 9, 1912.

Mr. Harry Rouclere:—

Dear Sir,—You will remember that on the last night of your Brockville engagement, I requested of Mrs. Rouclere to name the address of a certain young man who had removed from here several years ago and of whose whereabouts I absolutely knew nothing. That night I wrote a letter to the address she gave me in Regina, Sask., and to-day I received a reply from him expressing great surprise that he should have been located in the manner I described to him. Mrs. Rouclere is certainly a wonder. With kind regards,

Sincerely yours,
WM. MILLER.

MR. BAILEY ON IMMIGRATION

Peterborough, April 10.

Sir,—A good deal of the ill-feeling, which is the cause of the resentment shown by Canadians at the presence of strangers, is due to the lack of knowledge of the immigration business. You see from enclosed report in the Examiner, that the member for West Middlesex states that "65,000 immigrants had been brought into the province, of whom only 7,609 were due to provincial auspices." A well known local gentleman complaining that the immigrants were not wanted, got real angry when I told him they were brought here. Under what auspices I was brought here, however, I don't know.

JURY BROUGHT IN VERDICT $50 AND COSTS FOR THE PLAINTIFF IN LIBEL ACTION

Action Arose Out of an Alleged Defamatory Letter Which Was Published in Campbellford Newspapers—Jury Was Out Over Two Hours—Costs Will Run High.

The spring sitting of the Court of Assizes terminated yesterday, when the Jury brought in a verdict of $50 and costs in favour of the plaintiff in the libel action in which James Irwin and L. H. Stephens were plaintiff and defendant, respectively. The plaintiff in the action sought to recover "general" damages for alleged loss of business and defamation of character, arising out of a letter, which appeared in two Campbellford newspapers, and alleged to have been written and published at the instance of the defendant, Stephens.

The parties concerned were rivals in the undertaking business, and the libel action arose out of a dispute which was alleged to have taken place at the railway station upon the arrival of a corpse from Kingston. The two men, through a misunderstanding, or otherwise, were there to meet the remains with their respective funeral equipages, and it was there that the alleged dispute over possession of the remains was said to have taken place. Upon the instruction of the dead man's son, who was present when the incident occurred, Irwin took charge of the corpse, and conducted the funeral. A few days later, he was surprised, upon receiving a copy of the Campbellford Herald, to see contained therein a letter, alleged to have been written by Stephens, in which the latter accused Irwin of ungentlemanly conduct, on the day in question. Irwin demanded an apology, but receiving none, he subsequently entered an action for damages.

The case was due to come up at the Cobourg Assizes, several weeks ago, but owing to the absence of the son of the deceased who was in Calgary at the time, and who, it is alleged, was a material witness in the case, it was reverted to the Jury of the High Court at Peterborough.

The case occupied the attention of the Court throughout the day, during which time a large number of witnesses were examined. About four o'clock in the afternoon Mr. D. O'Connell, acting counsel for the defendant, began to address the Jury, and at 7.25 in the evening, the jury retired. After a little over two hours deliberation the jury returned with the verdict of $50 damages and costs in favour of James Irwin, the plaintiff.

Mr. E. G. Porter, K.C., Belleville, and Mr. A. B. Colville, Campbellford represented James Irwin, the plaintiff. Mr. D. J. Lynch of Campbellford, and Mr. D. O'Connell of Peterborough, acted on behalf of Mr. Stephens, the defendant.

It is said that the costs of the case will be in the neighbourhood of $700.

INADEQUATE ACCOMMODATION FOR MEMBERS OF THE BAR

Grand Jury Enter a Number of Recommendations in Their Report—Would Favour Re-arrangement of Lighting System in the Court-room.

The presentment of the Grand Jury report was made yesterday at the morning session of the High Court. His Honour Judge Latchford congratulated the jury upon the expeditious and thorough manner in which the Grand Jury had performed their duties.

In referring to the lights in the court room, which the judge was compelled to "dodge" to see the jury, he hoped that a change would be made before the next sitting.

May it please your Lordship:

We, the members of the Grand Jury, desire to compliment the county on the small number of cases which will engage your attention. We are pleased to see that law and order is so well maintained in our community. It occurred to the Grand Jury while listening to your address that an improvement might be made in the lighting arrangement on the dais As you addressed us you had to dodge backward and forward behind the brackets supporting the lamp in order to see our faces. We would suggest the advisability of raising these brackets 10 or 12 inches to permit of an uninterrupted view of the Grand or Petty Jury.

Need More Room.

Our attention was drawn to the inadequate accommodation provided for members of the Bar, as outside of the cloak room, which is just large enough for the purpose, there is no accommodation except the public room opening off it. We would recommend a larger private room for their accommodation. Upon examining the building we find some repairs necessary, and would recommend a new floor in that port ion of the main hallway which has not been done, and would make a level floor throughout the different hallways, owing to the fact that a new floor has already been laid in some of these hallways, which are at the present moment the thickness of the new floor above the old one. The building generally requires the walls and ceilings re-decorated throughout.

In the Jail.

There are 15 persons confined in the jail, two of these being weak-minded, and three making it their home on account of their old age or poverty. These unfortunate people we trust will find a home in a proper institution maintained for that purpose, at an early date. We would recommend that proper wash basins be provided in each corridor, which would be an improvement over the method now used for washing purposes. We recommend this on sanitary grounds. We recommend that some further provision be made to protect the staircase leading from the second story by erecting a lattice work or a partition having a door leading to the stairway. We found the building scrupulously clean. In event of the jail being used as a House of Refuge for any length of time, we would recommend two or three substantial sofas covered with imitation leather for the use of the old people confined there. This would just apply to that part occupied by them only.

We consider that some provision for ventilation should be arranged other than opening the windows in the corridors. This could be obtained by inserting a metal ventilator in the top of the window, a small corner of the glass being cut out to permit of the ventilator being inserted. This would draw off the hot, impure air, much more effectively than the opening of half the window, which in many cases would make too strong a draft.

The Hospitals.

We next visited St. Joseph's Hospital, and found that 33 patients are being treated at the present time. Everything appears to be in good order. We would recommend to those who have the supervision of hospitals, the necessity of providing a ward for children, which could be commenced in a small way with six or eight beds. It would be a matter of convenience to the public if proper walks were constructed to the entrance of the building.

The House of Providence contains 57 old people who all appear healthy and clean. We were just a little puzzled to know whether nine beds in a room about 16 x 25 were too many to be conducive to general health.

We next visited the Nicholls Hospital, which at the present is treating 43 patients. We were able to contrast the equipment of this Hospital with St. Joseph's Hospital, and noticed the absence of an elevator for bringing patients up and down from one floor to aother. In contrasting the equipment of the operating room and its relative position to the sterilising room, we consider that the rooms are not arranged as conveniently as they should be to obtain efficiency. This we trust will have the attention of the Hospital Board. We would recommend a ward for children in this Hospital, containing from six to eight beds. On visiting the third floor where the staff is quartered, and which usually contains from 20 to 25, we find that the fire escapes are inadequate to serve this number. The only outlet at the present time is a small balcony in the centre of the building, having two ladders leading to the fire escape below. We would recommend additional outlets for this portion of the building. We found the building in good condition and clean.

New Protestant Home.

We visited the new building which is just about completed, to replace the Protestant Home, and were delighted with its substantial character, and the splendid arrangement for light on the four sides of the building. We were disappointed, however, at not finding fan lights over the doors in the sleeping rooms, which we think is a mistake from a ventilation standpoint. It is too early to comment on the building further as we do not know what provision has been made for fire escapes until after it has been completed.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

TRADES AND LABOUR TALK

Address by American Federation Representative at Meeting Last Night—Progress Being Made

CO-OPERATIVE SCHEME

The regular meeting of the Trades and Labour Council was held last night with a large attendance of members present. Letters were read from Mr. John Crane and Mr. G. R. Armstrong acknowledging the communication from the Council in regard to its request that a fair wage clause be included in all contracts let for all city construction work. The Council will be notified whenthe Building committee of the Board of Education and the City Council meet again.

Mr. John Flett of the American Federation of Labour was present and delivered an address, showing the advance that had been made by the Federation in spite of the McNamara case. He spoke at some length showing the advancement that had been made by the labour movement throughout the world and looked for the time when the various unions throughout the world should be linked together.

It was decided to postpone a discussion of a co-operative scheme for Peterborough. At the next meeting of the Councilthe Old Age Pension Fund will be discussed.

HAVELOCK, APRIL 11. — The charge against Mr. Fred Bennet, former town constable, of misappropriating $182.94 of the public's money, while acting as Tax Collector, was withdrawn to-day. Restitution was made and the costs paid in full and Magistrate Edmison agreed to the withdrawal of the case.

Wedding Was A Brilliant One

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., APRIL 11.—With the King and Queen smiling approval, Lady Eileen Butler, the Queen's most beautiful maid of honour, became the bride of the Marquis of Stafford, as the most brilliant wedding that London expects to see this season. St. Peter's was the scene of the wedding ceremony. The bride had no fewer than fourteen bridesmaids. The bridal gown was of rich brocade pattern, with large design in gold.

The wedding reception was held at Grosvenor House, lent for the occasion by the Duke and Duchess of Westminster.

There was no change in his condition

CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE CAUSED BY AN EARLY MORNING FIRE

Conflagration in Greenhouses of Mr. F. Mason, Florist, of Water Street, at 5 O'clock This Morning

COVERED BY INSURANCE

The Fire Brigade had a busy time during last evening and this morning, in which period they attended no less than three fires. That of the greatest consequence was the fire which broke out at about five o'clock this morning in the green house of Mr. F. Mason, florist, of Water street. Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., who had set out to catch the early morning train was the first to discover the conflagration and he sent in the alarm from Box 25.

Burning Fiercely.

On the arrival of the brigade it was seen that the flames had already burst through the roof and threatened serious results. The men put into service two lines of hose and after a brief, but stiff battle, the flames were subdued. It was afterwards discovered that the fire was caused in some manner by the furnace, and that the flames were greatly augmented by some lumber which was used for making shelves. The north-west portion of the building suffered the most.

The Damage.

The intense heat was responsible for the destroying of five thousand plants, and for the melting of nearly two hundred panes of glass. It is feared that a further five thousand plants will suffer on account of the smoke, but this will not be ascertained for a day or two. The damage to the building will amount to three or four hundred dollars.

There is insurance of four thousand dollars on the buildings and contents, made up as follows: Western Assurance Co. $1,000 on buildings; Guardian Assurance Co., $1,000 on buildings; Anglo American Fire Ins. Co., $1,000 on buildings; Atlas Assurance Co., $500 on stock; Gore District Mutual Fire Ins. Co., $300 on stock.

Fire at P. Hamilton's.

Responding to a telephone call at 7.15 last evening the brigade repaired to the moulding shop of Peter Hamilton's foundry on Water street, of which building the roof in some manner had become ablaze. The flames were soon extinguished and the damage, principally to the shingles, will not exceed ten dollars.

Third Call.

The third call was to the home of Mr. David Hooper of 164 Charlotte street at 10 o'clock this morning. This was a chimney fire with no damage.

BRITISH SUBJECTS

Eight Residents of Peterborough Have Taken Out Naturalization Papers

FOUR NATIONALITIES

The British Empire has become richer numerically by the addition to her population of eight recognized British subjects. These people, all of whom are residents of Peterborough, have, by the ordinary course of taking out naturalization papers, sworn allegiance to King George V. The names and nationality of these citizens, who will henceforth have all the privileges, including the right to exercise their franchise, that all British subjects are heir to, are as follows: Dominico Cecci, Italian; Nicholas Douros, Peter Gettas, Geo. Yeotes and Louis Yeotes; the last named four are of Grecian origin. Hyman Zacks and Harry Zacks, both of Hebrew origin, and Henry Knowles, the latter was formerly a subject of Uncle Sam's domain. All of these people have been residents of this country for three years, and were, therefore, entitled to the privileges which go with the acceptance of the oath of allegiance.

ACTRESS JOINS SALVATION ARMY

LONDON, APRIL 10.—Miss Evangeline Plasdale, leading lady in the theatrical company which played "Beverley" in the local theatre a week ago Saturday, attended the Sunday evening service in the Salvation Army citadel on Clarence street, the next day. During the meeting she became converted, and next morning told the manager of her company that she would leave the stage. She was first attracted to the Army while playing in a Quebec town, and on Sunday evening was dining in a local hotel when she heard the London citadel band playing in the street. She immediately left the table and followed the band to the citadel. Major and Mrs. McGillivray spoke to her during the meeting and she expressed a desire to be prayed for. On leaving London the next morning Major McGillivray gave her a letter of introduction to Miss Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in New York. Miss Plasdale has cancelled all her future engagements, and will leave the stage when she arrives in New York. She purposes engaging in some line of religious work.

Mr. Goodwill Treasurer

Of the Associated Children's Aid Societies of Ontario

Mr. E. L. Goodwill was re-elected Treasurer of the Associated Children's Aid Societies of Ontario at the annual conference, held in Toronto on Tuesday and Wednesday. In addition he presented a paper on "Some Needed Changes in Treasury Legislation in Rural Districts of Ontario". The conference was held in the new Speaker's chambers at the Legislative buildings and was presided over by Mr. W. L. Scott, K.C., of the Railway Board, who was elected President. Reports were presented from all parts of Ontario and one result was that the various representatives of the Societies came away with a new interest in the Children's Aid work, especially in view of the increased area this year, Rainy River and Algoma districts being added. The work of the past year has been extensive and successful and even better results are expected during 1912. Mr. Goodwill's paper was particularly appropriate and interesting, in view of the increased work in rural districts proposed for 1912.

A RUSH FOR "SYLVIA"

Large Advance Sale of Seats at Box Office To-day

The advance sale of seats for "Sylvia," at the Grand Opera House, this morning, indicates a crowded house on Monday night next. Those who wish to see this dainty operetta should not delay in securing their seats. The music in "Sylvia" is delightful. Some of the songs that are prominent in the score are: "Forever, Love Forever," a tenor solo, sung by Mr. Harold Lee; "The Gay West Wind," by Mr. A. New, and "I am a Man of Consequence," by Mr. E. Hanrahan; "My Sailor Lad," and "If I Were Not I," by Miss V. Devlin, (Sylvia), and "Though Love Be Blind" by Miss J. Delaire. The choruses are equally appealing and should be given a good reception.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

To-night, at 8 o'clock, the annual Canadian Hexathlon contest will be contested at the local Association. The Hexathlon contest is composed of 60and 100 yard potato races, running high jump, standing broad jump, 8 lb. shot put, fence vault. Last year the local boys won 7th place in the All-Canada contest, and they are out this year to land the silverware. The following men will compete: G. Reid, H. Long, B. Hamilton, O. Cavanah, A. Horsfield, K. Brown, C. Brown, C. Arnold, M. Huyake, W. Carruthers, D. Canniff, H. Hill, C. Stewart, A. Darling, M. Reese.

Friday night the Nemo and Hustlers will meet in a city league basketball game. The Nemos spilled the beans last time out, and are out to repeat the trick on the Hustlers Friday night.

Don't forget the big Canoe Club meeting Saturday night at 8.00. This club should be one of the biggest features of the outdoor work this season, so be on hand if you want to get it on a good thing.

RED MILL THEATRE

The Red Mill Theatre is keeping up its reputation for attractive programmes. Next week Miss Gertrude Ogden, a well-known soprano singer of New York, will appear at every performance at the Red Mill, a feature that will doubtless be appreciated by the many patrons of this popular theatre. Miss Ogden is a high-priced artist, but the Red Mill management believes that nothing is too good for their patrons.

EXCITING CHASE OF SMUGGLERS

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT., APRIL 11.—When a strange water craft embered at the end of Grand Island, apparently from the Canadian side, the United States Customs police forthwith put out in another boat, and there was an exciting chase among the ice floes, which threatened to bear down on the frail motor boats and take them helplessly over the Falls. Finally, the unknown craft ran full speed towards the Falls, approaching so close that the police dare not go, then dodging behind an ice floe, the smugglers disappeared. One hundred and fifty pounds of opium, apparently intended for the United States shore were found among the ice on Grand Island, where the boat had anchored.

Benefit Was Great Success

The benefit concert at the Grand Opera House last night for Miss Constance Crawley and her English Company was a success artistically as well as financially. There was a splendid attendance and the proceeds will be enough, it is hoped, to start the company over their financial difficulty and to resume their tour. Their vehicle last night, "What Every Girl" proved a delight, clean, sparkling farce, capitally presented by the Company and the audience was sincere in its hearty applause. During the evening Mr. Arthur Meade, Miss Crawley's leading man, made a brief speech, in which he expressed the hearty thanks of the Company to Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons, the members of the Orchestra, and the citizens of Peterborough for the assistance they had rendered them.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

THURSDAY, APRIL 11, 1912

IRELAND'S DAY-DAWN.

To-day, it is hoped, will be the beginning of "a great day for Ireland." The Home Rule Bill is introduced into the Imperial parliament to-day in spite of the Ulster veto, issued at Belfast. It is expected that the debate on the first reading will be continued till the middle of next week. The second reading, however, will provoke a more prolonged debate and will develop the real fight. The Unionists and the enemies of British fair play and the principle of self government as we have it in Canada, will resort to every possible form of obstruction. The application of the closure may be necessary to limit the debate and bring on a decisive division within a reasonable time.

GOOD ROADS AND GOOD STREETS

The Canadian Highway Association is offering prizes to boys and girls for the best essay on the subject of "What Good Roads mean for Canada." And for the adults of Canada, including governments and municipal authorities, the treatment that suggests itself is a club. Why? Because adults, including governments and municipal authorities, deliberately shut their eyes to the economic, social and national importance of good roads. They criminally abstain from taking the first steps that lead to the municipal, and through this collectively, national possession of good roads. They ignore the fact that, as supremely important as is adequate railway transportation, good highway transportation facilities are infinitely more important. They are more universally and more frequently used, thus representing the idea of the greatest good to the greatest number—when we reflect upon the millions that use highways compared with the few that use railways. Access to railways is over highways, access to home markets is over highways, access to one's neighbours, to churches, and to all the various activities that enliven rural communities is over highways.

If one individual farmer would sit down and count the cost, cast up the loss—loss of time, loss for wear and tear of vehicles, horseflesh, etc., and multiply his total by the millions of farmers of Canada, he would be astounded at the total. And he might reasonably add to the total the great amount of money and labour relatively and absolutely wasted in so-called road making; in making roads no better year after year.

It needs little argument to show that money and labour spent upon streets and highways, that is not expended upon right principles, with a reasonable idea of permanence as the ruling factor, is wasted. In this respect, Peterborough, which is a type of urban municipalities generally, as well as, in result, of rural municipalities also, is an example. We have been in corporate existence for more than sixty years, and we have not one lineal yard of street ,built according to the simplest first principles of good highway construction—with due regard to foundation, drainage, gradient, crown and driving surface. If on an average we have spent $10,000 a year on our streets in the sixty years since we were incorporated as a town, we have spent $600,000 altogether. A mile of permanent street—good lasting macadam, thoroughly and scientifically built—costs, at a generous estimate, $4,000. At this figure, which is excessive, if anything, we have spent in the past sixty years enough money to thoroughly macadamize every inch of the sixty miles of city streets twice over, with $120,000 to spare. Or if we had built these streets once we should have had left $360,000 for maintenance, thus making them practically permanent. Or if it cost only as much for maintenance as construction, we should have enough over to have built over fifty miles of excellent permanent sidewalks, even if they had cost $2,400 per mile.

We have reason to be proud of our permanent sidewalks. They are good for another generation anyway, and may last, many of them, much longer. Why will they last? Why are they satisfactory, and why do they represent money well spent? Simply because they were permanently built, with good materials, and in a workmanlike manner. If they had been built on the same principles as our streets, with no regard to permanence, with bad or no foundation, and with bad materials, they would have been as unsatisfactory as our highways. If, instead of good honest cement, ordinary lime had been used in building our granolithic foot pavements, the walks would have to be renewed every year as have been our streets, which have been the dumping ground of bad street building materials. Anyone who takes the trouble to think will see that we have wasted a small mint of money on street expenditure.

In the respects that have been specified, Peterborough is no worse or better than the average urban municipality or rural municipality. We have, all over Canada from coast to coast, from the hinterland to the lakes, the same saturnalia of money-waste in dabbling with street and highway construction. If, in Peterborough alone there has been a waste—judging by permanent results—of $600,000 in sixty years—what must have been the enormous waste in the whole country in a corresponding time!

This consideration gives natural importance to the question of good highways, and demonstrates the truth of the saying that what is worth doing is worth doing well; and we shall have no improvement till we can hammer into the heads of municipal and other governments the principle of permanency—doing highway building work that will last.

The provincial government in the road making it does in the older sections of the province, is building the highways it assumes responsibility for, with due regard to permanence, but it is doing far too little. It is not taking seriously its responsibility in regard to constructing highways. If it spent a million a year, and could persuade or compel the municipalities to do likewise, instead of spreading a million over a dozen years, we should see results.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The spring floods are axe-idents—they came as a result of too free use of the axe on forest growth.

Extremists may claim that the deference to authority shown during the British coal strike is a sign of slavery inherent under a monarchy. Well, if it is; slavery to law and order is better than slavery to uncontrolled passions and individual self-assertion.

What a howl would have gone up, remarks the Brockville Recorder, had a Liberal Government apointed a Yankee head of the Forestry Department? The recent appointment is following Tory precedent. When a bookkeeper was wanted for Ontario asylums, Hon. W. J. Hanna imported a man from Michigan.

We cannot refrain, says the Montreal Herald, from asking the people of the West Indies whether they are really prepared to throw a market of nine hundred thousand people open to a nation of nine millions. For guidance in the settlement of this question they might read (mutatis mutandis) a number of speeches by Messrs. Borden, Foster, White and others, uttered during the summer of 1911.

Rudyard Kipling's "dropping into poetry," after the saying of Silas Wegg, on the Home Rule matter, is, as the London Advertiser puts it, "bad history, bad temper, bad blood" and it might have added, bad poetry. Kipling has come down to the class generally reached by those who do not know when to quit. If his Home Rule poem is a sample of his highest present poetical capability, there's a place on the shelf waiting for him.

THE GREENE MUSIC COMPANY IN LINDSAY

The Lindsay Post says:

Mr. R. C. Braund, president of the Greene Music Co., Peterborough, was in Lindsay on Tuesday for the purpose of selecting new quarters for their branch store in this town.

The Greene Music Co. opened their branch here less than two years ago, but the business has grown to such an extent that the present quarters on William street became too small.

The company has secured a lease of that section of the old Y.M.C.A. building, corner Kent and Lindsay streets, and adjoining W. R. Keys' hardware store. This will be fitted up in modern style, with a beautiful front, and the interior will be in keeping with the finest of the city stores. The apartments overhead will be fitted up as a conservatory for recitals, etc. Work will start on the structure at once and will be pushed to a speedy completion.

MR. BORDEN PAID $400 DUTY ON COURT FINERY

London Truth Takes a Rise Out of Canada's Protectionist Government Leader—He Got His Gold Lace, Cocked Hat and Sword From London.

LONDON, April 11.—London Truth says the Protectionists like to argue that the foreigner pays the duty. Premier Borden is now aware it isn't so. He has just imported a Windsor uniform, also a cocked hat and sword. Before he could get them through the Customs house at Ottawa he had to pay nearly eighty pounds sterling in duties enacted in the tariff to protect the Canadian manufacturers of Windsor uniforms and cocked hats from the pauper labour of London. The Dominion statesman naturally likes to have his photograph taken in a Windsor uniform. Its first wearing, after the preliminary trying on for the edification of the family circle, is invariably when the proud possessor goes to the photographer's. To some minds the picture, when complete, may appear an imposing symbol of imperial unity, but such minds are more common in England than in the colonies. In a country where during the last thirty years there have been at least four public subscriptions to relieve impecunious statesmen, including two Premiers, the feeling is likely to be that the Ministers might expend their salaries on better objects than swords, cocked hats, and gold lace.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS APPEAL AGAINST NEW MEDICAL BILL

That those practitioners who bring about cure through "appeals to Almighty God" should not be forced to qualify under the Ontario Medical Council's new Act is a widely supported request made to the special committee of the Legislature by the Christian Science Church.

Dr. Jamieson, M.P.P., who has fathered the several changes in the Medical Act to provide for the administration of osteopaths under certain restrictions, explained that a special meeting of the committee will be held on Thursday next to consider the objections of the chiropractors and the Christian Science healers and others who assert that the bill debars them from the right to practise in Ontario.

"It will probably be found," he said, "that the measure only restricts them from professional recognition in the courts of law should they attempt to sue for unpaid fees. I do not suppose that they could be prohibited from practising their various methods of cure."

It was hinted, however, that when the committee meets, there will be suggestions made that the Christian Scientists be permitted to engage in cure through mental suggestion, but that the bill should make no provision for their right to compensation.

RESPECT FOR LAW AND ORDER IN BRITISH COAL STRIKE

The English papers which are now coing to hand confirm the impression which was given by the cables, of the astonishing orderliness and sobriety of the English coal strike. And in order to reach a full conception of the significance of that tremendous industrial phenomenon of our time, labour's greatest militant operation in the history of Britain, we shall have to take into consideration the causes and consequences of the decency with which it was conducted.

While we all admit—including the great majority of labour men themselves, who are on the average fully as law-abiding and patriotic citizens as the capitalists who employ them—that strikes ought to be conducted with no other weapon than that of collective abstinence from work, in actual practice, as we know, it does not generally work out that way. A strike is a fight, and when men get into a fight in which the bread-and-butter of themselves and their wives and little ones is at stake they do not always strictly obey the rules. Excluding such cases as the McNamaras, where it was the outcome of deliberate and determined policy, violence is usually the result either of indiscipline or of desperation. The British coal miners seem to have been remarkably free from both of these weaknesses. Their sense of their own power has an element of the sublime in it. At the close of their ten weeks' fight the majority of the rank and file were anxious to go on with the struggle to the bitter end, and as a matter of policy, would probably have been justified in so doing, but for the appalling effect that such action would have had on the nation's industries. With such a perfect confidence in the strength of one's cause, the temptation to back it up by dynamite and terrorism is not very great.

As for the results of this good behaviour, the most immediate consequences are to be found in the complacent attitude of the British public towards the gigantic concessions to labour's deands with which the strike has ended. These concessions are not a mere matter of the compulsory surrender of one group of capitalists; they are made by the state itself, and they commit the Government of Great Britain from henceforth and for all time to an acceptance of the principle of the minimum wage whenever it may be found necessary in the interests of the workers. Press and public alike have been singularly tolerant, even sympathetic, under the burdens which have been imposed upon all Great Britain by this revolt of the miners. That sympathy could have been alienated by the slightest disposition to violence and crime; and had that occurred, whatever the ultimate result of the strike in wages and schedules, there would have been no political advantages gained for the labour cause.

The ultimate results will go a good deal further. For one thing we shall with this example in mind, demand a considerably larger degree of peacefulness from other bodies of strikers in future; and the labour leaders, themselves, seeing the value of decency in the British coal case, and the extreme folly of dynamite in the case of the Structural Iron-workers of America, will be apt to inculcate sobriety in their own rank and file, rather more carefully than they have done in the past. And one most instructive comparison will not fail to be drawn between the mining industry in Great Britain and the mining industry in America. We are constantly told by the advocates of the American mine-owners that the conditions of the industry itself necessitate the employment of a reckless, lawless, dare-devil class of low-grade labourers. Now coal miners are very much the same all over the world, and it is going to be very hard to resist a suspicion that the violent character of the American coal miner is largely due not to the nature of the industry, but to the way it is carried on—to the horrible and unnecessary risks to which the worker is subjected, the passion of the mine owners for securing the lowest-priced labour that can be lured to America from the wilderness of Europe, the repressive policy towards every effort of the men to improve themselves, and increase their self-reliance, and the hectoring domination of the state legislatures by which any proper regulation of mining conditions has been evaded. The coal mining industry was one of the first in England, in which the principle of the State's obligation to safeguard the worker, was put into effect; in America it is likely to be one of the last.—Montreal Herald.

BORDERING ON THE MIRACULOUS

Could Not Work All Summer, and Doctor Failed to Help, but Cure Was Quick When He Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Benton, N. B., April 10.—(Special.)—Bordering on the miraculous is the cure of John McElroy, a young man well-known here. He was suffering from heart trouble and was so bad that all last summer he was not able to do a day's work. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him. In telling the story of his cure, Mr. McElroy says:

"I went to a doctor who said I had palpitation, but his medicine did not seem to reach the spot. I suffered for over a year and all last summer I was not able to do a day's work. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I felt heavy and sleepy after meals and I was always tired and nervous. I perspired freely with the least exertion.

"After I had finished taking the doctor's medicine, and as I felt no better, I read in an almanac what Dodd's Kidney Pills could do and made up my mind to try them. Before I had finished the first box I felt different, and by the time the second was half gone I was working in the woods and doing good work."

JUNIOR CAMP RE-UNION AT Y.M.C.A. A SUCCESS

SLEPT IN TENTS

The Junior Camp Re-union was held at the Y.M.C.A. last night and it certainly was a great success. Over 20 of the boys who attended camp at Sandy Point last year along with several prospective campers for the 1912 camp, gathered at the "Y," and jumped into their gym togs and proceeded to erect two of the large tents in the boys' game room. After the beds were carefully prepared in the tents, all adjourned to the "ball yard" (the gymnasium) where the famous camp baseball teams had a battle royal. The camp champions, "The Millionaires" put a crimp in the Hustlers, but it took them two extra innings to do the trick. Then the "Money Kings" took the "Dubs" to task and again the "Millionaires" won, in spite of the fact that some one was unkind enough to say that the game was bought by the "Millionaires".

After the ball game the usual rush was made for Clear Lake (the plunge bath) and everybody enjoyed a good swim, even if the bath was not as large as the lake. After the swim the camp fire was the next stunt, and the corn poppers were kept busy for some time. Following this the usual "Ring" around the fire was enjoyed, and then the devotional exercises were conducted and everybody hunted up his little cot and turned in for the night. The slumbers of some of the campers were disturbed by others who had the habit of walking in their sleep.

At 6.00 a.m. the call for breakfast was heard and everybody got busy. After breaking camp all adjourned to the Lake for the morning dip, after which breakfast was served. Everything passed off without a hitch, and if every day in camp is anything like last night's affair the camp for 1912 should be a record breaker.

PLAY BALL!

Base in the American and National League Opened To-day

Special to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, N.Y., APRIL 11.—The baseball season in the big league opened to-day with Mayor Gaynor pitching the first ball in the game between the Giants and Brooklyn, in the National League, and Judge McCall opening the game in the American League between the New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox. It was evident at the very start that considerable betting would be done on the ball games this year, owing to the legal discouragement of betting on horse racing. Book makers will not be admitted to the ball parks, but betting will be carried on heavily in pool-rooms, hotels and restaurants. The weather was superb here to-day and great crowds attended the opening games.

Turf Club Revival

Meetings Will Likely Be Held This Summer

There is every probability of a revival of the Turf Club meets this summer at the Exhibition Park, if the plans of a handful of enthusiasts carry. The Club is being talked of at present, and arrangements have been completed for a conference with the Fair directors, for a lease of the track for the summer. If suitable arrangements can be made matinees will be held during the spring and summer, with a big meet a probability. Those behind the revival of the sport are interested for the love of the sport alone, and not that there is any likelihood of remuneration.

NEWS FROM THE LEAGUE CIRCUIT

The Ottawa Citizen says:

It looks as if the Canadian Baseball League would be one of the greatest minors in America this year. Last summer the league got going on an unpretentious basis and managed to survive the season. Some of the clubs met with financial reverses, but the league got through all right and had the satisfaction of being raised this spring to Class "C" by the National Commission. Small salaries were paid last summer and the teams consisted, in many cases, of graduates of the Eastern or Western Canada League.

But one short year has made a vast difference, and the prospects of the Canadian League are now so good that all the cities represented are spending small fortunes in their efforts to place a winning team on the field. Salaries will be greater than ever before, the games will draw much larger crowds and the league, taken from top to bottom, will be the finest that has ever been attempted in Eastern Canada. All the clubs appear to be well fixed financially, for cash has been the smallest consideration in the purchase of players. The Ottawa Club has already blown in $2,000 for players, and instead of raiding the Canadian cities, as was done last year, the Western Ontario clubs are aiming higher, with the result that they are now after the real big fellows.

The Ottawa Club caused a stir when it signed up "Lightning Louie" Cook to captain the local team, for Cook has had big league offers, and the opposing clubs realized that the Ottawas would not get him for a song. The signing of Draper, Hannifan, Rowe, Shortsleeve, Burke and Collingswood set the Hamilton, London, Brantford and St. Thomas' magnates talking, and now along comes London with the announcement that they have practically signed Fraal Bowerman, formerly of the New York and Boston Nationals, who caught Christy Mathewson when "Big Six" first "came out." Bowerman went from New York to Boston and was for a time in the American Association. He is now looking around for a club in which to invest some of his big league earnings and he is satisfied that the Canadian League offers attractive inducements. London is said to have offered Bowerman a share in the club and $300 per month. If Bowerman signs he will be an immense attraction throughout the circuit.

Another big leaguer in the Canadian Association will be "Smiling Al" Orth, who has closed to play with Berlin. Orth twirled for several seasons with the New York Americans, and was known far and wide as the "curveless wonder." The coming of these stars to the Canadian League just goes to illustrate the remarkable advancement of the compact circuit, in which the Capital will be represented.

Next year, if the baseball boom continues, one will probably hear of Rube Marquard signing with Ottawa, "Three Finger" Brown with Hamilton, Joe Tinker with St. Thomas, Ty. Cobb with Peterborough, and Hans Wagner with the Berlin Dutchmen. With Shaughnessy at the helm in 1913, however, Ottawa will be able to give them all cards and spades and beat them to the pennant.

Hamilton Spectator:

Manager Knotty Lee, of the Hamilton Baseball Club, arrived in the city yesterday, and has already settled down to a pile of work that has to be cleaned up before they layers report on April 24th. Knotty is in fine shape after his vacation, which lasted through the winter months, and although about twenty pounds overweight he expects to get rid of this surplus before May 14. Knotty can see nothing but a most successful season for the Canadian league this year. He is greatly pleased with the addition of Peterborough and Ottawa to the circuit, and expects both cities to prove rattling good ball towns. "To my mind there is not a weak spot in the circuit. Ottawa is going to prove just as good as London or Hamilton. Peterborough will be good this year, and in anther year will be every bit as strong a town as Brantford. The latter city, I expect to prove the surprise of the league this year. Baseball has taken an immense hold in Tom Nelson's town, and just watch near if it doesn't prove just about as good a city as there is in the circuit. Berlin is going to show us something this year, too. With a brand new ball park and adequate stands, the Dutchmen will be on the job all the time, setting a merry clip for Guelph and St. Thomas to follow, and if the latter two towns are given winning aggregations Berlin will have little, if anything, on them."

The London men who are expected to report here between April 23 and 29 are as follows:

Pitchers—Matthew Hynes, Jos Zabell, Tom Silcox, Ernie Merritt, John Farquhar.

Catchers—Manager Frank Bowerman, Rooke and McWhirter.

First baseman—Leroy Bierbauer and S. W. White.

Shortstops—Harry Brant, Thomas Conyngham.

Third baseman—Wm. Potter, Edward Beauclair.

Outfielders—William Pancrats, William Lane, J. R. Erynes, George H. Sparks.

Ottawa Free Press: President Sam Lichtenhein, of the Montreal baseball club, was in the city yesterday and stated he would like to sell George Leclaire, the well-known French-Canadian pitcher, who has gone south with the Royals for several seasons, to the Ottawa Canadian League club, a addition he offers Catcher Bridges, another spring training recruit and Pressey, a big pitcher Pittsburg drafted from a Class C. League and turned over to Montreal. Mr. Lichtenhein states he has released Beall and Davidson, both of whom are sought after by New England clubs, but would like to see them here. He asks $200 each for Leclaire, Pressey and Bridges. The Ottawa club may consider the acquisition of Leclaire on account of his nationality as well as ability.

The Montreal owner was also willing to turn over one or two of his surplus men to Ottawa with strings attached, but the Canadian League does not allow any of its clubs to be used as farms for higher class leagues nor accept players under optional agreement from Class A. and B. clubs. This rule went into effect this season as Toronto, Buffalo and Montreal wanted to use the Canadian League as a farming ground for their promising youth material.

Berlin Telegraph: Manager Deneau has landed three more "Bees," in Barnes, an infielder, Browff an outfielder, and Belts a catcher. They are all from New York city, and promise to be real classy ball players. These men should make a hit with the Bees, their names all start with B, and with Bullock, Burns, "Teddy" Brown and Fred Bramble, the Busy Bees will have a bunch of real bees and not in name only.

When the ball season opens in Berlin on June 6, the local member, Dr. Lackey, and the Hon. Dr. Beaume, of Windsor, will officiate, along with Mayor Schmals and the aldermen and the park commission. The event will not only open the baseball season, but one of the finest public amusement parks in the Dominion.

That the Busy Bee ball club is popular, is quite evident, as in making arrangements with hotels on the road, one of the hotelmen stated that he would have the Berlin club only stop at his hotel.

Hamilton Spectator: The Canadian League stars of 1911 who were drafted by the big leagues are more than holding their own in their berths.

Andy Kyle and Tony Grieve are both with the Columbus American Association team and will hold regular positions.

Lefty Smith, the southpaw wonder, late of Brantford, now with Baltimore, held New York Giants to only one hit in three innings at the end of a game on Sunday.

Chaput, the boy with the pitching record of the Canadian League, has been placed at the head of the pitching staff of the Birmingham, Ala., team of the Southern League for his wonderful showing against the big teams which trained in the south.

Fred Barton, of Hamilton, drafted by Toledo, has just reported, and it only remains for him to show them. "Scotty" Cameron, the speed marvel, will not report to Baltimore until June, and it is doubtful whether he will be assigned the shortstop position, as Manager Dunn has several shortstops who will be hard to beat out, but "Scotty" may be carried as utility man for a while. Joe Dunn has dropped out of sight entirely, and no word has come from Manager Dunn's training camp as to what became of him.

McLAUGHLIN MODEL 43

$2,250 F. O. B. OSHAWA

The automobilist who delights in a motor that hums a steady though quiet tune—that is responsive to his controlling touch—that seems to laugh at hills and sandy roads—and who appreciates the little conveniences that add to his comfort—the Self-Starter, the complete Electric Light Plant, with separate dynamo—such a man should inspect McLaughlin-Buick Model "43".

The 40 to 50 H.P. Buick Motor provides ample reserve power for all emergencies.

The dependability to the manufacturer is more to be trusted than the cleverest arguments of the salesman. That is why the cautious purchaser of an automobile places more reliance on the reputation of the McLaughlin Car and its makers than on the most glowing promises of a salesman, however well they may be founded.

Your future satisfaction demands that your choice be a McLaughlin-Buick.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES

FILLET OF BEEF.

Sear and brown in a skillet, place on a rack over boiling water in the fireless cooker and let it remain all day. At dinner time it will be tender, juicy and still warm. While the remainder of the dinner is prepared in the oven make brown gravy in the skillet in which the meat was seared.

TRIFLES.

Cut one sponge cake into thin slices and put a layer of jam or jelly between. Then pile them together in a glass dish. Blend one and a half tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with one pint of milk and boil for eight minutes, stirring all the time. Take off the fire and stir in yolk of one egg and one tablespoonful of sugar. Cook for two minutes; then pour over the sponge cake. Sprinkle finely chopped almonds over this. Beat the white of the egg to a stiff froth with a little powdered sugar, and pile roughly on top of the almonds. Serve cold.

CREAMED CHICKEN.

Cut the white meat of a roasted or boiled chicken into dice. Cook together in a saucepan a tablespoonful of butter and the same quantity of flour and pour upon them when smooth a cup of milk and a gill of cream into which a pinch of soda has been stirred. When a smooth white sauce is made by this process season it to taste and stir into it the cut up chicken. Cook until the meat is smoking hot, stirring all the time; then pour in gradually, beating steadily, a beaten egg yolk. Stir until very hot, but do not allow to boil. Then pour upon squares of crustless toast or into pastry shells.

SOMERSET OMELETTE.

Mix three-fourths teaspoonful of salt with two and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour, and pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, one cupful of cold milk; then add three eggs well beaten. Heat an iron frying-pan, put in two tablespoonfuls of butter, and when butter is melted pour in the mixture. As soon as it begins to cook, scrape from bottom of pan and lift with a griddle-cake turner, so that uncooked part may run underneath to be cooked. Add one tablespoonful of butter as needed to prevent the mixture from sticking, and continue lifting the cooked part until mixture is firm throughout. Place on a hotter part of range to brown underneath. Roll, and turn on a hot platter. Garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Prizes May Be Offered To School Children For Designs

Of The Peterborough Industrial Fair Grounds—Splendid Meeting of the Directors Was Held Last Night—Progress Being Made.

SPRING STALLION SHOW

Judging from the work accomplished, by the attendance of members, and the enthusiasm shown the regular monthly meetings of the Fair Directors are accomplishing results which should bear their fruition in making the exhibition for 1912 the most successful yet held. There is work accomplished at every meeting, and new ideas are cropping up for which ample time is provided for the consideration of the advisability of their being put into practice. Last night's meeting in Hooper's Palm Parlours was attended by President J. H. Garbutt, secretary; F. J. A. Hall, and Messrs. J. Cruikshanks, J. Storey, J. J. Turner, Sr., R. Denne, Geo. A. Gillespie, R. M. Glover, Robert Neill, Frank Wise, Jas. T. C. Lang, Chas. Moore, John Cox, and T. H. Hooper.

From the business already accomplished and from the prospects the directors hope to see realized, it would seem that the future was never brighter. The directors are all working industriously even at this early date, and they have begun arrangements which, if materialized, will make the Exhibition stronger and better than ever.

Rented for Circus.

Mr. Garbutt stated that Mr. Turner had closed an agreement with Ringling Bros. for the rental of the fair grounds for the circus on June 15.

To Lower Grand Stand.

Mr. Denne said that the platform in front of the grandstand should be lowered this year, and should be enclosed by a fence of some kind to keep the spectators back from it. A space could be left between the fence and the grandstand, allowing an almost perfect control of the crowd. It would especially keep the children away from the performers, and, in addition, those near at hand, would be able to see the performance in comfort.

Spring Stallion Show.

Another thing we want to discuss is a Spring Stallion Show, said Mr. Garbutt. There was a motion made some time ago that this be dispensed with, but a number of horsemen and others have asked me about this. The Government pays us 50 per cent. for prizes amounting up to $100. Over that we have to pay for ourselves. Last year's show cost a total of $94, and the cost to us was a little more than $13.00.

Mr. Lang moved that the original motion, to cancel this show, be rescinded.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Glover, seconded by Mr. Storey, that a Spring Stallion Show be held in Peterborough, on Saturday, May 4th.—Carried.

Mr. Denne stated that the Lindsay Stallion Show is being held on the last Saturday of April.

Moved by Mr. Denne, seconded by Mr. Moore, that a committee composed of Messrs. Storey, Garbutt and Cruikshanks be appointed to make preparations for the show. Mr. Denne and Mr. Cox were added to the committee.

Mr. Storey was chosen chairman.

It was decided to write to the horsemen of the district, giving the information in regard to the show, with a view to interesting them in it.

To avoid crowding in purchasing tickets at the entrance to the grounds on the day of the show, Mr. Glover suggested that a director go down to the grounds on each street car, and sell tickets to those going to the show

Track for Turf Club.

A letter from Mr. J. M. Brooks, on behalf of the Peterborough Turf Club stated that it was their desire to lease the grounds for the summer, for the uses of the club. Mr. Brooks and five others have received a charter for the clubs.

Moved by Mr. Neill, seconded by Mr. Gillespie, that Mr. Glover, Mr. Cox and Mr. Turner be a committee to meet representatives of the Turf Club in a conference, in regard to the lease.—Carried.

Mr. Wise suggested that four prizes of $5.00 each be offered to the school children of the city for a competition of plans of a layout of the Fair grounds. The idea is to secure the ideas of the children for the laying out of buildings, show rings, etc., and that four equal prizes be given to the four best plans; that they be received in June, and the plans of the winners be hung at the Exhibition. The suggestion was favourably received by the directors, and will be further considered at an early meeting.

Mr. Storey and Mr. Cruikshanks were delegated to act on behalf of the directors, in presenting to Mrs. Robt. Leary and family a memorial from the directors. The work was performed by Mr. T. Quartermaine, and has been particularly well executed.

On motion of Mr. Storey, Mr. Gillespie and Mr. Neill were appointed to confer with the Peterborough Radial Railway, for the purpose of enlisting their aid in the Exhibition.

The meeting then adjourned.

WHY HESITATE

An Offer That Involves No Money Risk If You Accept It.

We are so positive our remedy will completely relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish it free of all cost if it fails.

Constipation is commonly caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine. To expect a cure you must therefore tone up and strengthen those organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our guarantee. They are eaten like candy, and are particularly good for children. They seem to act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on the other organs. They do not purge or cause other inconvenience. We will refund your money if they do not overcome chronic or habitual constipation and thus aid to relieve the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments. Try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Three sizes, 10c., 25 cents and 50c. Sold only at our store.—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

Death Was Accidental

"We, the jury empanelled to enquire into the death of George William Rumble, are of the opinion that he came to his death in an accidental manner by either falling or jumping from No. 11 westbound passenger train on the line of the G.T.R., and in our opinion no blame can be attached to any G. T. R. employee in regard to the accident. In our opinion, a little more courtesy should be exercised by certain G.T.R. officials when information in reference to accidents is asked for, and especially by relatives of victims of accidents."

The above verdict was rendered Tuesday evening by the Coroner's Jury empanelled at Belleville, to inquire into the death of George Rumble of Trenton. Deceased was well known in Peterborough, having resided here for a short time. He met death in Belleville, on Saturday evening last, in an accidental manner by either jumping or falling from a G. T. R. passenger train.

Report of Ontario Education Association Meeting—Importance of Medical Inspection — Mothers Lax in Their Duties to Children —Manual Training in Schools

"HOME WORK IS INHUMAN"

TORONTO, April 11. — "Home work is the most arid, delusive, inhuman, inconsistent thing that has ever been perpetrated," declared Mr. Geo. H. Locke, Chief Librarian of Toronto, in his address before the Kindergarten Department at yesterday's session of the Ontario Educational Association's conference at the University.

"Everybody knows that home work is dishonest, and anything tending to dishonesty should be abolished," he declared. "Home work is not successful because the child has no interest in it. Mistakes are made, not because the child does not know better, but because they have lost interest in the work."

Individuality Needed.

"We want each kindergarten room, each kindergarten grade, to differ from one another. We want each to have its own individuality," said Mr. Locke.

"The time to begin to systematize education is right at the beginning or at the kindergarten stage.

"But the education which places a uniform system on children is destructive of individuality. System, as such, will turn out only an average citizen, but the system which tends to the development of the child's individuality, which is the basis of individuality in manhood, and of progressive adult activity, will develop a high class of citizen.

"There is nothing in the kindergarten grades which is not in the so-called higher grades. The cleavage is not between the grades, but in the minds of the people.

"Teachers must begin to realise the meaning of kindergarten education. Its ideal is the salvation of the individuality, and that is the ideal of all education."

To Develop Self-reliance.

Another object of the kindergarten was to develop self-reliant boys and girls. Participation is a very important phase of the child's eduaction.

"You cannot expect boys and girls to develop unless they take part in the school work. A great number of pupils take no further part in the school than to answer questions. Children should be trained to feel that they have a part in the school and encouraged to make suggestions and have the right to speak, feeling that the teachers will take notice of what they say."

Develop Constructive Faculty.

The environment of the boy or girl of to-day is a vastly different thing to that of young people years ago, and their training will have to correspond. Mr. James H. Wilkinson pointed this fact out very forcibly to the members of the Manual Training section. The constructive faculty of a child, which had but little chance of development in modern life in cities, should be fostered and developed at school. The speaker recommended that the adoption of a system of building up models from certain types, starting, for example, with paper folding, and by simple addition and modifications to the simple folded "checker board," making up carts, tables, beds, baskets, cradles, wall pockets, sofas, etc.

1,400 Teachers Needed.

"We need immediately 1,400 teachers," declared Mr. Willis C. Froats before the Inspector's Department, "and from 500 to 800 more yearly than the present output.

"The Normal Schools must weed out yearly at least 15 per cent. of attendance simply as an educational protection. We are far behind where we should be and as people are the cause of this."

Immediate remedy or permanent suffering he warned as the result.

Schools are Feminized.

"Our schools are feminized," he declared. "Our age is materialistic. A salary of $550 to-day equals one of only $350 a few years ago. Progressive men will not enter the service. People will not recognize teaching as 'expert service.'"

Put Teaching in Civil Service.

To remedy this, teaching must be recognized as a civil service branch, salaries must be more adequate; the service must be rescued from the arena of party debate and contention; state-established township schools should be formed.

Mr. A. L. Campbell, M.A., P.S.I., suggested some radical reforms in this regard.

A Township Commission.

A Township School Commission to work in conjunction with local boards; the fixation of minimum salaries for the different grades of which the Government should pay half and townships one-half, and the establishing of postnormal and postfaculty extra-mural courses for 1st and 2nd class teachers, the minimum salary for these to be greater than for lower standards, where reforms demanding immediate attention.

Need of Medical Inspection.

"The Relation of Mouth Health to Child Development," was the subject of an address by Dr. W. H. Doherty, D.D.S.

"If the records of medical inspection be examined it will be found that the great bulk of the physical defects are in the respiratory tract," he said. "Of these the vast majority consist of diseased teeth and mouths.

"It is the common opinion among the laity that the child's first teeth are of no importance. The truth is that they ought to be preserved. The first teeth of the second set, the six-year molars, come at six years of age. But, while these are the most important teeth in the mouth, not one parent in a thousand recognizes them as teeth of the second set, and permit them to decay away with the neglected first teeth.

"These conditions are by no means confined to the poor. Oral sepsis is no respecter of persons. Some examinations of kindergarten children of all classes in twelve schools of this city showed the following results:

"Of 516 pupils, aged 5 to 7 years, examined, only 90 ever claimed the use of a toothbrush, although the evidence for the claim was lacking in many cases. The cavities numbered 2,634, and 413 teeth were permanently lost, while 256 had discharging abscesses, and all were more or less dirty.

"This in itself is enough to show that our school children cannot be in good health, and must suffer in mental power. Regular dental examination by qualified inspectors or surgeons should be made imperative."

The Need of Art.

"If Canada is ever to compete with the real art that characterizes the fine products of the old world, the art idea must be made more prominent in education," said Mrs. L. H. Mabee, of Kingston, speaking on "Art in the Public Schools," to the manual arts section. "We must endeavor to give our children the ability to see in their surroundings the true and beautiful, at the same time to give them the capacity to make a living. We need to-day trained and skilled hands more than we need fluent tongues. Nine-tenths of the children will never be scholars but will need a trained hand and eye to earn a living.

"We find few art specialists in our public schools. They go to the higher schools, where they get better salaries."

Where Women are Lacking.

Dr. Charles H. Hodgetts, eMdical Adviser of he Commission on Conservation, spoke to the training section on hygiene in infancy.

Ignorance of parents caused the death of many children whose lives should have been saved to the State, he said.

The Supply of Teachers.

"A Supply of Teachers for the Whole Province," was the subject of the address by Mr. A. H. U. Colquhoun, Deputy Minister of Education, before the Public School Department. The multiplication of pioneer settlements, and the great urban growth, make it necessary for urban school boards to continue offering greater inducements to retain their teachers, he said.

"It cannot be supposed that the Legislature, in applying State aid to the material aid of the north and west, will overlook provisions for schools," he remarked.

Speaking of the difficulties of obtaining certificated teachers in the schools of the remoter sections of the old counties, he said,: "No wise Government can contemplate with unconcern the growing up of children without any elementary education at all. The urban centres of the north pay good salaries, but the placing of certificated teachers in the lonely outposts is a serious task.

"It is commonplace to say that the tendency of the time is toward town life. We are apt to forget that with teachers this is merely in response to a law of progress, and our duty is not to cavil, but to put forth every effort to brighten and improve the lot of rural teachers.

"Thus far the trustees have done something to improve the financial position of the teacher. But the improvement has not kept pace with upward values. No science seems to have made greater strides than the science of extracting a maximum of teaching ability with a minimum of salary.

"The ingenuity which some rural boards display in keeping down expenses and in evading the spirit and letter of the law is a monument to their mental agility. When met by firmness from the inspector or the department they rush to their members of Parliament on both sides of the house for relief. Who are the sufferers in these cases? The scholars decline, and the parents have valid ground for discontent."

BAD COLD IN THE CHEST

"I am happy to tell you that I used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and was promptly cured of a very bad cold in the chest," writes Miss Josephine Gauthier, Dover South, Ont. You can depend on Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to relieve and cure all inflammations and irritations of the throat and bronchial tubes.

WEDDING BELLS

MURPHY—TREW.

The wedding of Miss Florence Myrtle Trew of Lakefield, to Mr. Allan W. Murphy, also of Lakefield, was solemnized yesterday by Rev. I. Couch at the parsonage of the George Street Methodist church. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy will reside in Lakefield.

STARK—LEPEER.

A quiet wedding was performed yesterday afternoon by Rev. I. Couch at the George St. Methodist church parsonage, when Miss Flossie V. Lepeer was united in marriage to Mr. John Starke. Both parties were from Norwood, where they will reside.

It Makes A Great Difference

In the health and strength of a nursing baby if the mother uses

CHILDREN AFFECTED
By Mother's Food and Drink.

Many babies have been launched into life with constitutions weakened by disease taken in with their mothers' milk. Mothers cannot be too careful as to the food they use while nursing their babes.

The experience of a Kansas City mother is a case in point:

"I was a great coffee drinker from a child, and thought I could not do without it. But I found, at last, it was doing me harm." (Tea is equally harmful because it contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee.) "For years I had been troubled with dizziness, spots before my eyes and pain in my heart, to which was added, two years later, a chronic sour stomach.

"The baby was born seven months ago, and almost from the beginning, she, too, suffered from sour stomach. She was taking it from me!

"In my distress I consulted a friend of more experience and she told me to quit coffee ;that coffee did not make good milk. I have since ascertained that it really dries up the milk.

"So I quit coffee and tried tea and at last cocoa. But they did not agree with me. Then I turned to Postum with the happiest results. It proved to be the very thing I needed. It not only agreed perfectly with baby and myself, but it increased the flow of my milk.

"My husband then quit coffee and used Postum and quickly got well of the dyspepsia with which he had been troubled. I no longer suffer from dizziness, blind spells, pain in my heart or sour stomach.

"Now we all drink Postum from my husband to my seven months' old baby. It has proved to be the best hot drink we have ever used. We would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever drank." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

DURING a recent big strike, one of the favourite comments of the bystanders was a criticism of the policy of the labour leaders. "They lash on the workmen," said the critics; "they talk to them about their wrongs and work them all up until they get unreasonable and hurt their own cause."

How much of that accusation is true, I don't know. I hope very little, for if there could be any meaner act than to misguide and mislead these poor folks in their struggle for betterment, and to exploit them for personal gain, I cannot conceive of it. But this is not a talk on strikes or labour leaders. What I want to bring home to you is this—how often you and I treat ourselves as the labour leaders are said to treat the workingmen.

Suppose that your good friend has said something to you which seemed unjust, and your friendly feeling for her has gone on strike, what does your reason, the leader, as it were, of your whole being, do? Does it tell the part of you which feels aggrieved, and resentful that perhaps your friend did not mean that remark in quite the sense you are inclined to take it; that she had some good grounds for speaking as she did; that you have often criticised her as harshly; that probably she spoke hastily and is sorrow now, just as you have often been; and that she has shown forbearance towards you a great many times?

Or, does your reason lash you on? Does it remind you that your friend is very ready to find fault with you lately? Does it suggest to you that since she has been so intimate with those rich neighbours of hers, she does not seem to care so much about you? Does it distort her speech into its worst possible meaning? In short, does it altogether encourage you in your determination to "get back at her," in some way or other?

If it does, are you any better than the labour leaders who lash on their followers by magnifying their wrongs and ignoring their rights?

The man who promulgated the famous Bromide and Sulphide theory says that everybody has some classification of the people in the world. There is the lover's division of all women into two classes—"Daisy, and the Other Kind"—and the fastidious person's classification—"There are two kinds of persons — those who take olives and those who don't." I think my favourite classification is—the people who reason themselves and the people who never do.

Which kind are you?

"Modern China" The Subject Of Interesting And Instructive Address

Mr. Harold B. Robertson, B.A., Renders Much Appreciated Discourse to Local Band of W.M.S.—A Large Attendance

The regular meeting of the Women's Missionary Society in connection with George street church, held last evening, was addressed by Mr. Harold D. Robertson, B.A., of China. Although having delivered several addresses in the city on topics of China, he still has much of interest to talk about. He has dealt with Chinese history, the educational situation, the missionary movement, and last evening he spoke on the subject, "Modern China." There was a large attendance and profound interest was evinced in his remarks.

The present revolution may be traced back to the first treaty made by China with a foreign country. Great Britain was the first country who insisted on carrying on trade with China, and when she (Great Britain), in 1842, succeeded in making trade with China, the seeds were sown and have grown into what is called the Chinese revolution. By this, I mean that the Chinese people have from that time felt, as it were, that their pride had been hurt, in that they were forced to do what they did not wish to do. Each treaty made in later years has simply intensified this thought in their minds—has simply made it necessary for them to express themselves in some form, and it has been done, in the form of which you are all aware. Young China has been forced to see that those who were in power and influence were unable to cope with the representatives of other nations. The young Chinese have, for several decades, been wondering why it is that China has got the worst of it with other nations. These questions, which have now been asked in China for a number of years, were partly answered by the Boxer rising. A certain element in China had got to the point where, in desperation, it said: "We will not have the foreigner in our land." You know the result—foreign armies were encamped in the Capital for several months, and China was forced to say, "You may come." Since that time the students and the young men of China have set themselves to learn what there is in their own country which makes it possible for foreigners to teach them as they do, and in addition, they studied foreign literature and customs, in order to understand the strength of other nations. There were, in China, four classes of people, the students, the farmers, the labourers and the merchants, and nothing was thought of the soldier, but since the Boxer rising the soldier has become a big man in China, and the one man who can bring the country out of its chaotic condition is Yuan Shi Kai, who was the first man to establish a modern army in China.

"The province in which our missionary work is carried on," he said, was the first spot in which the revolution started. This was caused by the students refusing to write on the government examinations. When the students came back from school on the last day of August, the people who were interested in the building of railroads, decided that the shops of Chengtu should be closed until the Viceroy had communicated with the authorities of Pekin and got a reply from them, agreeing to the demands.

While this was going on, the revolution broke out elsewhere and spread all over China. The first proclamation of it contained four stipulations: To banish the Manchus; to protect the foreigner, to establish the Han dynasty, and protection for all. This was sent through China and became the battle cry of the revolution. As you know, the old soldiers were composed of the worst of men and they went about looting and pillaging.

We have since heard that the evangelists are still carrying on their work and that there is a new spirit throughout the land, a spirit of freedom, a spirit which suggests that the Chinese are confident that their country will soon be a great nation.

It is evident from the remarks of missionaries in China to-day that the present time affords an opportunity for missionaries and for the preaching of the Gospel of Jesus Christ which has not been before the Christian church for nations. It is a fact that in many of the provinces of China the highest and most influential positions to-day are held by young men who have studied in foreign countries. It is felt that if the present crisis can be overcome it will be possible for foreigners to come into such close touch with the Chinese that they will be able to exert influence in advising and counselling those who are in important positions. This will alleviate sufferings, strengthen the characters and establish the ideals of these men who shortly will become the great men of China, and this leads me to say that the missionaries in China are under a great responsibility, such as they themselves feel scarcely able to meet. This makes it necessary that the church which stands behind the missionaries on the field, should realise the opportunity before their representatives in China, and realising this, pray that the God who has led us to that land to preach the message which Christ preached to us, may strengthen the minds of those men to make it possible for them in their day and generation to exert that influence which the Master would have them exert.

A MERCHANT in another town said that Semi-ready Tailoring was too good for his town.

We don't believe it!

We do know that nothing is too good for our customers, and that is why we always get the best the makers make.

Trouble with these "too good" men lies with themselves; they don't understand the service and satisfaction in high quality clothes; they don't understand the uplift feeling in every man. We all want the "something better" that stands out from the crowd.

L. M. M. BANQUET WAS A SUCCESS

Big Representation From Local Anglican Churches Were Present —Address of Field Secretary

The three local Anglican churches were well represented at the Laymen's Missionary Movement banquet which was held in St. John's school house, last evening. Over one hundred laymen were present, representing All Saints, St. Luke's, and St. John's Anglican churches of this city. A sumptuous repast, which was provided by the ladies of the congregation, preceded an interesting address by Mr. Allin.

Mr. G. C. Wainwright acted as chairman and toastmaster of the evening.

Mr. R. W. Allin, Field Secretary of the Missionary Society of the Church of England, gave a splendid address on the Canadian situation and problems

Influx of Americans.

The speaker, in his address, drew attention to the problem originating from the immigration of people from foreign lands into this young country, such as had never been equalled in the history of the world. In the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, seventy-four per cent. of the inhabitants were Americans, and seventy-four per cent. of these settlers from our sister States to the south had absolutely no use for religion. They displayed the utmost ignorance of all church work and imagined that a minister was one whose only purpose for visiting them was to get money.

Mr. W. F. Johnston, of St. John's, Mr. J. J. Turner of St. Luke's, and Mr. C. E. Sisson of All Saints', addressed the meeting briefly. All the speakers expressed themselves as being delighted with the manner in which the Laymen's Missionary Movement was coping with the work in the Northwest. Mr. J. J. Turner suggested that the affair take the form of an annual event.

Rev. Canon Davidson spoke briefly "Let us take the blood-red cross," said the speaker, in referring to the Union Jack, "and impress it upon our Canada." The speaker concluded his remarks by a patriotic appeal to those present to the preservation of the bonds of unity which bind the Empire together.

The musical programme was contributed to by Messrs Aldred, Chandler, Greenslade and Roberts. Mr. R. J. Devey presided at the piano.

SCHOOL CONCERT

The pupils of the Warsaw School held a concert in the school-room on the afternoon of the last day of school, Thursday, April 4, commencing at 2 p.m.

A large number of the parents and friends of the pupils were present, showing the interest taken in the school by those residing in the community.

The programme was lengthy and varied, consisting of choruses, recitations, dialogues, essays, and songs by the pupils and an address by the Rev. Mr. Huffman, also a debate by four boys. Resolved that the Indians were unjustly treated by the White Men. The decision was given in favour of the negative.

The chair was ably filled by Mr. Robert Bullock, secretary-treasurer of the school board.

The concert closed by the singing of the National Anthem and prayers by Mr. Huffman.

Still Time To Join Society

Horticultural Society Has Much to Offer Its Members This Year

The members of the Peterborough Horticultural Society who have not as yet selected the option desired are reminded that the plants listed, with the exception of those in option No. 2 will have to be ordered not later than the 15th inst. Those wishing to avail themselves of securing some of these choice plants will therefore communicate with the Secretary, C. H. Williamson, 293 King street, at once.

For the convenience of those who have yet to make their selection of premiums, we list the options herewith:

Option One.

One Paeony, Festiva Maxima, a grand white.

One Ampelopsis Veitchii or Boston Ivy.

One Rosa Rugosa, Rubra, Deep Rose.

Option Two.

Three Begonias, assorted.
Three Fuchsias, assorted.
Three Geraniums, assorted.

Option Three.

One bush or Tree Honeysuckle, pink.

One Hydrangea Arborescens, a grand new variety.

One Crimson Rambler, Climbing Rose.

Option Four.

One Wigelia Rosea, pink flowering shrub.

One Lillium Auratum, the king lily of Japan.

The citizens in general have responded to the call of the Society in a manner that is highly gratifying to the directors but it is felt that there are still many people in our city who should identify themselves with the cause. By looking over the above list of premiums we can all find some spot where we can place the plants in position to give us keen enjoyment during the coming summers. However, in addition to being entitled to one

Says Mothers Should Receive Salaries

Mrs. Harry Wiley Says Time is Coming for This Idea

WASHINGTON, April 11.—"I do not think the time is far away when laws will be passed giving the wife and mother who toils long hours in the home without the recompense of a single penny a salary based on her husband's income." This statement was made by Mrs. Harvey Wiley, wife of the former chief of the United States Bureau of Chemistry.

Mrs. Wiley was speaking of the radical plan suggested by Professor Nathaniel Schmidt of Cornell. She believes that the wife's wage should, when possible, be one-third of the husband's salary, and never less than one-fourth.

"It might be that some of the salary might have to come back to the home again to procure comforts and pay some of the expenses, but then the joy of giving from her earned money would be hers," explained Mrs. Wiley.

"Perhaps she is given board and lodging, but even servants get more than that.

"I have known women in Washington society who go from week to week with never a penny of their own for spending money. They are industrial slaves, dependent for every necessity of life upon the whims and good nature of their husbands. Even the smallest pleasure is unobtainable if it costs a cent unless their husband is approached. This is a most fertile source of marital unhappiness.

"I can really see no reason, however, why a mother should get more salary than a wife who has no children. A woman's duty to her child is on such a high plane that the financial question cannot enter there. Of course she often gives up outside duties and works harder when the little ones come. But her pay for this will come from the children themselves.

"It is the duty of every woman to learn a profession or trade to support herself and aid the family purse if necessary. Nevertheless, the husband should be responsible for the wages of the busy mother or the sickly wife."

OFFICERS ELECTED

The Women's Guild of All Saints' church held their annual meeting for the election of officers on Wednesday afternoon. The following ladies were elected:

Hon. Pres.—Mrs. Lundy.
Pres.—Mrs. Babcock (re-elected.)
Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Snowden.
Sec.—Mrs. Metherel.
Treas.—Mrs. Wolstenholm (re-elected.)

GENEROUS OFFERING

At the Women's Missionary Society Meeting Last Night.

The offering at the meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of George Street Methodist Church, last night, amounted to $118. This was given in connection with the address by Mr. Harold Robertson.

ST. GEORGE'S CHORAL SOCIETY.

There was an excellent rehearsal of the St. George's Choral Society, last night, in Coleman's parlours. The choruses were rendered in excellent style. In several numbers the shading was exceptionally fine. The quartettes, both mixed and male, are working hard and will be well worth hearing. The programme for Tuesday next will consist of solos, trios, quartettes, and choruses by such well-known composers as Lohr, Pinsute, Parker, Ardlite and others famous in the musical world. There will also be readings by Miss Moss, and violin solos by Dr. Park. The programme will consist of twenty-five numbers and the concert should prove the local event of the season.

RAILWAY NOTES

In a report just prepared for the Smithsonian Institution of Washington by Mr. N. Hollister on "New Mammals from Canada, Alaska, and Kamchatka," an account is contained of a new species of caribou, discovered by him last year at the head of Moose Pass branch of the Smoky River, north east of Mount Robson, on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific. This is described as the largest of the caribou, exceeding in measurements the largest specimens of Rangifer Osborni and Rangifer Montanus. Its skull exceeds the largest skulls of Monatuns from the Selkirk and Gold Ranges in every measurement. The teeth are conspicuously larger than in any other species, each being longer and much heavier.

Mr. Hollister says: "The new species which I have called "Rangifer Portidens," because he has such enormous teeth compared with other caribou and reindeer, is probably the largest form of caribou in the world. Though the animal itself is larger, its antlers, however, are not so long as some other kinds. He is probably confined to the main Rocky Mountain Ranges, as the form known as Rangifer Montanus inhabits the Gold and Selkirk Ranges, and a totally different species is found in the cascades of British Columbia, known as Rangifer Osborni. The new one is very much larger and darker coloured than the caribou found in the Hudson Bay country and north eastern Manitoba which, as you will note in my paper, I recognize as distinct from the eastern woodland caribou, named Rangifer Sylvestris by Richardson, in 1829."

The agreement between the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, the Grand Trunk Pacific Branch Lines Company, and Messrs. Foley, Welch & Stewart, with regard to the Pacific Great Eastern Railway between Vancouver and Fort George, provides that the two first named companies, which have the right to construct a line of railway between these two points shall waive their charter rights for the building of such a line in favour of Messrs. Foley, Welch & Stewart. In return for this, the latter firm agree that, should they receive a proposal involving the acquisition of a majority of the stock of the Pacific Great Eastern, they will serve notice on the G. T. P. Branch Lines Company, which shall have 60 days in which to acquire control of the line.

It is further agreed that all traffic, passenger or freight, mail or express, originating on the Pacific Great Eastern, the routing of which is under the control of the company, shall be routed over the G. T. P. All traffic originating on the Grand Trunk Pacific and destined for Vancouver, or points on the line of the P. G. E. R., shall be routed over that line by the G. T. P. The Canadian Express and Grand Trunk Pacific Telegraph Companies are to have the right to do business on the lines of the P. G. E. R., but the latter can, if it desires, engage in telegraph and express business on its own account. In such event the Grand Pacific Telegraph Company, and the Canadian Express companies shall have the sole right to interchange business. The P. G. E. R. is to use the terminals of the G. T. P., at Fort George, and this agreement is to continue for a period of 99 years.
